Taft Lashes Back At Truman, Returns 'Boom-Bust' Charge

Senator Repeats Claim President Is Responsible For High Prices

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

Senator Robert A. Taft last night returned the President's campaign kickoff with a charge that "every policy of his Administration has increased prices, and is still doing so."

The Senate Republican steersman, accused by the President of "boom" and "bust" defeatism, said the general level of high prices "is due substantially to the President's own policies."

The man who may run against Truman in 1948 gave his statement the campaign flavor of the President's own.

Halleck Joins Fight

While Taft struck back on the price issue, House Republican Leader Charles W. Halleck (Ind.) cracked the bipartisan armistice on another front.

In a speech broadcast to the Young Republican convention in Milwaukee, Wis., Halleck charged the Republican Congress "has received absolutely no cooperation from President Truman" in reducing expenditures.

Recalling the post-election pledge of bipartisan cooperation, Halleck sought to make it stick on the tax reduction and labor bills.

He said:

"The new Congress, fresh from the people, passed the tax and labor bills by tremendous majorities. There was support from real Democrats. Now, there's talk of veto . . ."

Senator Taft meanwhile charged the President "proposes to veto the law of supply and demand and avoid the results of his own policies by occasional grumbling at businessmen and high prices."

It was Mr. Truman, he said, who vetoed the first OPA bill and later removed price controls "because we prohibited OPA prices below cost."

The Ohioan even made a pun on the "boom and bust" line.

"Apparently," he said, "if he (Truman) was not allowed to bust, he proposed to boom."

Official GOP Backing

The Republican News, official organ of the Republican National Committee, meanwhile made it plain Taft was preaching Republican Party doctrine.

The lead editorial in its June issue, signed by Republican National Chairman Carroll Reece, read in part:

"President Truman says he doesn't like high prices. Who does? But President Truman's Administration by stubborn insistence on continued extravagant expenditures and exorbitant taxes is doing more to keep prices high than any other element in our national economy . . ."

Taft followed this tack down the line in replying to Truman's charge of "fallacious and dangerous" price reasoning.

In addition, he injected the tax

Captain Truman Has Reunion With Old Battery D Buddies

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

Kansas City, June 6.—Capt. Harry Truman was back with his buddies of Battery D today, an event in which pleasure was obviously and noisily mutual.

The President landed in the Sacred Cow at Fairfax Airport, on the Kansas side of the Kaw River, at 11:35 a. m., after slightly more than five hours of skirting thunderstorms between here and Washington. Met at the airport by members of his old command, Battery D, 129th Field Artillery, he was escorted to Kansas City's Municipal Auditorium where he spoke briefly to veterans of the Thirty-fifth Division in two wars, meeting here in a three-day reunion.

With him were Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, Army Chief of Staff, and Admiral William D. Leahy, his personal chief of staff, who were introduced with him to the reunion.

After luncheon at the Muehlebach Hotel, Mr. Truman motored to Grandview, Mo., to visit his mother, who recently made an amazing rally from a serious illness.

Returning to Kansas City three hours later, he said he had found Mrs. Truman much improved.

"I found her in good shape," he said. "She's getting along all right. She's better than when I left here."

With him when he returned was Miss Mary Jane Truman, his sister. The fact that she was willing

Stassen Talks With Dewey; Politics Out

Minnesotan Reports On European Tour; Warren Also Visitor

New York, June 6 (AP).—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey and Harold E. Stassen conferred today and afterward both said there was no domestic political significance to their meeting.

Stassen, only announced candidate for the 1948 Republican presidential nomination, talked with Dewey for an hour and 20 minutes in the Governor's hotel suite.

Dewey, a front runner for the GOP nomination next year, meets tonight in Albany with Gov. Earl Warren of California, who also has been mentioned as possible standard bearer for the party in 1948.

Warren arrived here by plane in the afternoon and told newsmen his meeting with Dewey would be "purely social and had no political significance."

Asked if he would talk politics during his overnight stay at the State capital, Warren laughed and said it would be difficult for him and Dewey to talk "without discussing politics, I guess."

Both Dewey and Stassen said in separate news conferences after their meeting that they discussed only Stassen's recent 10-week trip through 16 European countries and, said Stassen, "the implications on America of world economic policy."

Dewey, 1944 GOP presidential nominee, said he was "in pretty general agreement on the facts" Stassen related.

But neither would disclose what specific aspects of the European situation they discussed.

Stassen, considered in Republican circles as liberal in his views on foreign and domestic affairs, talked with the New York Governor immediately after Dewey held an hour-long conversation "on foreign affairs" with Bishop G. Bromley Oxnam of the Methodist Church, New York conference, and John Foster Dulles, foreign affairs adviser to Dewey in the 1944 campaign.

Dewey apparently thought the earlier conference of sufficient significance to announce it at his news conference regarding the interview with Stassen. But he did not reveal the subjects discussed.

"There can be little disagreement on the facts and many of the conclusions" of Stassen's trip, Dewey said.

Stassen, former Minnesota Governor, said he always had been "a strong believer in the leaders of the Republican Party staying in touch with each other" and that he had failed in an attempt to consult Dewey immediately upon returning from Europe because the Governor was absent from Albany.

Ballot Probe Hints Clark Impeachment

Judiciary Unit Ends Preliminary Study Of Missouri Primary

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

Charges of election frauds in Kansas City, Mo., President Truman's home bailiwick, may lead to GOP demands for the impeachment of Attorney General Tom C. Clark, some Republican Senators declared yesterday.

A Senate Judiciary Subcommittee yesterday closed its preliminary inquiry into last August's Missouri primary with the grilling of three Federal judges and a Federal district attorney from Kansas City.

Chairman Homer Ferguson (R., Mich.) said he would ask the subcommittee Monday to report on a resolution authorizing the expenditure of $10,000 for a full inquiry into the situation in Kansas City.

Throughout the preliminary hearing, Ferguson has charged that Attorney General Clark attempted to "whitewash" the investigation into "ballot-box stuffing" by preventing a full FBI investigation.

"And I am allergic to whitewash," Ferguson declared.

The inquiry is supercharged with political dynamite for the 1948 campaign. President Truman took a direct hand in the primary by seeking the aid of the Pendergast machine to defeat his long time foe, Representative Roger C. Slaughter (D., Mo.).

Slaughter was defeated in the primary by Truman's candidate, Enos Axtell, who in turn was defeated in the general election by Representative Albert L. Reeves, jr., a Republican.

An investigation into the primary by the Kansas City Star brought charges of widespread election irregularities on the part of the Pendergast machine.

Finally a county grand jury investigation was ordered which has resulted in some 78 indictments so far.

Safe Dynamited

Meanwhile, the night before the Senate was to begin its preliminary inquiry, the safe in which the ballots were kept was dynamited and the ballots stolen.

United States District Attorney Sam M. Wear, who had previously maintained there was no evidence to justify a full dress inquiry, testified yesterday that the "burglary and larceny" of the ballots "naturally excites suspicion."

The situation is complicated by the fact that both Federal and State election laws are involved, since candidates for Congress and

U. S. to Insist On Red Aid in Hungary Probe

Note Being Drafted May Carry Threat Of Appeal to U. N.

Joint investigation of the Hungarian political situation by Russia, Great Britain and the United States will be demanded in a sharp note to Russia next week, it was reported yesterday.

The note, which it is said President Truman approved after his sharp press conference denunciation Thursday of Russian interference in Hungary's affairs, also will:

(1) Threaten an appeal to the United Nations.

Last night it was reported that the United States has not yet decided whether its appeal shall be made to the Security Council or to the U. N. General Assembly.

The council is frequently in session, but Russia has veto powers there. The assembly will meet in New York in September.

(2) Charge Soviet authorities in Hungary with participation in ousting Premier Ferenc Nagy and other cabinet officers, the move by which Communist elements succeeded in taking over the government.

3. Charge Russia with breaking the Yalta agreement guaranteeing protection and political independence to former enemy small nations.

Yesterday this country reluctantly decided to recognize the new regime in Hungary. The action was taken with the view that complete withdrawal from Budapest would leave the United States without any representation inside Hungary. Such a situation,

Bulgaria Reds Arrest Leader Of Opposition

Repeat of Hungarian Coup Feared; Balkan Bloc May Be Formed

By Wilbur Mackey
Post Reporter

The Communist reaction to President Truman's doctrine spread yesterday from Hungary to Bulgaria, with speculation in Romania of aims leading to a federation of Balkan countries.

On the heels of Mr. Truman's branding of Communist seizure of power in Hungary as outrageous and his indication of positive action in the matter came these major developments:

1. The chief leader of the opposition was arrested in Bulgaria by the Communist government on charges of attempting an armed coup.

2. A delegation of Romanian ministers, headed by Communist Premier Petru Groza, left for political and economic discussions in Belgrade. The Associated Press reported that their departure "aroused speculation that they might discuss the signing of a pact creating a Balkan federation."

3. In Hungary, Matyas Rakosi, now virtual Communist dictator, boasted that his party "perfectly put over" the seizure of the government "before the United States could rub its eyes."

4. At Lake Success, N. Y., the United Nations Security Council received a complaint from its Balkan Commission concerning Bulgarian refusal to let its members enter the country immediately. Sofia demanded a 10-day delay.

Twister Leaves $100,000 Damage In Colorado Town

Julesburg, Colo., June 6 (U.P.).—A series of three tornadoes ripped through this small northeastern Colorado town of 1619 population today, causing damage estimated at approximately $100,000.

Betty Fitch, 21, was the lone casualty requiring hospitalization, and she was released two hours later, after treatment for shock.

However, the town's only physician, Dr. Ernest Lundgren, treated many for minor injuries, cuts and bruises in the heart of the business district, where the greatest damage was done.

The freak twisters knocked out power and communications systems.

Medical supplies were flown here from Lowry Field, Denver.

Champaign, Ill., June 6 (AP).—A small tornado struck a subdivision of new homes on the southwest side of Champaign at 4:30 p. m. Roosevelt Estate Shown to Exceed 2 Million Dollars

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., June 6 (U.P.).—The late President Franklin D. Roosevelt left a gross estate valued at $2,111,673.26 according to papers filed today with the Surrogate Court of Dutchess County.

The figure included some $167,787 in interest and royalties which had accrued since President Roosevelt's death in April, 1945, when the estate was appraised at $1,943,885.86. Of the total figure, $994,155.19 was inherited from his mother, Mrs. Sarah Delano Roosevelt.

The present estate, after funeral and administrative expenses, was valued at $1,438,940.09 as of April 30, 1947. Executors paid $353,051 to the Federal Government, $46,598 to New York State and $1597 to the District of Columbia in taxes.

In addition the Province of New Brunswick received $2409 and the Dominion of Canada $180 in taxes on Roosevelt holdings. Executors' and legal administrative fees, as well as requests to the government, were included in the deductions.

Churchill to Undergo Internal Operation

London, June 6 (U.P.).—Winston Churchill, 72, soon will undergo an internal operation, headquarters of his Conservative Party said today.

Senate Passes Labor Bill, 54 to 17; Vote Would Override Veto

Measure May Get To White House Monday; Truman's Attitude Uncertain

(Roll Call on Page 7.)

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

By an overwhelming bipartisan majority, the Senate yesterday passed its long-studied labor relations reform bill.

The vote, the outcome of which had been assured for weeks, was 54 to 17.

The measure, an amalgam of House and Senate bills whose differences were reconciled by a joint conference committee, will probably go to the White House on Monday. It had been approved, by a 320 to 79 score, by the House on Wednesday.

Since the House was not in session when the bill passed the Senate, Speaker Martin (R., Mass.) will not be able to sign the document until Monday. Then Senate President Pro Tempore Vandenberg (R., Mich.) will add his name and the proposed new law will presumably be sent to Mr. Truman that day.

Veto May Be Forthcoming

The conviction in both Congress and executive circles was growing that the President will veto the bill. Thus most of the speculation was on whether the Senate would override the veto. In the House, which approved the measure by a better than 4 to 1 ratio, there was no question about securing the requisite two-thirds majority.

But yesterday's vote in the Senate gave no further clue to the ultimate outcome there than had already been known on May 13, when it passed its original version of the bill.

Taking into account the Senators who voted, plus those who were absent but whose position was announced, it appeared that not one Senator had changed his views between the earlier Senate draft and the final conference committee version.

Seven Needed to Sustain

In the May 13 vote, the total of Senators voting for or favoring the bill was 70, or 6 more than needed for two-thirds majority. Opposing were 25.

Yesterday, again including absent Senators who stated their position, those favoring were 69, those opposed, 24. Two Senators were absent who did not state their position. One, Lucas (D., Ill.) had previously voted for the Senate bill; the other, Malone (R., Nev.) had voted against it.

It remains to be seen, in the event the bill is vetoed, whether as many as seven Senators will switch their vote so that the veto will be sustained.

The President has 10 days, not counting Sundays, to make up his mind whether he will veto or not. If he receives the bill Monday, he must decide by June 19.

Democratic Leader Barkley (Ky.), making a last-minute appeal against the bill, stated that he did not know how the President would decide. Barkley said, however, he was sure Mr. Truman would first analyze the bill thoroughly. He added:

"And I am sure he will act upon it as his own conscience and sense of duty dictates and without re-

A Senator Reveals

Subcommittee Agrees to Boost Interior Funds 60 Millions

By The Associated Press

A Senator who declined use of his name said yesterday a Senate Appropriations Subcommittee has tentatively agreed at closed sessions on a 60 million to 66 million dollar boost in the $161,413,513 the House voted the Interior Department for 1948.

Western lawmakers and interests concerned with reclamation, irrigation and other Interior Department activities have been vigorously protesting the 130-million-dollar slash the House made in the amount President Truman asked for these activities during the fiscal year beginning July 1.

Senator Wherry (R., Nebr.), chairman of the Senate subcommittee, declined to confirm the reported agreement for an increase.

Wherry said the subcommittee would not complete its work until next week.

Biggest House slash was cutting a 146-million-dollar budget estimate for reclamation down to 67 million dollars. It was argued in the House that 85 million dollars in funds voted by Congress for the present fiscal year would be available.

But Wherry said these "carry-over funds" would be only 56 million dollars and that it was necessary to increase many large projects above the House totals.

He said the committee is going over Reclamation Bureau appropriations item by item to determine fair amounts to keep each necessary project going.

District, U. S. Rent Control Bills Separated

Conference Eliminates Provision for Setting Same Extension Limit

Senator C. Douglass Buck (R., Del.) announced yesterday a joint conference committee had agreed to extend District and national rent controls in separate bills.

Buck said the conference had knocked out of his Senate-approved bill for national rent control extension the section on District rent control. District leaders plan, however, to see that the District has rent control no longer than the rest of the country.

Local Option Killed

Conferees eliminated a House bill provision authorizing towns and cities to end controls at will.

They also agreed to:

1. Extend country-wide rent control at least until next December 31 under the housing expediter. The District law expires on that date.

2. Authorize landlords and tenants to arrange "mutual consent" rent increases of 15 per cent.

3. To set up local advisory rent boards to do the main job of rent control.

Date Still Debated

Buck said the date for ending national controls is still being debated by the conferees. They will meet again Wednesday.

The House voted to end all controls December 31, but to give the President power for an emergency three-month extension. The Senate voted to end controls next February 29.

Ending District controls with the national end is favored by Buck, who is chairman of the Senate District Committee, and by House District Chairman Everett M. Dirksen (R., Ill.) and others of his committee.

District rent law ends next December 31. It would continue through 1948 under the House bill of Representative Thomas G. Abernethy (D., Miss.), a plan indorsed by the District Commissioners.

D.C. Funds Bill Reported Out By Committee

House Floor Battle Expected Monday on Income Tax Feature

A 15-2 District Committee vote yesterday sent the 14-million-dollar Washington revenue bill to the House floor for its first major test Monday.

Wrapped up with the bill is the politically explosive question whether Congressmen will vote to let the District tax income of their constituents who live here.

Tht question will be fought in the House Monday, as it was in the District Committee yesterday.

Also headed for a battle is the question whether parts or all of the revenue program should be sidetracked in favor of a general 2 per cent sales tax.

Representative Walt Horan (R., Wash.) said he would sponsor the sales tax on the floor to get funds for needed school construction. He said testimony to his House District Appropriations Subcommittee showed 10 million dollars must be added to 2.8 million already available, to end double-shift classes in 20 schools.

The District Committee revenue plan calls for a two-million-dollar budget cut, and increased revenue from:

Property tax rate boost from the present $1.75 to $2 per $100, to get $4,500,000 a year.

Income-tax extension to individuals now escaping, and a franchise tax of 5 per cent on unincorporated business income, to get $3,100,000.

A 12 million-dollar Federal payment, a boost of four million dollars over the present grant.

Water-rate boost of 25 per cent to get $800,000.

A gasoline-tax boost from the present 3 cents to 4 cents per gallon, netting $1,600,000, and doubling of inspection fees for autos to make the service self-supporting.

O'Hara Started Fight

The income tax battle was started by Representative Joseph P. O'Hara (R., Minn.) He proposed an amendment to bar any State, including the District, from taxing any resident whose legal domicile is in another State.

The committee voted 11 to 4 against O'Hara's proposal. Representative George J. Bates (R., Mass.) author of the revenue bill, said the O'Hara proposal would destroy the plan to extend the District's income tax collection to those who now live here and pay neither income nor intangible property taxes to a State.

In sharp discussion, Bates and

Airline Faces $200,000 Suit for Death in Crash

A suit charging "wrongful death" and asking $200,000 damages from American Overseas Airlines as a result of a crash near Stephensville, Newfoundland, last October 3, was filed in District Court yesterday.

The suit was filed by Attorney Charles S. Rhyne on behalf of Dorothy F. Alpert, executrix of the estate of Benjamin R. Alpert, New York executive, who was killed along with 38 others in the crash of the DC-4.

The suit asserts the flight was in violation of CAA regulations.

A brief, but violent storm which built up over Frederick, Md., roared to full intensity over Washington early last night.

In 20 minutes high winds, rain and hail had dropped trees and temperatures, damaged several houses, flooded sewers and interrupted power, communications and traffic.

The Weather Bureau said the isolated storm was probably less than 15 miles in diameter. It pelted Frederick with brief but heavy rains before it left for Washington, and arrived here in full fury to sluice almost an inch of rain.

Northwest Washington suffered heaviest from the high winds and at least 40 large trees toppled in the wind—one of them poking through the roof of the James C. Crawford home at 4724 S. Chelsea la., Bethesda, Md.

Temperatures, which hit a high of 87 degrees during the day, dropped 8 degrees in 10 minutes during the storm, the Weather Bureau reported.

The weather bureau at National Airport reported only .05 of an inch of rain, while on the Washington side of Hains Point, motorists stopped their cars because of low visibility in the rain and hail.

Electric wires were down and sparking, some of them across parked automobiles, but no auto fires were reported. Lights were out temporarily in scattered localities and the police radio was off the air from 8:21 to 8:44 p. m. because of interference.

Part of the roof of the Jesse J. McCray residence at 943 Westminster st. nw., was blown off, and rain caused considerable damage to the second floor.

Georgetown U. Student Gets Chance to Tell Story in Court

Municipal Court Judge Walter J. Casey yesterday ruled that a Georgetown University student, who charges a District policeman blackjacked him without cause, is entitled to his day in open court.

The judge, after a conference with the student and police officials, agreed to set aside the student's forfeitures of collateral on police charges against him and scheduled a hearing on the charges for next Tuesday, in Municipal Court.

The open hearing is in addition to Police Department investigation of the "Georgetown Incident," which already has brought suspension for two Georgetown precinct patrolmen. The suspended police face a hearing before the Police Trial Board on completion of the investigation.

Student Daniel J. Fitzpatrick, 22, a GI junior at the university's foreign service school, was arrested a week ago Thursday by Pvt. James A. Stewart, jr., and forfeited $15 collateral on charges of being drunk and disorderly. Last Wednesday morning he was again hauled into the police station, bleeding from head injuries, and charged with disorderly conduct by Private Stewart. He elected to forfeit a $5 bond.

Fitzpatrick, later, charged that his injuries came from the policeman's blackjack and that he was attacked without cause as he waited for a streetcar at Wisconsin ave. and M st. nw. He said further that the first arrest was unjustified, but that he paid without complaint lest it interfere with college examinations.

Besides Stewart, Pvt. Warren L. Garrett, 22, of 1549 35th st. nw.,

Gromyko Insists On Small U. N. Force

'Inflated Armies' Unwarranted Now, Russian Asserts

Lake Success, June 6 (AP).—Russia said today that the world situation does not warrant maintenance of, "inflated armies, navies and air forces" and insisted that the proposed United Nations global police force be small.

Delivering an hour-long policy speech to the Security Council, Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko cautioned the great powers against maintaining such inflated forces on the pretext they were needed for use by the peace agency.

"We cannot but take into account that the aggressive bloc, headed by Hitlerite Germany and militaristic Japan, had been defeated and that former enemy states have been placed under the control of the Allies," he said. "It follows, therefore, that there is no necessity in general that the United Nations maintain excessively numerous armed forces.

Silent on Balkans

"Under such conditions it is impossible to justify the maintenance of inflated armies, navies and air forces, including armed forces, made available to the Security Council."

Gromyko made no mention of conditions in the Balkans and Eastern Europe.

Gromyko stood firm on every one of the major objections raised by Russia in the military staff committee, which finally submitted a widely split report on the global force after 15 months of secret discussions. In the report Russia opposed the United States, Britain, China and France on more than a third of the basic principles.

The Council is now debating the report in efforts to reach agreement and start machinery for setting up the international units.

On the matter of providing contingents, where Russia insists that every one of the major powers provide exactly the same numbers, Gromyko said this was necessary to prevent giving any one a "predominant position."

Here he warned that the acceptance of the principle of comparable contributions (supported by the other four powers) "might lead to the use of the organization of the armed forces in the interests of individual powerful states and to the detriment of legitimate interests of other countries."

Opposed to Bases

Gromyko also:

1. Declared Russia could not agree to granting bases for U. N. forces because the World Charter made no such provision and because acceptance "would be used by some countries for exerting political pressure on other countries, which have provided such bases." He said the insistence on bases was merely an attempt to bypass the Chapter "in the interests of the policy of certain powerful nations." "The provision of bases inevitably affects the sovereignty of nations," he added.

2. Declared there was no reason for any country to have forces stationed outside its own borders. In this connection Gromyko declared that "the presence of armed forces of certain states in territories of other countries, including members of the United Nations, would constitute means of political pressure on these countries."

the 1944 armistice with the Allies. He formerly was a member of the Fatherland Front government, charging that the Communists had taken it over and had beaten and killed political opponents. In the 1946 election most Agrarians abstained from voting and Georgi Dimitrov, former secretary of the Communist Internationale in Moscow, became premier under a coalition.

Petkov was arrested after the Communists accused him in the National Assembly of being a leader of "reaction" and "traitors." Parliament voted to divest him of his immunity, and he was jailed. The official Soviet news agency, Tass, said he had "prepared a state coup by armed force." This charge was similar to the one made against the ousted Hungarian premier, Ferenc Nagy.

Petkov told reporters as he was led to his cell that his arrest was "nothing but a prolongation of what already has happened in Hungary."

Vladimir Topencharov, head of the government press bureau, told correspondents Petkov's actions were "similar to those of the Hungarian conspirators."

Topencharov said, 'There is only a political link between the Hungarian conspiracies and the Bulgarian ones, but not organizational."

In regard to the Romanian mission to Belgrade, information officials declined comment about a Balkan federation, and Communists in the government denied such a move for a bloc. They added, however, that the Balkan and eastern European countries would sign bilateral cultural and political pacts.

After Belgrade, which has often been the origin of proposals for a federated Balkans, the mission will go to Bulgaria.

As it stands now, such a federation would include Yugoslavia, with Marshal Tito as the bloc's nominal leader; Romania, Bulgaria, and perhaps Hungary. Greece and Turkey would be on the outside, but Czechoslovakia is a question mark. Communists do not have full control there yet, but it would come as no surprise if they took over, as that nation is now surrounded by totalitarian regimes.

Rakosi's boast about the Hungarian coup was made Wednesday to factory workers and reported by MYT, official news agency. The press, however, did not carry the story, nor did it print anything about Mr. Truman's remarks. Rakosi, deputy premier under left wing groups of the Smallholders Party Premier Lajos Dinnyes, who replaced Nagy, declared:

"We were able to solve the crisis before the foreign press good and bad, were able to intervene.

"Before the United States could rub its eyes, everything was perfectly put over. Such a task could only be carried out when democracy is united and is led by the brave and iron-fisted Communist Party, conscious of its aims."

The purge was not complete, it seemed. The United Press quoted reliable informants as saying that about 20 members of the Smallholders Party in Parliament would be expelled by the now-dominant left wing group. They would retain their seats, informants said, but the action would deprive the party of its majority.

Bela Varga, president of the parliament, escaped to Austria, reliable informants in Vienna told the United Press. He had previously been reported arrested.

Many of the people of Budapest, an Associated Press reporter said, "huddled nightly in cellars as they did during the German occupation to listen to foreign newscasts.

Russian Citizen

virtual dictator of Hungary and leader of the Communist Party there, was formerly a clothing store clerk. This is how he appeared in Washington a year ago, when he visited the White House with Ferenc Nagy, who was then premier, and other Hungarian officials

Budapest, Hungary, June 6 (AP).—Matyas Rakosi, virtual dictator of Hungary and leader of that country's Communist Party, is a Russian citizen and a brigadier general in the Russian army.

The small, bald Rakosi holds only the prosaic title of deputy premier, but his power has been supreme since June 1, when the Communist coup forced out Premier Ferenc Nagy.

Rakosi formerly was a clothing store clerk. He was arrested in 1923 and again two years later, and charged then with plotting to overthrow the Hungarian government. He had a forged passport. He asserted his spine was injured in third degree questioning, in which he was said to have acknowledged that Russia sent a $100,000 fund to aid in his plot.

He was sentenced to eight and a half years at hard labor.

In 1935, Hungarian authorities brought him to trial on charges of high treason, 21 counts of homicide and 489 other offenses. He was sentenced to exile in Russia on 511 counts.

When Russia was at war with Germany, he was one of the signers in May of 1943 of a resolution dissolving the Communist International, the agency for fomenting world revolution.

With Russian armies victorious, he reemerged in Hungary.

He accompanied Nagy to Washington a year ago on a mission in which the United States restored to Hungary gold which Germany had stolen from her.

Journalists Adopt U. S. Resolution on Freedom of Press

Prague, Czechoslovakia, June 6 (U.P.).—The International Journalists Congress today adopted an American resolution on freedom of the press after the Greek delegation walked out because its leader was refused permission to answer a Yugoslav attack.

The resolution, introduced by American Delegate Milton Murray, called for free access to news, full freedom to publish news without restraint and treaties establishing the free flow of news.

"It is the basic right of people everywhere to be informed fully, freely, accurately and honestly," the resolution stated, as amended.

One change was made in the original American resolution at the insistence of the Russian delegation. The Russian counterdraft substituted "honestly and accurately" for the American wording "fully and freely."

The Greeks later returned on Murray's urging, but indicated they may withdraw permanently if again denied permission to speak.

Big Grain Crop Feeds Nations

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

Whirring combines started grinding out world influence for the United States and gold for American farmers on the far-spreading wheat fields of the great plains of the Southwest this week.

First reports from Texas reaching the Department of Agriculture predict this year's harvest in that State may reach a mammoth 125 million bushels as compared with 63 million reaped last year.

Accompanying this report came the amazing announcement that May shipments of wheat overseas reached an all-time high; more than 66½ million bushls.

This brings the total for 11 months to 494 million bushels. Another 56 million bushels are scheduled for export this month. That will bring the year's total to 550 million bushels; contrasted with 401 million bushels a year ago.

While Texas farmers were sweating in their fields, world food economists were preparing the machinery for distribution of that enormous yield to every section of the globe.

The International Emergency Food Council, made up of 34 nations, yesterday rushed out invitations to its members and to 18 other countries and three international organizations to meet in Paris July 9 and lay plans for next year.

The proposal for such a meeting was laid before IEFC 10 days ago by Secretary of Agriculture Anderson. It was opposed by Great Britain and several British Commonwealth nations.

Another group of nations, including the Netherlands, Belgium and Sweden, wanted it held in the United States for the sake of economy.

The Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations opposed a meeting in Europe, fearing it would conflict with the FAO meeting in Geneva in August.

But Anderson, backed by America's upcoming record harvest, won. Anderson doesn't want to repeat his experience of the last two years, when early plans for food shipments were found later to be far short of needs.

Both in 1945 and 1946 Anderson called upon claimant nations early in autumn to estimate their grain needs for the year. In both years these estimates were millions of bushels below ultimate requirements.

The most important reason behind Anderson's plan, however, was to direct the world's attention to this Nation's tremendous part in combating hunger in all sections of the globe.

Anderson reasoned that a meeting to which leading food and agriculture officials of each nation were invited would attract such attention. He further held that such a meeting in Europe at the scene of near-famine would be more valuable to accomplish his aims than one held in this country.

One prominent official yesterday, discussing the announcement, remarked that "wheat is the greatest influence in world politics today."

Backed by Wheat

In international meetings all American proposals are backed by wheat. The same official added: "Few animals, even the most vicious, will bite the hand that feeds it."

The members of IEFC invited to next month's meeting include: Australia, Austria, Belgium, Brazil, Canada, Chile, China, Cuba, Czechoslovakia Denmark, Ecuador, Egypt, Finland, France, Greece, Hungary, India, Ireland, Italy Mexico the Netherlands, New Zealand, Norway, Peru, Poland, Portugal, Philippines, Siam, Sweden, Switzerland, Turkey, Union of South Africa, United Kingdom and the United States.

FAO nations, not members of the IEFC, invited are: Bolivia, Colombia, Dominican Republic, Guatemala, Haiti, Honduras, Ireland, Iraq, Lebanon, Liberia, Luxembourg, Nicaragua, Panama, Syria, Uruguay, Venezuela and Yugoslavia.

International organizations invited were the United Nations, the Economic Commission for Europe and the International Wheat Council.

Three Reasons Given

The last two groups were requested to send observers.

The formal reasons for the meeting, as given in the IEFC call, are:

(1) To acquaint all nations with the fact that world grain stocks may fall further short of needs next year than this year.

(2) To make plans for all governments to make the greatest use of locally grown grain for human consumption.

(3) To encourage all nations to distribute their rations evenly throughout the year so as to avoid shortages in the spring just before the new harvests.

The message that brought the word of the enormous harvests in Texas also revealed that Texas wheat is bringing around $2.18 a bushel on the farm.

Calculations in Washington are that this year's wheat crop may bring an unprecedented 2½ billion dollars into the hands of the Nation's wheat growers.

U. S. Wheat Exports 'Make Piker of Joseph'

Since VJ-Day the United States has sent to hungry nations overseas enough wheat to equal five loaves of bread every week from each man, woman and child in this country.

A high-placed official yesterday called the record "the most amazing in history; it makes a piker out of Joseph."

Exports since July 1, 1945, will total almost a billion bushels of wheat by June 30; at least 950 million.

Before the war the entire annual world production was only about 5½ billion bushels; the United States' prewar harvests averaged three-quarters of a billion bushels.

Boy Was Pawn in Red Coup d'Etat

LANCIKA NAGY,
4-year-old son of Ferenc Nagy, former anti-Communist premier of Hungary, was used to force Nagy to resign, paving the way for the Red coup d'etat in that country. Hungary Coup Note Drafted est efforts of Brig. Gen. George it is felt, would be to the advantage of Soviet influences.

The note will be dispatched to Lieut. Gen. V. P. Sviridov, Russian chairman of the Allied Control Council in Hungary. It will deal directly with Sviridov's personal part in the Hungarian upheaval.

Pending the release of the note, State officials awaited with interH. Weems, American member of the control council, to get a report from Sviridov of his part in the coup.

Weems particularly seeks an account of the information which Sviridov presented to Hungarian officials and which led to the ousting of the Nagy government.

The threat to appeal to the United Nations reflects two points known to have been considered.

The first concerns the legal grounds by which the case could be presented and kept before the U. N.

The second is the widespread belief that Russia would oppose having the case aired in U. N. with the danger of consequent loss of face in Europe.

The State Department action was blessed unofficially yesterday by Hungarian Minister Aladar Szegedy-Maszak, who broke with the new Communist regime in Budapest, and went into voluntary exile in this country.

Szegedy-Maszak told newsmen Hungary's only hope of escaping Russian domination lay in the United Nations. He declared the Hungarian crisis would affect the whole future of the world organization.

The Hungarian minister said that he "withdrew" rather than "hand over" the legation to the three Communist members of the staff who are going along with the new government.

He said his staff has been welcomed to remain in this country by the State Department. He did not know, he added, if Nagy, the ousted Premier, would come to this country or not.

Szegedy-Maszak said Nagy's resignation was obtained when his 4-year-old son was held as a hostage by the Russians pending his father's compliance with Russian orders.

The minister made public a long communication he had sent to Secretary of State George C. Marshall. Russia's aims, he told Marshall, are:

1. To extend Russia's grip on Hungary's capital assets "through an arbitrary and fallacious interpretation" of the Potsdam decision on German assets.

2. To achieve the "economic enslavement" of Hungary, and integrate the country into the Soviet economic sphere.

3. To achieve exclusive Communist control of the Hungarian economy by enforcing a program of nationalization.

"A victim of totalitarian aggression," he wrote Marshall, "Hungary is a test case whether a defeated small country, having shown its choice in free and unfettered elections, is to be allowed to have free institutions, representative government, and freedom from political oppression."

Future 'Brass Hats' Sail Away Their Caps . . .

HIP! HIP! HURRAH!—Graduates of the 1947 class of the Naval Academy cheer "for those we leave behind" and toss their caps into the air at yesterday's ninety-seventh commencement at Annapolis. They had just taken oaths as ensigns in the Navy or second lieutenants in Marine Corps

Bank on U. N., Forrestal Bids New Ensigns

Annapolis, Md., June 6.—The Navy graduated 494 midshipmen today and Navy Secretary James V. Forrestal told them the years ahead probably would be "more deeply vexed and troubled than those facing any generation which has left the Naval Academy since 1861."

But contrary to that year, he said, "the United States provides the principal code of stability in a world shaken by six years of bitter and destructive fighting.

He spoke at the colorful Academy commencement where Admiral William H. P. Blandy, Atlantic Fleet commander, commissioned 438 of the graduates as ensigns and 33 as second lieutenant in the Marine Corps.

Twenty-three others also received degrees, but 15 were honorably discharged for physical reasons, six had their commissions withheld pending a further physical check and one Colombian and one Peruvian youth qualified for commissions in their own navies.

Forrestal declared that "if war is to be avoided, we shall have to find solutions for a complex of political, economic and security problems such as the Nation has never faced."

"Anchor Man" Acclaimed

Vast Dahlgren Hall was packed for the commencement with the entire brigade of midshipmen and the graduates' families and sweethearts. The 50-minute exercises joined gravity and strict Navy ceremony with the gayer traditions of wall-rattling cheers and the rain of white hats.

One of the loudest acclamations greeted the class anchor man, William A. Feltovic of Shelton, Conn. His mates hoisted him above the crowd, where he brandished the blue paper anchor signifying he was the last man in his class.

Behind Forrestal and Rear Admiral James L. Holloway, jr., academy superintendent, sat an illustrous group of Navy and Marine veterans. Besides Blandy, there were Gen. Alexander A. Vandegrift, Marine Corps commandant, Assistant Navy Secretary W. John Kenney and a group of two other full admirals, six vice admirals, seven rear admirals and two brigadier generals.

New ensigns rushed to the famous Japanese bell, where aided by mothers and sweethearts, they put on their gold-striped shoulder boards.

Some of the graduates got ready to report to their duty stations, while others packed up for a month's leave.

District Girl, Marine Wed At Annapolis

Annapolis, Md., June 6 (Spl.).—The Marines, with a Washington bride, claimed first ringing of St. Andrew Chapel wedding bells here today, in the annual rush to matrimony of Naval Academy graduates newly commissioned as Navy ensigns and Marine Corps second lieutenants.

Shortly after graduation exercises in Dahlgren Hall Second Lieut. Donald W. Tardif of Denver, Colo., took the marital vows with Margaret L. Watkins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde H. Watkins of 627 Upshur st. nw. The ceremony was the day's first of 11 such weddings. They will live at Quantico, Va., where the bridegroom is assigned.

Later in the day, Navy Ensign W. D. Crawford of Little Rock, Ark., and Colene King, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John M. King, of 9706 Lawson pl., Silver Spring, Md., were married at the chapel. They will live in Bayonne, N. J.

Tomorrow's ceremonies include the scheduled wedding of Miss Elizabeth D. Williams, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Allison R. Williams, of 4801 Connecticut ave. nw., to Navy Ensign Nathaniel W. Bullard, of Wheeling, W. Va.

The Tardif-Watkins wedding was held in the main chapel. Matron of honor was Mrs. Roy Steifle, of Roanoke, Va., while the maid of honor was Jeanne Steifel, of Washington. Floyd H. Waldrop, of Greenville, S. C., was best man.

Plebe Loses Shirt Striving Upward, Finds Goal a Snare

Annapolis, Md., June 6 (AP).—Midshipman Ralph F. Bagley, jr., of Los Angeles was the envy of his Naval Academy class today. The question was: which class?

Before noon, at, least, it was the plebe class.

But as soon as commencement ended,850 plebes made a mad rush to Herndon monument to struggle through a ritual supposed to signal their advance to the richer life of third classmen.

Bagley clambered to the top of the monument ahead of everyone else, losing his shirt in the process. That was enough to convince the plebes they were promoted.

But older hands said it isn't so. Plebes, they insisted, remain in low estate until the end of the summer cruise.

Patients on Cruise

A group of 25 Walter Reed Hospital patients were guests of the Council of Jewish Youth for a moonlight cruise down the Potomac River last night on the S. S. Potomac.

Middies Sail For Europe in 9 Ships Today

Annapolis, Md., June 6 (AP).—Nine ships of the midshipmen's training squadron will nose out of Annapolis Roads tomorrow morning, carrying more than 2300 trainees across the Atlantic and into waters of northern Europe.

Aboard will be almost 2100 midshipmen of the new first, second and third classes, plus a contingent of 200 Naval Reserve Officer Training Corps midshipmen and 10 freshly commissioned Army second lieutenants.

This will be the first time NROTC trainees and West Point graduates have had a part in the cruise.

For the NROTC group, it will be one of the phases of the educational program devised by Rear Admiral James L. Holloway, jr., and his board of educators for the development of a larger peacetime Navy. Holloway is now academy superintendent.

The cruising ships will head first to Rosyth, Scotland, where they are slated to dock June 28. Then the battleships continue to Oslo, Norway, the aircraft carriers to Goteborg, Sweden, and destroyers to Copenhagen. In July they all return to English ports, some pulling into Portsmouth, and others to Weymouth, Plymouth, Greenwich or Woolwich.

House Anti-Red Group to Grant Mellett Hearing

By The Associated Press

Chairman J. Parnell Thomas (R., N. J.) said today the House Committee on Un-American Activities will give Columnist Lowell Mellett "full opportunity" to answer a statement that Mellett got Robert Taylor to act in a pro-Communist movie.

Mellett, Thomas told reporters, will be given a chance to testify to the committee, probably in September, at hearings on communism in Hollywood.

Mellett released last night a letter to Thomas suggesting he wanted to tell his side of the case before September. He said the committee used "hit-and-run or hit-and-smear" tactics.

He said a refusal to grant an immediate hearing would be "the essence of un-Americanism."

Thomas said he will send Mellett a reply.

"Mr. Mellett may be assured," the chairman said, "that he will be given full opportunity to give his side of the case. But it will be at the proper time and under the proper circumstances. That probably will be next September."

60 Millions Worth

Poland to Get Machinery From Britain

London, June 6 (AP).—Britain has agreed to sell to Poland £15,000,000 ($60,000,000) worth of "industrial recovery" machinery—£6,000,000 ($24,000,000) worth on credit, with repayment to follow delivery of the goods—in the next three years, the Polish trade mission in London disclosed today.

Dr. T. Lychowski, head of the mission negotiating here since last spring, made known the machinery agreement in announcement of the formal conclusion of a new commercial pact involving goods and credits totaling £68,000,000 ($272,000,000).

The commercial treaty, Britain's first important trade pact since the war with a country in the so-called "Russian orbit" will be signed here Monday.

Lychowski said one previously announced provision, for Britain to get 250,000 tons of Polish coal this year, would be renewed and enlarged next year if the British still needed coal.

The £6,000,000 credit, Lychowski explained, will be granted by British manufacturers and guaranteed by the government to be used as part payment for each Polish order of vitally needed machinery.

Germans Blame Red Pressure In Interzone Parley Fiasco

Munich, June 6 (AP).—German officials of the western occupation zones blamed Soviet pressure tonight for the walkout of Russian zone delegates which broke up the first all-Germany conference since the war.

They charged the Soviet Zone officials were trying to use the conference to bolster Russian demands for a strongly centralized German government instead of the decentralized federation favored by the Western Allies.

The delegates withdrew today after losing a fight to get plans for a central German government at the top of the agenda. The conference had been called to discuss only economic and not political problems.

It was disclosed also that if the Soviet Zone officials had taken their seats they would have met a challenge from seven Social Democratic leaders in the Western Zone on their "authority to speak in the name of their people." The Social Democrats charged the Soviet-sponsored Socialist Unity Party officials were not chosen in a free election because the Social Democratic Party was barred in the Soviet Zone election last fall.

Reds Deride Invasion Effort

Berlin, June 6 (AP).—The Soviet Military Administration's official newspaper told the German people today the Russians beat Hitler's armies practically single-handed while the Allies concentrated "chiefly on bombing cities, which they destroyed entirely while leaving military objects intact."

The declaration was made in a front-page editorial in the Taegliche Rundschau on this third anniversary of the Western Front Invasion.

Other D-Day articles said the invasion was of relatively minor importance because the war was decided on the Eastern Front, "against much stronger German forces."

Britain Ready To Follow Up Marshall Talk

London, June 6 (U.P.).—A Government statement said today that Britain would "take urgent steps to follow up" Secretary of State George C. Marshall's call for the nations of Europe to get together and decide what economic help they need, so the United States can give them common instead of piecemeal aid.

The statement on Marshall's speech yesterday at Harvard University was issued through the news department of the foreign office. It specified that this is "not an official statement; it is merely a reaction." The statement said:

"In official quarters in London, Mr. Marshall's Harvard speech is warmly welcomed. It is felt that it offers a new approach to the reconstruction of Europe. The statement will be an encouragement to Great Britain and to European countries to pursue with fresh vigor their efforts for economic recovery in Europe with the knowledge that these efforts will be supported and aided by the United States Government.

"It is understood that His Majesty's government will take urgent steps to follow up Mr. Marshall's proposal with the United States Government."

Whitehall sources believed that the first step in following up Marshall's proposal would be a call upon him by Lord Inverchapel, the British Ambassador in Washington, to find out the details of what Marshall has in mind and what Britain's part, if any, would be.

It still was not clear whether the assistance Marshall spoke of would be in the form of grants, loans of peacetime lend-lease. Until this is determined, the full impact of his proposal on British economy cannot be assessed.

But Whitehall sources believed Britain would benefit either directly or indirectly from the program. It was welcome because it came at a time when the dollar resources of Britain, along with those of nearly all of western Europe, were approaching depletion, without alternative markets in sight.

Marshall, it was said here, left open the question of whether Britain would receive further direct aid from the United States. But these Whitehall sources said assistance given to France, Belgium, Holland, Scandinavia, Germany or Italy would provide Britain with new markets and lessen its dependence on the dollar.

Lewis Heaps Up Rich Health Fund In Record Time

By The Associated Press

Government figures showed today that John L. Lewis had accumulated for his United Mine Workers one of the biggest union health and welfare funds in the country in the shortest time on record.

The UMW fund, financed by a 5 cents a ton levy on soft coal, grew from nothing to $21,781,807 from June 1, 1946, to May 1 of this year. The Government, which collects the payments as operator of the mines, estimated that the total for the first full year would be more than 24 million dollars.

Trustees of the fund already have authorized $1000 payments to dependents of miners killed at work.

Labor Department sources said no other union welfare fund had grown so rapidly.

Lynching Defendant Charged With Shooting

Greenville, S. C., June 6 (U.P.).—Hendrix Rector, a defendant in the recent Greenville lynching trial who said when he was acquitted, "I'm going to stay drunk for a month and then run for sheriff," was charged today with shooting up a car occupied by four Negroes.

Rector was brought into police court this morning on a complaint brought by the Negroes who charged he drove up beside their car at a stop light last night and fired several shots. The case was booked for later trial.

Chinese Seen Ready for Deal On Port Arthur

Peiping, June 6 (AP).—A report that Chinese government troops have withdrawn from Pulantien "after completing their mission" whetted speculation today on negotiations for Chinese administration of Port Arthur and Dairen and possible effects on the civil war in Manchuria.

The report, carried by the newspaper Shih Chieh Jih Pao, was thus far without official confirmation and gave no details. It did not say what their mission had been or where they went.

It coincided, however, with two developments: Arrival of a Chinese mission in Port Arthur and attacks on Pulantien by Chinese Communists.

Pulantien, 45 miles northeast of Dairen and 70 miles northeast of Port Arthur, is the stopper to the bottleneck of the Kwantung Peninsula on which both important ports are situated.

Strong Chinese government forces have marked time there for many months, awaiting fulfillment of terms of the Chinese-Soviet treaty of August, 1945.

This treaty provides that Port Arthur shall be a naval base, used by both China and Russia, with a Chinese civil administration agreeable to Russia, and that Dairen shall be a Chinese-administered free commercial port.

Indonesians Run All Dutch Islands

Jogjakarta, Java, June 6 (AP).—The cabinet of the Indonesian republic accepted in principle today the proposal of The Netherlands that an interim Indonesian national government be established over all the islands that comprised The Netherlands East Indies.

It would administer Java, Sumatra and Madoera and also Borneo and the islands of East Indonesia.

Ramadier Refuses to Treat With Strikers 'Under Menace'

Paris (Saturday), June 7 (AP).—The French Government, confronted with a paralyzing railroad strike, announced early today that it would take all necessary steps to keep food moving throughout the country, but that it would not requisition the railroads or workers.

The announcement was made following a meeting of Premier Paul Ramadier and army and navy chiefs which was called when union leaders refused the Premier's request that they halt the strike in order to permit reopening of negotiations.

Rail traffic at midnight was completely tied up at three major Paris stations, affecting the London boat trains and lines to Switzerland, Germany and Belgium. Operations at three other terminals also were affected.

Ramadier turned down late yesterday a strikers' proposal to renew negotiations while the stoppage was still in progress, saying "I refuse to bargain under menace." He later appealed to the workers by radio to return to their jobs as good patriots.

Ramadier has blamed Communists for fomenting many of the strikes that have plagued his administration since he dropped the Communists from the French government.

Before going on the air, Ramadier told union leaders at his residence that they must get the workers back on the job before he could take up negotiation of their demands.

He said the government intended to go ahead with the reclassification of jobs on July 1, as it promised six months ago. In addition to reclassification, the strikers seek pay boosts which the Government estimates will cost the treasury 20,000,000,000 francs ($166,000,000) a year. The government was reported ready to offer compromise concessions totaling from 10,000,000,000 to 15,000,000,000 francs.

"Present all the demands that you think just," Ramadier said. "The government, knowing what the country owes you, pledges itself to do all that is compatible with the economic equilibrium of the nation."

British Ask Immigrant Aid Withheld

Lake Success, N. Y., June 6 (INS). The United Nations circulated to its 55 members today an appeal from the British government to close their ports and decline all aid to illegal Jewish immigration into Palestine.

U. N. Secretary-General Trygve Lie distributed the formal request from Britain's Sir Alexander Cadogan. Cadogan based his move on the Special Assembly's resolution last month calling for a "truce" on violence and agitation pending the fact-finding body's report.

"As an indication of the gravity of this question, His Majesty's government would point out that during the six months from mid-October 1946 onwards approximately 15,000 Jewish illegal immigrants from various European ports were intercepted in Palestine waters and diverted to camps in Cyprus," Cadogan said.

"This figure may be compared with the present legal immigration rate of 18,000 a year and the fact, mentioned by Mr. Ernest Bevin, Foreign Secretary, in his speech in the House of Commons on February 25 last, that 96,000 Jewish immigrants had then been admitted to Palestine since May, 1939."

Nine More 'Bombs' Found

London, June 6 (AP).—Postal workers intercepted today nine more deadly "letter bombs" reportedly addressed to Prime Minister Attlee, Winston Churchill and other present and former ministers of the British cabinet.

A new bag of mail brought to 20 the number of explosive letters received here from Turin in northern Italy in a "murder-by-mail" campaign which the Stern Gang, Jewish underground group, proclaimed as its project.

The London press named Attlee and Churchill as among the targets for the nine intercepted bombs, and said others including Deputy Prime Minister Herbert Morrison, Fuel Minister Emanuel Shinwell, Home Secretary Chuter Ede, who has general charge of Scotland Yard, and Health Minister Aneurin Bevan.

The letters were similar to those delivered earlier in the week addressed to Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin, Anthony Eden, and nine other top-rank political leaders.

Scotland Yard officials said Italian police are trying to trace the senders of the bombs, none of which has exploded except those detonated in police tests.

Housewives Shout Views To Commons

London, June 6 (U.P.).—The British Housewives League, which disclaims political motives but consistently attacks the Labor government, sent 500 members to Parliament today to buttonhole members of Commons and give them the league's stand on the food and fuel situation.

In groups of 20, the housewives sent in messengers to fetch their local members of Parliament. Soon the corridors of the old building were filled with hundreds of voices as the women all tried to talk at once and the beleaguered legislators tried to mollify them.

The women came from all parts of the country and each wore a red, white and blue rosette. There were so many of them that police had to clear a path through the corridors.

Some were ushered into adjoining Westminster Hall, where they thrust upon their legislators petitions with thousands of signatures demanding a "competent minister of fuel and a competent minister of food."

They said they could see nothing but bad in any plan to reduce further the standard of living. Emanuel Shinwell, the Minister of Fuel, walked right through the crowd without being recognized, although the women were demanding to see him.

Loud boos greeted the word that several Laborite MP's could not be found.

The league, which claims a membership of 100,000, held a rally tonight in Royal Albert Hall, but a handful of well-organized hecklers almost broke up the meeting. Police finally collared several agitators—the housewives said they were Communists—and threw them out.

Dept. of State News Program Again Delayed

By The Associated Press

For the second successive day, a demand for a quorum delayed yesterday a vote on a measure to authorize the State Department to operate a foreign information and educational exchange program.

The House has completed general debate on the bill, and will continue reading the legislation for amendments on Monday.

Earlier the legislation had survived its first test.

Debate Procedure

By a voice vote, the House adopted procedure recommended by the rules committee, ordering two hours of general debate and opening the measure to amendment. Rejection would have meant indefinite delay and probable death of the bill.

The action came after Representative Mundt (R., S. Dak.), author of the legislation, acknowledged on the floor that the appropriations committee probably would refuse to give the State Department "every penny" it seeks—31 million dollars in all—to operate the program.

He called attention to a provision for an FBI loyalty check of all the personnel working on the program, written into the bill by the Foreign Affairs Committee, and said:

"There isn't a Chinaman's chance that a communist or a fascist will be employed on it."

Representative Cox (D., Ga.) termed the information program "an activity which is essential to the security and welfare of the country," and asked: "Are we to deny ourselves the right to tell our own story?"

Rankin in Protest

Representative Rankin (D., Miss.) broke in to protest that the educational exchange features of the program would permit the "importation" of foreign professors "from behind the iron curtain to poison the minds of our youth."

Representative Chenoweth (R., Colo.) chimed in with the observation: "No one is going to break off relations with us if we don't approve this program." He said he is convinced the State Department shouldn't engage in a "propaganda race."

Representative Sabath (D., Ill.) declared the Nation has "nothing to fear from familiarizing the world with our democracy."

Mundt told the House:

"This program has no special creed to espouse save that of peace, justice and tolerance.

"It is an American program to induce others through reciprocal means to cooperate in promoting good order and good will."

fellow patrolman with him at the time of Fitzpatrick's injuries, was suspended. The suspension followed the student's complaint and preliminary Police Department investigations which disclosed the two patrolmen, off duty at the time, were involved in another public altercation at the Little Tavern, at 3331 M st. nw., 1 hours before the student's arrest.

Private Stewart, 35, of 5701 N. 10th rd., Arlington, Va., has told his commanding officer, Lieut. Paul Barnes, that Fitzpatrick "cursed" him and threatened to "get" him for the previous arrest and that the student's head was cut when he slipped and fell while resisting arrest.

Attending yesterday's conference with Judge Casey were United States Assistant District Attorney John B. Diamond, Lieutenant Barnes, Police Inspector Lloyd E. Kelly, Fitzpatrick and the Rev. A. Kunkel, Georgetown University prefect of student discipline.

Judge Frees Student, Censures Arresting Officer

Municipal Court Judge Walter J. Casey yesterday dismissed a police charge against Robert M. McCole, 23-year-old Georgetown University student, and criticized the arresting officer for "improper police handling."

Censured was Pvt. L. E. Gatlin, who charged McCole with disorderly conduct on arresting him following an altercation Wednesday in a taproom on Wisconsin ave. nw. The student said he was sitting with friends when a soldier swung on his comrade.

The blow, McCole said, glanced off his friend's nose and struck him in the eye. And while the proprietor called police, the soldier left, McCole testified. He said he was nursing his hurt eye when Pvt. Gatlin came in and arrested him.

"I am convinced there was this soldier there," Judge Casey said. "Any kind of proper police handling would have shown that. Case dismissed."

General Taylor, Major Boyd Win Dutch Award

The Military Order of William, the Dutch equivalent of the Congressional Medal of Honor, was conferred here yesterday on two United States Army officers, one posthumously.

The two recipients were:

Maj. Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, commandant of the United States Military Academy who was wounded as wartime commander of the 101st Airborne Division during the battle for Dutch liberation.

Maj. Charles K. Boyd, Army Air Forces pilot, who successfully landed an aircraft load of troops during the 1944 airborne invasion of Holland but was killed himself.

The awards were presented to General Taylor and to Major Boyd's widow, Mrs. Jean G. Boyd, Stockton, Calif., by Dr. Alexander Loudon, The Netherlands Ambassador, at the Ambassador's home, 2347 S st. nw.

Admit 400,000 DPs, Congress Is Urged

850,000 Europeans Must Find Homes, Hilldring Testifies

By Dillard Stokes
Post Reporter

Assistant Secretary of State John H. Hilldring yesterday urged Congress to let 400,000 refugees from Europe settle in America.

There are 850,000 people in displaced persons camps who must find new homes somewhere, Hilldring said. And we can hardly look to other nations to take them in if we do not welcome our share.

Hilldring told a House Judiciary Subcommittee that there were only three other ways to handle the problem, but that all three were against American principles.

Here they are:

1. We could have our soldiers and the German police round up the refugees at gunpoint, load them in trucks and boxcars and dump them into eastern Europe.

"We would not attempt such a policy of our own accord," Hilldring added.

The Rev. Samuel McCrea Calvert, secretary general of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America, told the Congressmen most of the refugees are "displaced" because they refuse to live under Communist dominion in their own countries.

2. We could close the D. P. camps and turn the refugees out on the mercy of the Germans—who drove or dragged most of them from their homes to start with.

"Unless some other provision is made by Congress," Hilldring said, "this solution ultimately would have to be adopted by the military government."

3. We would keep the refugees in D. P. camps from now on, blocked off from the rest of Germany and getting nowhere. If that is done, Hilldring said, American taxes will have to pay for it.

Representative Noah M. Mason (R., Ill.) told the subcommittee it would be much cheaper to let the refugees move. Besides that, Mason said, the immigration bill calls for careful screening, so that we would get 400,000 of the sort of people we need as citizens.

Hilldring summed up the State Department's position this way:

We will not lessen our efforts to resettle as many of these displaced persons as possible in Europe and Latin America, and to obtain a just solution of the Palestine problem which may enable a large number of displaced persons to enter the Holy Land.

"But we cannot pursue these efforts with any degree of success if we are not willing to help relieve ourselves."

The bill urged by Hilldring was offered by Representative William G. Stratton (R., Ill.) It would admit 100,000 refugees a year for four years.

The president of the American Coalition—John B. Trevor—saw it as the spearhead of a drive by foreign blocs to wreck the present national origin quota system. It would cause racial dissension, Trevor said, and put a needless and dangerous burden on our economy. He pointed to the housing shortage, and the threat of unemployment and said the refugees would make them worse.

Trevor—who said he spoke for 85 patriotic, civic and fraternal groups—asked Congress to stop all immigration, except for wives and children of American citizens.

When Trevor said the Stratton bill would break down the quota plan, Representative Emanuel Celler (D., N. Y.) said the plan was unfair, because it favors the English.

"Well, isn't this supposed to be an Anglo-Saxon country?" asked Representative Ed Gossett (D., Tex.). "Aren't we an English-speaking people? Of course, I'm not talking about New York. It isn't an English-speaking city."

Celler said he resented this remark

U. S. Envoy Recall Riles Peron Press

Buenos Aires, June 6 (AP).—Argentina's pro-government press today interpreted the withdrawal of United States Ambassador George Messersmith as an unfriendly act, one newspaper calling his case a "dismissal."

The newspaper Democracia, which is reported owned by Eva Duarte Peron, wife of President Juan D. Peron, said the withdrawal "produced a reaction of evident displeasure."

"This step breaks the mold of the policy of rapproachement because it occurs at a time when good relations between this nation and the country he represents are being consolidated," said the editorial.

"The people can only interpret the withdrawal of the ambassador as an unfriendly gesture."

Democracia praised Messersmith as "a great friend and authoritative observer."

El Laborista said that "what interests us is the unfriendly attitude assumed by those who terminated the functions of the distinguished North American ambassador in moments of profound historic importance for the world." It added that the Ambassador's "dismissal" produced "a bad taste in Argentina."

La Tribuna said Messersmith "performed a miracle in changing a hostile and difficult situation into a cordial and friendly one" during his service in Argentina. It added that the United States State Department's attitude was "frankly incomprehensible at this time," and that "the retirement appears an unfriendly act on the part of the United States."

Argentina's First Lady Leaves for Europe

Buenos Aires, June 6 (U.P.)—Argentina's first lady, Senora Eva Duarte de Peron, departed for Europe today on a trip believed without precedent for South American women.

Traveling as a private citizen and paying her own expenses, she will be received and decorated by Generalissimo Francisco Franco of Spain and will be the guest of high officials of Italy, the Vatican, Portugal, France, Britain and Brazil who will honor her as Argentina's unofficial ambassadress. She is making the trip on a Spanish Iberia airliner escorted by an Argentine plane.

Taft Claims Truman Policy Is to Blame for High Prices and labor issues which may later top prices as the 1948 theme.

He charged the President raised prices by:

1. Abandoning OPA control after Congress gave him power to regulate most prices.

2. Encouriging a pattern of general wage increases on the "unsound" theory they could be granted without price increases.

3. Fighting "every effort of the Congress to reduce Government expenses and taxes."

4. Vetoing the Case bill. By this and other actions he said the President "resisted the effort to curb the power of labor union leaders which meant higher wages for a very limited group of powerful unions, but increased costs for everybody else."

5. Making huge funds available through the International Bank, the International Fund, the British loan and many special loans "far beyond the proof of specific needs which I have always voted to meet."

It was this last point, stated otherwise in a recent news interview, that had touched off the President's attack on Taft.

Specifically, Mr. Truman had hit at Taft's statement that "apparently the President and the Administration are abandoning talk of keeping prices down in favor of heavy spending abroad that will keep them up."

The President said it was unthinkable that the United States abandon efforts toward "enduring world peace and freedom." He stressed that the added strain of the world situation made voluntary price reductions even more urgent.

Then he hit at the "economic implications" of Taft's statement. He accused Taft of saying "that the only way to bring prices down is to reduce the demand for goods."

Taft Denies Statement

Taft denied ever making the last statement. He said Mr. Truman is "attributing to me a lot of economic views on wages and prices which I have never expressed."

He added that "obviously, the soundest way to bring prices down is to increase productivity and otherwise decrease costs. Obviously, also, prices will come down if the supply is increased.

Text of Taft Reply to High Price Charges

Following is the text of a statement by Senator Taft (R., Ohio) replying to President Truman's charges that the Ohio Senator holds "fallacious and dangerous" economic views:

PRESIDENT TRUMAN issued a statement yesterday attributing to me a lot of economic views on wages and prices which I have never expressed. A full statement expressing my views, given out by me on April 28, was available to him and is set out below.

What I object to is the President's inconsistent talk about lowering prices, when every policy of his Administration has increased prices, and is still doing so.

1. The President was the one who vetoed the first OPA bill and then abandoned OPA centrol after Congress gave him full power to regulate most prices, including the price of all manufactured goods. Because we prohibited OPA prices below cost, he decided to take off every control. Apparently, if he was not allowed to bust, he proposed to boom.

2. The President encouraged a pattern of general wage increases all over the United States on the theory that they could be granted in all fields without price increases, a theory which his strongest supporters immediately found to be unsound.

3. The President has fought every effort of the Congress to reduce Government expenses and taxes. Taxes increase costs and increased costs inevitably mean higher prices.

4. By vetoing the Case bill, and otherwise, he has resisted the effort to curb the power of the labor union leaders which meant higher wages for a very limited group of powerful unions, but increased costs for everybody else.

5. Huge dollar funds have been made available through the International Bank, the International Fund, the British loan and many special loans, far beyond the proof of specific needs which I have always voted to meet. This has, of course, forced up the price of many basic materials, particularly when dispensed through stupid Government buying policies which have brought the Government into the market at the most inopportune moments. Now Administration supporters seem to be contemplating vast additional loans abroad.

HAVING created all the basic conditions which compel high prices, he blames businessmen, none of whom have any control over their costs boosted by the President's policies, and 90 per cent of whom have no control over the prices they can charge. He proposes to veto the law of supply and demand and avoid the results of his own policies by occasional grumbling at businessmen and high prices.

The President of the United States has quoted me as follows:

"The Senator states that the only way to bring prices down is to reduce the demand for goods."

Of course, I never made any such statement. Mr. President, when and where did I make that statement? Obviously, the soundest way to bring prices down is to increase productivity and otherwise decrease costs. Obviously also, prices will come down if the supply is increased. Obviously, also, increased demand will raise prices and nothing the President says is going to change the law of supply and demand. The best governmental policy to reduce prices is to cut Government expenses and cut taxes. The cutting of taxes increases the purchasing power of many millions more than do wage increases, and it does not increase costs; nor does it increase demand because it simply shifts purchasing power from Government spending to private spending. So let the President sign the tax bill.

LIKE the President, I would like to see a reduction in prices, but let us remember that the cost of living has only increased 58.5 per cent over prewar, whereas hourly wage earnings in manufacturing have increase 90 per cent, and weekly earnings have increased 100 per cent. While many prices should and probably will fall during the next six months, they do not present a major threat to prosperity if wages have increased even more than prices. The important thing is to have the right relationship.

The wholesale price index is now slightly below the index of three months ago. Prices somewhat higher than normal tend to increase production. We certainly should not force such a reduction of prices as to interfere with more production which is the ultimate solution. Mr. Truman recognizes this as to farm commodities when he argued for the farm support program on food, but he can see only evil in existing prices for manufactured goods. The President now admits that raw material prices are determined by the law of supply and demand but these are the prices which brought about the general increase. Since 1939, all commodities have gone up 97 per cent, food commodities alone about 190 per cent, whereas manufactured goods have only gone up 80 per cent in spite of the increase in the price of raw materials and wages. The general high level of prices is due substantially to the President's own policies.

Truman Joins War Buddies

to leave her mother's bedside was regarded as indicating genuine improvement in Mrs. Truman's condition. In addition, it was learned the President's mother was no longer under an oxygen tent, although a mask and oxygen flask were still in the sickroom.

While he was in Grandview Mr. Truman was elected an executive committeeman-at-large of the division association after his name had been accidentally erased from the slate and then hastily restored. The President was on the ticket brought in by the nominating committee which was discarded after protests from the floor that it contained the names of too many Missouri and Kansas men.

Just before the balloting it was discovered that the association was about to overlook its most prominent member and Mr. Truman was put back again with his residence changed from Independence, Mo., to Washington, D. C. He was unanimously elected.

Maj. Gen. Butler B. Miltonberger of Falls Church, Va., chief of the National Guard Bureau of the War Department, was elected national president. Miltonberger commanded an Infantry regiment in the division of World War II.

The President is scheduled to address the Thirty-fifth reunion tomorrow night.

Today he simply told them how glad he was to be among them again, among the men with whom he served in the First World War.

"I know," he said, "that I am going to enjoy the privilege of seeing as many of you as possible. Since it is not customary for a President to make two speeches at the same place, I won't say any more until tomorrow night."

General Eisenhower, introduced by Col. Mahlon S. Weed, president of the Thirty-fifth Division Association, stepped forward grinning amid a thunder of applause.

"I'm coming home, too," he said. "I've got just as much claim staked out to this city as the President has. And I'm just as proud of it as he is."

The tall Kansan sat down and Admiral Leahy was introduced.

"I thought I was going to escape making a speech," he said.

"I'd like to say that this is my second visit to this city, but I find I already have a lot of friends here. It is a great pleasure to come and an honor to be permitted to join with you in my small way."

St. Lo Mayor There

Among the crowd which greeted Mr. Truman at the airport were French Ambassador Henri Bonnet, Lieut. Gen. Maurice Mathenet, French Military Attache; Capt. Pierre Lancelot, Naval Attache; Col. William Bayton, Air Attache, and Georges-Pierre Lavalley, Mayor of the French town of St. Lo, where the Thirty-fifth went into action in World War II.

The President's motorcade drove to the auditorium through streets lined with people hanging from windows and gathered in small clusters at corners to wave a greeting to their famous fellow citizen. Cheering crowds met him at the auditorium.

When he walked into the stage, the veterans of his old division stood and whooped themselves hoarse, while those under the placard of the 129th Field Artillery practically took the place apart.

Democrat Split In California Laid to Pauley

By the United Press

Representative Chet Holifield (D., Calif.) yesterday accused Edwin W. Pauley, California National Democratic committeeman, of splitting the Democratic Party in California wide open.

He said there might be three different Democratic slates in the State in 1948.

Holifield charged in a House speech that Pauley influenced Secretary of the Treasury John W. Snyder and acting Democratic National Chairman Gael Sullivan to boycott a Jackson Day dinner in Los Angeles Thursday night.

Called "Gratuitous Insult"

Snyder explained Thursday that he was forced to cancel his appearance because of Mr. Truman's decision to hold his regular Cabinet meeting one day earlier than customary. The Cabinet reportedly discussed the pending tax reduction and labor bills.

Holifield told the House, however, that the "stupid political action" of Pauley, Sullivan and Snyder "gratuitously" insulted California Democrats, State Chairman James Roosevelt and Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, the third speaker of the evening.

"The excuse given by Mr. Pauley was that he disapproved of a tentative draft of policy of the State Democratic Committee, which mildly criticized the Truman doctrine," he said. He added that "the draft of policy had no connection with the Jackson Day dinner."

Sees Roosevelt on Ticket

In discussing the effects of the action, Holifield said that before the dinner, there were rumors that, in 1948, there would be two slates of Democrats in California—a Pauley ticket and a Wallace ticket.

But now, he said, there would undoubtedly be another ticket "headed by a Roosevelt, a name very potent in California."

"Such a development would, no doubt, put California in the Republican column in the presidential elections of 1948," he said. "If it occurs, the Republicans can thank Edwin W. Pauley, the man whose nomination for undersecretary of the Navy was rejected by the Senate of the United States."

Reds Reactivating Buchenwald, Is Charge

Munich, June 6 (AP).—Dr. Max Brauner, mayor of Hamburg, said tonight that Soviet authorities had reactivated Buchenwald as a concentration camp and that 800 members of the Social Democratic Party were held there on political charges.

Brauer asserted that the Social Democratic Party would seek license to function in the Soviet zone only "if personal freedom and the security of our members can be guaranteed."

for State offices were on the same ballots.

The county grand jury is now considering evidence concerning violations of the State law, but no Federal grand jury has yet been called.

FBI Was Called in

After the dynamiting and theft of the ballot boxes the Attorney General directed the FBI to make a "full examination" of the fraud charges to see if the Federal law was violated.

Under Federal law it is necessary to show that a conspiracy existed to deprive citizens of their lawful right to vote for Federal officials—in this case members of Congress.

Investigators for the Kansas City Star interviewed some 1400 voters and produced affidavits ranging from the voting of dead persons to instances of voters being turned away from the polls with the statement, "You've already voted."

Epidemic of 'Amnesia'

One affidavit sets forth the details of a curious epidemic of "amnesia" that struck voters as they approached the polls. The "amnesia" victims suddenly discovered that they had forgotten their names as they were about to register.

They bolted out the doors to return smiling in a few minutes with their memories "refreshed" by some watchers at the polls. Senators commented that such frequent and unusual "lapses of memory" at least gave rise to a suspicion that persons might be voting under false names and registrations.

One woman approached the judges and muttered "Margaret, Margaret—that's all I can remember." Wheeling, she did a 20-yard dash to the doors, and triumphantly returned exclaiming, "I'm Godspeed, I'm Godspeed—that's it—Margaret Godspeed."

The evidence gathered by the newspaper was turned over to the Justice Department.

The Attorney General ordered a limited investigation, instructing the FBI to interview two reporters from the Star and four election officials.

The FBI turned over its evidence, which it specifically noted was taken from the Kansas City Star files and represented no independent investigation by the FBI, to District Attorney Wear.

Wear digested the 365 pages of the FBI report into a 23 page memorandum which he then submitted to three Federal judges to determine whether a special grand jury should be called.

The judges, who testified yesterday, were Albert L. Reeves, father of the Congresman; John Caskie Collet, a friend of President Truman, and Albert L. Ridge.

They were agreed that it was a most unusual procedure for a district attorney to ask the judges if he had sufficient evidence for a grand jury probe.

The judges agreed that they had based their recommendation on Wear's summary. Although the FBI report was made available to them, they said, they did not read it. They said they had full confidence in District Attorney Wear.

Ferguson Queries

Hammering away at his point that the inquiry was whitewashed, Ferguson asked the judges if, had they been given all the facts in the preliminary FBI report, instead of just a summary, they would have ordered a Federal grand jury investigation.

Reeves said he thought he would have considered the evidence sufficient to warrant the grand jury probe. Ridge and Collet said they would have called for further investigation. All three were agreed that they thought the investigation was being continued, either by State or FBI officials.

All three judges said they had not known their decision not to call a grand jury would be cited by the Justice Department as a reason for not proceeding with the investigation.

Ferguson read a letter from Assistant Attorney General Theron L. Caudle to J. Edgar Hoover, written on January 6, 1947, directing that no further FBI investigation should be made. The letter referred to the opinion of the judges. All said they had not heard of this until the Senate hearings started.

Ferguson said he would submit a memorandum to the subcommittee Monday recommending a full-fledged investigation of whether or not the Attorney General properly performed his dutits.

Sen. Jenner Finds Much Fraud in W. Va. Election

By the United Press

Senator William E. Jenner (R., Ind.) said in Washington yesterday that last fall's West Virginia senatorial election—won by Senator Harley M. Kilgore (D.)—unquestionably was fraudulent in many, many respects."

Jenner is chairman of a Senate Rules Subcommittee investigating complaints of fraud filed by Tom Sweeney, the Wheeling Republican who lost to Kilgore by 3,534 votes.

Jenner told a reporter "so much evidence of fraud" has been uncovered in a spot-check of Raleigh and Kanawha Counties that the full committee will be asked to study the investigative report at once.

Cases of "vote buying" and "illegal voters voting" are involved, Jenner said.

Chief committee counsel, Jack W. Hardy made a report on the two-county check at a closed subcommittee session. As a result, Jenner said, the subcommittee decided to seek further instructions from the full committee.

Senate Passes Labor Bill

gard to the affect it will have upon him politically."

Pepper Protests Language

The debate preceding the vote was carried on principally by the bill's Democratic opponents. They argued mainly on technical changes made in the conference which, they said, would have the effect of weakening unions unfairly and beating down their bargaining strength.

Senator Pepper (D., Fla.) complained particularly of new language which he said would:

1. Permit employers to fire workers for union activity, but escape the charge of having committed an unfair labor practice.

2. Prevent employers' antiunion statements from being used against them as evidence, when they were charged with antiunion activities.

3. Hold unions responsible and subject to damage suits, for acts which they never authorized or encouraged.

4. Deny unions freedom of speech in political action and unfairly weaken the relative political strength of unions and corporations. The paragraph in the bill should be termed the "Political Insurance Section for the Republican Party," he said.

'Bill to Cheapen Labor'

He said the bill was designed to weaken the worker in his bargaining power with the management. It was "a bill to cheapen labor" and its effect would be "to drive wages down," Pepper declared.

Barkley took the position that the bill was much worse as it emerged from a conference than when passed by the Senate three weeks ago. He denounced in particular a provision declaring that despite the permission in the national bill for union shops, it would not supersede any prohibition against them in any State laws.

The whole legislative tradition, he argued, has been the other way around.

He argued also against a provision stating that a union shop could not be granted unless a majority of all employes "eligible" to vote favored it. The principle of plebiscites and elections, he maintained, has always been that the decision be made by the majority of those voting, regardless of how many were "eligible" to vote.

Senator Taft (R., Ohio), principal author of the bill and leader of the floor fight for it, denied that the technical changes would have the antilabor results ascribed to them. He promised to submit a statement showing the "mistakes" in interpretation of the bill's critics.

Ives Defends Measure

But the main burden of defense of the measure was left yesterday to Senator Ives (R., N. Y.).

Organized labor, he said, failed to offer any help whatsoever to the legislators who drafted the bill and therefore "have no right to complain too bitterly about the legislation they are getting. They had their chance, they didn't come through."

The bill "goes down the middle" and will not destroy or weaken legitimate union activities, he said. It is not a "perfect" measure, he declared, but should be voted for because it contains necessary corrections of abuses in the Wagner Act. It would have been impossible to have written legislation every provision of which would have been approved by everyone, he concluded.

Barkley snapped, "I am not required by my own conscience or by the situation to vote for a bill the majority of whose provisions are objectionable," in order to get other provisions that are desirable.

2 Ford Foremen Beaten

Detroit, June 6 (AP).—Two working foremen were reported beaten in separate disturbances today at the Ford Motor Co.'s Rouge plant, scene of a 17-day-old strike of 3800 foremen.

Police took four men into custody but released them when, officers said, they could not be identified as assailants. The Dearborn police headquarters said there would be an investigation.

A fracas at the Rouge plant yesterday also led to injuries to a foreman. Non-striking production workers were said to have been involved in all three incidents.

In another auto industry labor dispute 600 office workers at the Hudson Motor Car Co. walked off their jobs during wage negotiations.

Hudson at the same time laid off 11,000 production workers until Monday, blaming a steel shortage.

Handbills announcing gladiatorial shows in ancient Rome were posted on public buildings and sold in the streets, according to the Encyclopedia Britannica.

Brief Walkout Alarms N. Y. Straphangers

New York, June 6 (U.P.).—More than 1000 transit workers staged a one-hour walkout today and tonight the threat of a city-wide subway stoppage hung heavily over over New York's six million straphangers.

Michael J. Quill, president of the CIO Transport Workers Union and a New York City councilman, had threatened a stoppage of the subways either today or over the week-end.

When the thousand-odd inspectors and repairmen at the 147th st. shops threw down their tools at 10:30 a. m., it appeared the walkout had begun. But they went back to work one hour and 15 minutes later.

A minor flurry of fist-fighting marked the walkout and subway police were rushed to the shop, but there was no major violence.

Meanwhile the creeping paralysis which has shackled the subways for 10 days spread to trolleys and buses in Brooklyn. TWU leaders said the same slowdown methods used on the subways were in force in Brooklyn with motormen and drivers abiding by ancient rules which include such instructions as 10-mile speed limits on curves.

Flour Mills Shut Down

Buffalo, N. Y., June 5 (AP).—Three Buffalo flour mills shut down tonight and the closing of at least three others was imminent as a strike of grain shovelers at all 20 of the city's waterfront grain elevators choked off supplies.

A spokesman for the industry in this leading flour milling center of the Nation said the situation was "very serious" and forecast the idling of at least 3100 waterfront workers by tomorrow.

Teamsters to Strike

St. Paul, Minn., June 5 (AP).—Bernard L. Simmer, area committee chairman for the AFL Teamsters International Union, said tonight that group had authorized a strike by 600 drivers and inside workers employed by the Gamble-Robinson Co., fruit wholesalers, over a five-State area.

Simmer said the strike would affect operations of the firm in Minnesota, Iowa, Wisconsin and the Dakotas.

14.7 Cent Raise Granted

Philadelphia, June 5 (AP).—The long-standing wage dispute between the Campbell Soup Co. and its 9000 workers in Chicago and Camden, N. J., was settled late tonight with a 14.7 cent per hour increase, a Federal official announced.

Peter J. Manno, commissioner of the United States Conciliation Service in this area, said "This is the highest wage package in the canning industry. The threatened stoppage of work involved over 9000 employes, and approximately 3000 farmers with millions of dollars of tomatoes."

The union involved is the Food, Tobacco, Agricultural and Allied Workers (CIO).

37 Guerillas Killed By Greek Gendarmerie

Athens, June 6 (U.P.).—The Ministry of Public Order announced today that guerillas attacked a column of gendarmerie in the Peloponnese yesterday on the road between Tripolis and Sparta, resulting in a six-hour battle.

Premature Politics

The Truman-Taft bout plunges us into the middle of 1948—a year too soon. Until these outbursts of partisan criticism were unloosed, the passions of politics had been reasonably well curbed. Congress had kept its nose pretty close to the grindstone, and the President had kept his advice and comments well above the partisan level. Perhaps it is too much to expect this fair degree of cooperation to continue, yet it is clear enough that the national interest demands its continuation for the present and that neither of the participants in the present scrap is likely to get any kudos out of it.

Senator Taft is undoubtedly responsible for starting the wrangle by unfairly scrambling the Administration's separate policies of aiding world recovery and of trying to bring down domestic prices. But his crack would have been noticed by but a comparatively few people if President Truman had not read to his press conference a detailed reply. Nor was the President content to correct Senator Taft. His statement, as we pointed out yesterday, swept far beyond that purpose and did a little smearing of its own. Now Senator Taft has swung another haymaker in the direction of the White House. Just by way of showing that he is enjoying it, the Senator asks Mr. Truman to reply again—to state specifically when and where he (Taft) made the statement that the President attributed to him. Should the President choose to reply, this sort of partisan bickering could go on indefinitely to the serious detriment of getting legislation in the public interest passed and signed.

Perhaps most serious of all is the tendency to drag into partisan debate the policy of aiding Europe in its recovery. To our way of thinking the essential rehabilitation of Europe is no more a partisan issue than was the war itself. Our help in laying the foundation for a secure peace will be imperative regardless of which party is in power. For that reason it seems incredibly short-sighted for leaders of either party to base a partisan attack upon the aid that is being given to our former allies. Merely to establish partisan differences on this issue would be to destroy the effectiveness of our policy, for nations struggling back toward a new basis of stability cannot afford to rely upon a program that may be quickly overturned with victory at the polls for the opposition party in the United States. Surely, in these circumstances, the question ought not to be who can roll the best mud balls, but who is taking the most statesmanlike attitude toward the major problems of our day. We should not be at all surprised if the voters themselves draw a distinction along this line, and the outcome will not be a happy one for those who have let their larger duty be obscured by the political impulses of the moment.

Budget Brides

Many of this June's brides, we hear, are being preceded to the altar by only two to four bridesmaids, rather than the six to 12 deemed necessary when wartime weddings were at their height of pageantry. Many bridal shops also are emphasizing outfits for the "budget bride." One Chicago firm gave as a door prize at its bridal fashion show a "kitchen trousseau" of pots and pans. Thus brides seem to be falling in with the rising mood of thrift and caution.

While the formal ceremonial wedding still holds its popularity, yet the high cost of living has trimmed its sails. Since it costs a girl about $100 to be a bridesmaid, according to wedding outfitters' estimates, many brides are hesitant to ask their friends to spend so much, now that other more urgent expenses are eating up pay checks and allowances. Also recession talk has injected restraint into wedding plans. In some cities marriages are reported down from last year when the all-time American record was made. This was to be expected, as the bulk of unmarried servicemen, most of them eager to head for the altar, returned in 1946. Many of the less impetuous are reported now to be holding up wedding plans because of the scarcity of housing.

There is plenty of marrying going on, however; indeed, it is quite a boom. Some statisticians who explain everything by cycles have discovered an 18 1-3-year cycle in marriages. They say we are now on the down grade from the peak of that cycle. Economists see the budget bride as a warning that the wartime attitude of grabbing at romance (or "life") in a dauntless and dramatic manner is ending, and that practical considerations will increasingly bridle love. They point out that marriages show a tendency to boom when the stock market does, to decline when it falls, and that the outlook just now isn't too bullish for the wedding business. If this is true, then apparently love, which has the daring to flout the uncertainties and dangers of war, is not so venturesome before the drab prospects of living with in-laws and stretching income to meet inflationary grocery bills.

Reconstruction Steps

There is a certain coyness on both sides of the Atlantic toward the job of taking the initiative in the matter of an over-all scheme of specific European reconstruction. Secretary Marshall says the sponsorship rightly belongs to a European group. The British still insist that the leadership should be American. Indeed, British comment seems to have totally misconceived what is in Administration minds. There is, of course, a welcome for Secretary Marshall's statesmanship, but it is said there will be diplomatic soundings in Washington. The sounders, however, will no doubt be told that the first move must be made in European capitals, with a view to developing some general scheme, based on concrete projects of benefit to more than one country.

In our opinion, the focal capital in relation to the next move is in Paris. France alone has shown the disposition—on paper, at any rate—to grasp the need as America envisages it—the need, that is to say, to tackle recovery through key projects. The evidence lies in the Monnet Plan (named after Jean Monnet), which was inspired by General de Gaulle and accepted by the Blum government early this year. The Monnet Plan has been prevented from coming into effect by the political crisis in France. It is harsh medicine, but nothing less can restore France, and, in addition, put her in the way of achieving her old prosperity and influence. However, the plan is neither nationalistic nor self-sufficient. It is dependent, for instance, upon a close tie with the coal-bearing Ruhr, which, in French eyes, should be run internationally. In our view, expressed at the time the plan was published, the scheme "could be the economic instrument for the kind of nonexclusive federation that the politicians know is necessary but yet cannot summon up the statesmanship to achieve."

Of late there has been much coming and going between London and Paris on the part of M. Monnet. Is it not possible, with the encouragement that has now come from Secretary Marshall, for M. Monnet to be asked to stretch his plan and make it more comprehensive? No Frenchman is held in more regard in Britain than M. Monnet, for he has served the British on more than one occasion in war tasks, particularly after the fall of France. That his scheme might be the nucleus of a continental plan may appeal to M. Monnet himself as a good European, especially in view of the fact that his countrymen are hesitant over putting it into effect at home. The palatability of the medicine would be supplied by effort in common and the prospect of American aid.

What strikes us most favorably about the Monnet Plan is that the plan is aimed throughout at more production. The French planner would jack up France's food problem through use of French cooperatives and through modern machine farming. This approach as we said yesterday, is what Europe needs. More production, not more dollars per se, is the heart of the European problem as the United States sees it. Moreover, our officials seem to share the Monnet approach on timing. The Frenchman aims at more production speedily; in other words, the problem in economic Europe is regarded as a short-run problem.

In England neither the emphasis nor the timing of its economic program is a la Monnet. There they are concentrating on reform at the expense of recovery, with a view to promoting a social welfare state for their children's children. But recovery must come first if Europe is to be saved. If the British were inspired by the Marshall speech to put M. Monnet to work in behalf of both Britain and France, and enroll that other good European, Premier Spaak of Belgium, in their undertaking, there is some likelihood of a good reception in Washington for the result.

Foreign Aid And Taxes

The fate of the tax reduction bill and the Administration's foreign-aid program are intimately connected. For if the President were to sign the tax bill, surpluses that would otherwise be available to finance foreign countries would be applied to tax reduction. Strangely enough, with a few notable exceptions, neither the friends nor the foes of tax reduction have been disposed to emphasize the obstacles to a foreign-aid program that would undoubtedly result from a lowering of taxes at this juncture. No mention was made of the tabooed subject in the Taft-Truman interchange discussing the price-raising effect of foreign loans. Yet, as we have previously stated, the most cogent argument that can be advanced against immediate tax reduction is the certainty that large Government expenditures will undoubtedly be needed to implement the Administration's foreign policy.

No doubt the issue has been soft-pedaled for tactical reasons. The advocates of tax reduction have hesitated to raise the question of the unbudgeted costs of foreign relief for fear it would alienate some of their supporters. The Administration has shied away from stressing the fiscal effect of these future outlays for fear that it would strengthen opposition to specific foreign aid proposals for which funds had been requested. These ostrich-like tactics have now ceased to serve any purpose. The tax reduction bill will soon reach the President, and we do not doubt that the threat to the foreign relief program implicit in the tax reduction bill will weigh heavily in the balance against it.

Presidential Language

To some future historian the juxtaposition in President Truman's Thursday press conference of Hungary and Argentina may be a trifle ironical. The President went overboard on both counts.

To be sure, the coup in Hungary is "terrible" and an "outrage." But, while we agree with presidential expressions of righteous indignation, what is of official concern is the gravity of the situation in Hungary, and gravity can be expressed with less hysteria. By his language the obviously exasperated President gave the impression that we would withdraw diplomatic recognition from the Budapest regime—a thoroughly discredited procedure. Similarly there was no need to imply that the slate with Argentina is entirely clean, as did the President in saying without reservation that we are on friendly terms with Argentina. Even if he wished to pave the way for a large-scale transfer to Buenos Aires of our surplus arms, black cannot become white on a mere say-so, and the language could well have been more cautionary.

The President, it seems to us, might have reminded Argentina that, as President Wilson put it, friendship between nations requires machinery. In this case it is the inter-American system and the United Nations. For both agencies Argentina's loyalty still has to be proved. Doubtless, as a result of the work of Braden and Ambassador Messersmith (whose disagreement was basically one of pace), there has been compliance with the pledges contained in the Act of Chapultepec. But there is also a little matter of compliance with Argentina's pledges to the United Nations. To Argentina belongs the dubious honor of being the first country to flout the United Nations. As the world's envoys, carrying out the U. N. verdict to withdraw diplomatic recognition of Franco, left Madrid, Argentina's envoy moved in. He is still there.

Unreconstructed

The military phase of the Civil War ended with the surrender of the Confederacy 82 years ago. The postwar recrimination and bitterness lasted, say, another 50 years. Apparently there is now a third phase, which may be briefly termed the who-struck-John aspect. We had thought that the story of Abraham Lincoln's efforts to preserve the Union was secure in the history books. But now comes Prof. Charles C. Tansill of Georgetown University to contradict this with the theory that Lincoln actually "tricked" the South into the war. Dr. Tansill, it seems, is to be classified with the most unreconstructed of the war's descendants. With a forthrightness that would do credit to a plantation owner of the 1850s, he places the responsibility for the war squarely on the shoulders of Lincoln, who, he says, used "dubious intrigue" to induce the Confederate forces to attack Fort Sumter. The real "ideal" for freedom-seeking peoples, he adds, is Jefferson Davis.

It is perhaps significant that Dr. Tansill's charges did not evoke unanimous enthusiasm from his predominantly Southern audience at the Capitol on Monday. Several leaders of groups assembled to pay homage to Jefferson Davis disavowed Dr. Tansill's remarks as being too hard on Lincoln. That illustrates one of the curious anomalies remaining from the War Between the States. Despite his position as the leader of the North, Lincoln is widely honored in the South, and the observation is frequently made that had Lincoln lived the excesses of Reconstruction never would have occurred. Whether there is substance to Dr. Tansill's contentions is something for historians to ponder, though the charges are faintly reminiscent of the fantastic argument that Franklin Roosevelt deliberately provoked the Japanese attack at Pearl Harbor. At any rate, it is refreshing that such beliefs can be advanced without partisans of either side rushing to their pistols to protect their honor. As for the argumentative phase of the Civil War, doubtless it will project far into the hereafter, and if there are any veterans of the Alexandrian or Punic Wars still hanging around in the shades, they'll probably join the debate.

ONLY IN SOUND

Even a barmaid has eyes to see how flesh is turned,
The fine nose, the kissable mouth will have their due.
But who are you, Beethoven of the rock head,
Schubert, little man with the beetle brows,
who are you to hold the roving glance?

No chance, my boys. Give the trim flesh its way, and march yourselves back home where you belong.
Let the dammed up fury burst its bounds into the world of sound where all flesh turns alike. Flood out the anger and the hurt, sing for yourselves the love song time will listen to, thinking of someone else, my boys, not you,
not you.

Restrictive Covenants

We believe that Judge Henry W. Edgerton, associate justice of the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia should be congratulated for his splendid dissenting opinion in the recent case, Hurd et al. v. Hodge et al., in which the majority of that court upheld racial restrictive covenants in deeds to property in the District of Columbia.

We do not presume to pass judgment on the relative merits of the technical legal arguments involved. What greatly impressed us in Judge Edgerton's opinion is his recognition of the importance of considering the devastating social consequences of the segregation policy. We are in full accord with his belief that this policy is one of "our conspicuous failures to live together in peace." And that failure, like other more spectacular failures to live in peace, does as much damage, spiritually and economically, to the alleged beneficiaries of the discrimination as it does to the victims.

It is altogether unfortunate that some of our courts should affirmatively support and enforce racial discrimination. They thereby render extremely difficult the imperative duty of our democracy to abolish such discrimination. The majority in the Hurd case justified its decision on the basis of past precedents of the same court. But the dead hand of the past is, at best, an unsafe guide for the solution of live and dynamic problems of the present. It is our understanding, furthermore, that even judicial decisions are not immune from revisitation and reexamination in the light of new experience and broader understanding. Mr. Justice Field once declared:

"It is more imperative that the court should be right on later and more elaborate considerations of the cases than consistent with previous declarations. Those doctrines only will eventually stand which bear the strictest examination and the test of experience."

It is the earnest hope of the Washington chapter, Americans for Democratic Action, that Judge Edgerton's courage and insight will soon effect a change in the attitude of his court on the subject of racial restrictive covenants.

Federal Retirement

There has been so much written and published concerning the Langer-Chavez civil service retirement bill and its companion measure, the Stevenson bill H. R. 3232, by persons who are completely uninformed on its provisions and who have never even read the bill, that I should like to clarify some of the prevalent misconceptions.

For instance, one of your columnists gave wide publicity to the testimony of a spinster named Wright who appeared as a witness before the Senate Civil Service Committee several weeks ago to protest "on behalf of the thousands of old-maids in the Government" the increasing of the retirement deduction from 5 per cent to 6 per cent in order to provide benefits for the survivors of their married fellowworkers.

Any married person who elects to avail himself of the survivor's benefits must agree to receive 90 per cent, 85 per cent, 75 per cent, or 70 per cent of his annuity instead of drawing the full amount during his lifetime, depending upon how much younger his wife is than himself. The reason for this scarcely needs explanation. Furthermore, after his death the widow (or survivor) would draw one half the amount that was drawn by the descendant.

Since under the provisions of the bill the spinster would receive at least $300 more upon retirement than she would under the present retirement act, her increased donation of 1 per cent of her salary to the fund is in payment for the benefits accruing to her alone. In other words, she is paying for her own increased benefits and not for her married fellow workers'.

It is believed that the Civil Service Commission and the sponsors of the bills are correct in their contention that increasing the deduction from the employes salaries by 1 per cent, and decreasing the interest paid from 4 per cent to 3 per cent on monies withdrawn from the retirement fund, will pay for the cost of the bill. In addition to this many would be induced to retire earlier than planned due to the liberalized features of the bill. Many of these vacancies would either not be filled, or if filled, the persons would be replaced by employes at a lesser salary, which would offset much of the cost.

The high cost of the bill is evidently arrived at by the fantastical assumption of the actuaries that everyone having had 10 years of service and having arrived at the age of 50 or 55 would hasten to retire. Such a basis for computation of the cost is too absurd for discussion.

Feeding Our Enemies

H. L. H. advocates in his letter of June 4 that since he believes Germany and Japan would not feed us if the had won the war, we should therefore now let them starve.

The proverb is that we should do unto others as we would have them do unto us—not as they have done unto us or might do.

Wooly Anomaly

Last year, in connection with the congressional debate on the extension of OPA, there were loud and plentiful denunciations of Government control over prices as a diabolical, communistic plot the sole purpose of which was to overthrow our free enterprise system. Now Congress has passed a bill rigidly controlling the price of wool. The principle of price control for this commodity was not at all subject to question, merely the method whereby such control shall be exercised.

Would some member of Congress who voted against the extension of OPA and for the Government control of wool at 42 cents kindly explain to me how OPA price control in the consumers' interest undermined our free enterprise system, while Government control of prices for the benefit of the wool growers and contrary to the consumers' interest supports our free enterprise system?

I was interested in the discussion in The Post of June 4 regarding the left-handed plow pictured in the Department of Agriculture's seal. A note was made that the left-handed plow was used about 50 years ago in Maryland and Virginia but not in other States.

I was born and raised on a farm in Licking County, Ohio, and grew up with left-handed plows. I never saw a right-handed plow until my father and I migrated to New York State in 1919. My father remarked at that time that it was his first experience in plowing with a right-handed plow—the type in general use there.

My father was born in 1861 and I've often heard him remark that he started plowing at 9 years of age. That would make the left-handed plow in general use in Ohio at least as far back as 1870, and I am of the opinion it was always in use there.

Washington Property Taxes

The proposal of the House District Fiscal Subcommittee to increase the real estate tax rate from $1.75 to $2 in order to make up the deficit facing the District Government on July 1 is another case of soaking the property holder. Real estate assessments for the coming year have already been increased almost 15 per cent. Householders will have a 20 per cent rise in their tax bill covering improvements. If the rate is increased from $1.75 to $2, it means that the very same people who already are about to pay 15 per cent more in real estate taxes must pay an additional 14 per cent.

Congressman Bates, cochairman of the Special Committee on Tax Revision for the District, has stated that Washington pays less real estate taxes than any comparable Eastern city. This is true and, because our real estate taxes have not been as high as other cities, the District Government has always been sound financially.

This is something that cannot be said for Philadelphia, which recently had to mortgage the gas works in order to meet the payroll, or Boston, where the real estate tax is so high that almost all building in the city itself has ceased for a decade or more. Incidentally, in that city, until very recently the average sale price of property was 15 to 20 per cent below the assessment, whereas in outlying towns, where real estate taxes are less, property was selling for 10 per cent to 20 per cent more than the assessed values.

At the present time real estate taxpayers are paying almost 50 per cent of all the money raised for the general fund. A further increase in taxes presages disaster. What has happened to other towns might happen to Washington: blight, decentralization, people moving into the suburbs, collapse in property values, reduced revenues, and eventually financial catastrophe for the city. Building is already declining in Washington, and mounting in nearby Maryland and Virginia.

There was a time when real estate was the principal source of income of a community. That ended many, many years ago. According to an estimate made by the Department of Commerce, the income of District residents for 1945 was $1,617,000,000. Today it is undoubtedly higher. The assessed value of real estate subject to taxation is approximately $1,652,000,000.

If all this property earned 10 per cent of its value, and, of course, this is a very high figure, it would produce only 156 million dollars, or less than one tenth of the total income of District residents. Yet, those who have less than one tenth of current income are paying almost 50 per cent of the total cost of operating the general government of the District of Columbia. With the increased assessments and the proposed rate of $2, these comparatively few people—only 88,000 in number—will be bearing more than one half the cost of operating our government.

Washington seems on the road—followed by so many American cities—to eventual financial disaster. That road is paved with excessive, unsound, unfair and, incidentally, unrealistic property taxes.

Factory-Home Tug of War

By Malvina Lindsay

Double Job Question

A FEW OMINOUS rumors of slackening jobs for women are being heard in America. But throughout most of the rest of the world, war-wearied wives, longing for the sheltered life, are facing calls to return to the factory.

In England this call has stirred wide controversary. Many tired British women, who made great sacrifices in wartime, and who are still making them, feel that if they return to industry they should have equal pay with men. But the government, while admitting the justness of this principle, says such a move would be inflationary. Women reply that money in their pockets would be no more inflationary than in men's.

Dr. Crick, Bishop of Chester, started further argument when he protested the return of mothers to industry. Such would cause deterioration of home life, he declared, and was "unworthy of our tradition and un-Christian." To get more production he intimated that men might work a little harder—at least that a halt could be called to reduction of their working hours.

Dr. Edith Summerskill of the Ministry of Food, insisted that only those women were being asked to return to industry who could do so without neglecting their homes. Other government leaders have been appealing to married women to come to the aid of their country in its production crisis, to help provide the goods that will boost the export trade and raise standards of living in England.

MEANWHILE in Paris a woman's congress met recently to combat what it called a trend to put women in the factory instead of the home. Honorary chairmen were Mme. Vincent Auriol, wife of the French President, and Mme. Chiang Kai-shek. The Feminine Social and Civic Union which sponsored the meeting is urging governments to make it possible by means of bonuses and family allowances for wives to stay home and contribute to family life.

Yet war-devastated nations need women in industry to help provide urgently needed goods for rehabilitation and trade. That is especially true of those countries that lost a high proportion of their men. Some European nations are seeking information from American industrialists of ways to attract women to factory work.

Carrying on a double job in factory or home is generally harder for a British or European woman than an American one. Here, electrical equipment and prepared foods make housekeeping easier, and now there is not the long-standing in queues at market that foreign women still undergo. However, American women have exacting standards of homemaking to meet and frequently face more intangible family demands than foreign women.

RUSSIAN WOMEN to a large extent take the double job for granted. In the Russian zone in Germany wives of the occupying forces generally are employed (nursing mothers for only six hours a day). These Soviet women are frankly puzzled by the word "dependent," commonly used for an American wife in Germany.

War's end brought to women generally a longing to retire to domesticity. The age-old feminine dream of a family dovecote remote from the world's strife and problems was made doubly alluring by the coming of the atom bomb and the bogies of peace. But the fulfillment of this dream has met many obstacles—shortage of men to do the factory work, world-wide scarcity of houses, demands of reconstruction, need of exports, inflation and the high cost of living.

Even in this country about 15½ million women are still employed outside the home—which is about four million less that at the peak of wartime production. While the long range trend is for women everywhere, including wives and mothers, to work increasingly outside the home, yet the double job is not easy under the best conditions. For exhausted British and European wives, with their lack of domestic conveniences, even of adequate food, it is a back-breaking hardship. The least that could be done to ease it would be to give them equal pay with men for equal work.

Undemocratic Tax Cut

Most modern tax legislation has been framed in such a manner as to bear most heavily on those with the greatest incomes, it being presumed that those who make the most money should contribute most heavily to the Government that serves and protects them. The Republican tax measure just passed by Congress is in direct contravention of this principle.

Figures published in The Post of May 29 indicate that under the Republican bill the average wage earner with an income of $2500 would get tax relief amounting to $28.50 a year or about 1.1 per cent of his annual income. The man who earns $3500 a year would receive tax relief up to 1.6 per cent of his income.

For those who earn $10,000 the tax relief would amount to about 3 per cent. Those earning $25,000 a year would be aided to the extent of 5.5 per cent of their income. It is only when incomes reach $50,000 that the Republican bill provides really substantial aid amounting to 9.6 per cent of the above income. The $100,000 income boys are the ones who really hit the jack pot. They get tax relief of over $11,720, nearly 11.8 per cent.

Mr. Truman may not veto the tax bill, but if he does veto it he will be vetoing one of the most undemocratic measures to pass Congress in several decades.

Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

Another Finest Hour

THE PRIME Minister, Mr. Attlee, and the Viceroy, Lord Mountbatten, have done a service to all mankind by showing what statesmen can do, not with force or with money, but with lucidity, reason, imagination, resolution, sincerity, and good will. The world needed desperately a demonstration of this kind to renew men's faith in the power of the human spirit.

Lippmann

IT WILL BE said, I know, that it is too soon to say such things, that we must wait and see, and that the troubles of India are just beginning. All that is, I submit, beside the point. Mr. Attlee does not profess to have solved the problems of India. He has, on the contrary, accepted wholly, without reservation or equivocation, the principle and the fact that the problems of India cannot be solved by British statesmen, that they must be solved by the Indians.

What Mr. Attlee set himself to do was to solve the British problem in India, which was how to liquidate the empire and transfer its authority to the Indians. As far as Britain is concerned, he has solved this problem. It is not, I think, premature to say that he has solved it. For having gotten the recognized leaders of India to agree on the time and the terms of the transfer of authority, on when the British empire in India is to end and who in India are to be its successors, the problems of India become the sole responsibility of the Indians.

THE PRIME Minister and the Viceroy have succeeded because they saw clearly what they wanted. They did not make British withdrawal depend on an agreement among the Indians on the constitutional structure of India or on its international position. If they had, they would never have withdrawn, and, as all the factions of India would have sought to exploit their presence, there would never have been agreement among the Indians.

All that Mr. Attlee sought was agreement among the Indians as to who would take over authority when the British withdrew. The fact that they really meant to withdraw, and that they meant to do so very soon, left the Indian factions with the choice of agreeing to let the Hindus take over where they predominate, the Moslems where they predominate, or of promoting a civil war of conquest. Mr. Attlee did not partition India. He got the Indians to agree to let those Indians who are the de facto rulers, wherever they happen to be, take over the power that Britain is relinquishing.

HE INSISTED not on the unity of India, or on the democratization of India, or on anything else but that the Indians who actually rule the various parts of India should severally and jointly accept independence from Great Britain. They have struggled for independence. Mr. Attlee has not merely granted it. He has insisted that they accept it, so to speak unconditionally, in the sense that Britain is free of any commitment to give power to any Indian anywhere where he does not in fact already possess it.

Thus Mr. Attlee has observed both the principles of national liberty and the realities of power, and has used them to reinforce each other. They are usually at odds in this world except at those rare moments in history when men have been able to rise to great statesmanship, and to resolve problems that to their lower natures and meaner minds are forever insoluble.

PERHAPS BRITAIN'S finest hours are not in the past. Certainly this performance is not the work of a decadent people. This, on the contrary, is a work of political genius requiring the ripest wisdom and the freshest vigor, and it is done with an elegance and a style that will compel and will receive an instinctive respect throughout the civilized world.

Off The Record

Washington Calling

By Marquis Childs

Treasury and Chiselers

THE BUREAU of Internal Revenue is looking into what may be a sizable loophole in our antiquated, overgrown Federal tax structure. It is also the channel through which tax-exempt money is sluiced into leftist political organizations on a scale that may be surprisingly large.

Childs

From a political point of view, the current inquiry cuts both ways. It is also aimed at certain so-called foundations into which great wealth has been put. The Treasury wants to know whether the tax-exempt income from these foundations is actually going for educational-charitable purposes or whether the foundations are a cloak for private ownership and control.

Several foundations operate large manufacturing concerns. Most of the shares in the Ford Motor Co. were left by the late Henry Ford to a foundation.

The provision in the law granting tax exemption to educational and charitable foundations says the money shall not be spent for political purposes. At least that is what the lawmakers intended to say. But the language is so broad that it can mean what a given court interprets it to mean.

It says that "no substantial portion" of the funds from the foundation shall be used to influence the Legislature or to carry on propaganda. That is a door half open, and a clever lawyer can help his client to slip through it.

THERE HAS been speculation for some time on the source of generous sums spent by fellow-traveling organizations. They buy full-page advertisements in the newspapers, and in many instances they make large political contributions on an off-record basis in order to try to swing critical elections. In one congressional district last fall, at least $50,000 is said to have been sent in from outside, a large part of it from organizations with high-sounding political names.

With income-tax rates at the present high level, it has been difficult to get political contributions, which under law are not tax exempt. But if the contributor is shown how to channel his donation through a tax-exempt foundation, then he may loosen up.

One of the big sources of left-wing money has been Hollywood, where some stars and some highly paid writers feel the pangs of conscience and seek to quiet them by signing handsome checks. The Treasury is examining certain movie returns to determine whether large claimed exemptions are in violation of the law.

Now and then the Bureau of Internal Revenue revokes the tax-exempt privilege. An organization known as PAC for Palestine bought paid advertisements urging Congress to defeat the British loan when the loan was before Congress. This seemed to be contrary to the law and the tax-exempt privilege was revoked.

There are at least a half million tax-exempt organizations. This includes every local of a trade union. It includes the income from rental-producing properties owned by some unions. It includes religious organizations. At least 10,000 tax-exempt foundations are approved by the Treasury and the number may be nearer 15,000.

EVIDENCE is accumulating to show that business concerns are stretching the law, and the Treasury means to find out if they have broken it. In one large Eastern city, several department stores sold the buildings they occupied to universities.

Property values had deteriorated and they could claim an outright capital loss. Then they signed a 99-year lease with the university to occupy the building as they had always done. The university did not, of course, need to charge a high rent since the rental from the building, as received by an educational institution, is not taxable. This may have been all perfectly legal but the Treasury wants to make sure of it.

In the process of cutting off the budgetary nose to spite the Democratic face, the Republicans in the House slashed the appropriation of the Bureau of Internal Revenue by 25 million dollars. Audit of the vast number of wartime income-tax returns had already been spread dangerously thin. A Senate committee restored 20 million dollars of the cut.

If the funds for the bureau are cut very much under the level for the current year, it will be an invitation to the chiselers to forget the law. Such a cut is likely to mean a net loss to the Government, for the bureau in the past has run up a remarkable record of collecting from tax evaders a lot more than it spent on the collection process.

And Now What?

By Barnet Nover

The U. S. And Argentina

IT WAS NOT a very happy coincidence that the White House announcement regarding the resignation of Spruille Braden as Assistant Secretary of State was given out on June 4.

NOVER

For symbolic reasons, the timing could not have been worse. June 4 happened to be the fourth anniversary of the putsch which unseated the unsavory Castillo regime and set up and even more unsavory pro-Axis military dictatorship in Argentina.

June 4 was the first anniversary of the Peron government, the nearest thing to a Nazi-Fascist regime ever to be established in the Western Hemisphere.

Thus, to have chosen June 4 as the day to announce the impending departure from the Government of the fighting democrat whom Peron hates beyond all others, was to go very far out of the way to inflate the already highly inflated ego of the Argentine dictator.

AT THE PRESS conference the next day, President Truman stated that since the mission of George S. Messersmith as Ambassador to the Argentine has been completed, his resignation has been accepted. The United States, said the Chief Executive, is now on friendly terms with Argentina.

What this means is that the bill we long ago presented to Argentina has been paid. In the name of hemisphere unity we are now willing to wipe the slate clean and start afresh so far as United States-Argentina relations are concerned.

In other words, we have now forgiven Argentina for her many past sins of omission and commission. We are prepared to draw the curtain on her refusal, until the fifty-ninth minute of the eleventh hour, to carry out the spirit of the Rio resolution of 1942 and break with the Axis. We are no longer going to hold against the Peron regime its cynical and dilatory attitude toward the obligations Argentina assumed as a signatory of the Act of Chapultepec.

Spruille Braden can take comfort in the fact that, however belatedly, Argentina did finally comply with the bulk of this country's demands regarding the elimination of Axis elements in the Southern republic.

BUT WHERE DO we go from here?

Now that Argentina is once again a member in good standing of the New World brotherhood, the path has been cleared for the long-delayed conference whose purpose it will be to set up a system of hemisphere defense.

In line with that impending development, President Truman recently asked Congress to pass legislation permitting the military collaboration of the United States with the other American republics.

At a time when the world is in an extraordinarily disturbed state, the banding together of the nations of the New World in one harmonious and well-integrated defense system seems, on the face of it, a necessary development.

It would be foolish not to recognize, however, that there are dangers as well as advantages in such a system. A great deal depends on what the United States itself does.

IN HIS message to Congress, President Truman made this significant observation:

"Operations under the proposed legislation will be conducted with full and constant awareness that no encouragement should be given to the imposition upon other people of any useless burden of armaments which would handicap the economic improvement which all countries so strongly desire. The execution of the program authorized by the bill will also be guided by a determination to guard against placing weapons of war in the hands of any groups who may use them to oppose the peaceful and democratic principles to which the United States and other American nations have so often subscribed."

AS A REMINDER of how very real are the dangers which, according to President Truman, we intend to guard against there is the case of Nicaragua. The same newspapers that carried stories of the President's message to Congress also told of the coup d'etat carried out in that Central American republic by Gen. Anastasio Somoza.

And many will also ask whether, once General Peron is provided with the newer and more modern military equipment than the Argentine army now possesses, his zeal for those "peaceful and democratic" principles President Truman mentioned in his message will grow.

Unfortunately, there is nothing in his past record to suggest anything of the kind.

20 to 50 Years of Tutelage Held Vital to Japan's Recovery

(The last of a series.)

By A. T. Steele

Copyright by New York Tribune, Inc.

Tokyo.—History's verdict on the "MacArthur Era" in Japan is still to be written. Not for many years will it be known how lasting are the reforms now in progress and what the final shape of the new Japan will be.

Yet Gen. Douglas MacArthur's record has so far been an impressive one. A tremendous beginning has been made on a job that will take from 20 to 50 years to complete. Point by point General MacArthur has set rolling the policies laid down in the Potsdam declaration, the directives of the Far Eastern Commission and the instructions of the United States Government.

In the light of present American policy it is difficult to imagine who might have done a better all-around job.

Stern and Generous

Beginning with his acceptance of the surrender on the battleship Missouri, MacArthur's pronouncements have combined the sternness of a victor with the generosity of a liberator. A man of lesser quality might easily have provoked untold antagonism in accomplishing the same objectives.

People who talk with MacArthur are usually impressed by the liberalism of his views. Although essentially conservative, his actions have displayed a mixture of conservatism, liberalism and even radicalism. Sensitively proud, he reacts sharply to criticism of his policies or challenges to his authority. His relations with the Allied Council for Japan have not been all they might have been. As a gadfly to the occupation this four-power organ has served a purpose, but beyond that its accomplishments have been unimpressive.

MacArthur is partially insulated from his own people and from the Japanese by a small circle of trusted subordinates who with a few exceptions are distinguished by their mediocrity. A characteristic of this "inner cabinet" is his "MacArthur can do no wrong" psychology and its hyper-sensitivity.

"Too Many MacArthurs"

Below MacArthur and the buffer zone that surrounds him extend the numerous military and political echelons of the occupation. In GHQ, SCAP, are to be found specialists in all branches of governmetnal activity. Like any cross-section of American life they represent many shades of ability and political thinking. Their job is to draw up reports, plans and proposals and to prod Japanese officials into carrying out SCAP directives. The Japanese complain that it is evident that substantial progress has been made in the right direction. This is quite a different Japan from the Japan of prewar or wartime days. Whatever the permanence of the over-all program it is a safe bet that many of the reforms will stick. It is inconceivable, for instance, that Japanese labor would ever go back to its old bondage without a struggle. Tenant farmers would certainly resist any effort to deprive them of their newly won right to own the land they are cultivating. Japanese feminists will cling stubbornly to the freedoms they have been accorded. Japanese political parties have never enjoyed as much freedom of political activity as now and could not easily be put back into the old totalitarian mold.

The Idea of Freedom

But these democratic trappings will have permanent meaning only if the principles of democracy—especially the idea of the freedom of the individual—are understood, appreciated and prized by the broad masses. This is far from realization. The solution of the problem will necessitate:

1. Twenty to 50 years of continued education backed up by vigilant American or United Nations supervision.

2. The maximum opportunity and encouragement for Japanese to travel and study in the United States and other democratic countries, and the maximum flow of Western thought and culture into Japan. Lack of understanding the West and the self-hypnotism bred by her insular position have been two prime causes for Japan's past agressiveness.

Government Sets Tone

3. Good leadership. The Japanese people will never be any more progressive than the governments they elect to office. The present government reflects the state of mind of the Japanese people today in its confusion, its bewilderment and its inertia.

4. Economic stability. We can hardly expect the Japanese to be convinced of the desirability of our way of life unless it brings them a better standard of living than they have experienced under the old order.

5. Security against external aggression and internal disorder. The occupation should end as quickly as possible, but a small and highly mobile token force should be retained for a prolonged period of years as a visible reminder to the Japanese of allied determination, as a stimulus to the fullest carrying out of reforms and as a deterrent to internal disorder from minority pressure groups.

American occupation authorities—viewing Japan as a permanent Far Western outpost of American influence and a democratic, unarmed stabilizing force in east Asia—favor a quick settlement of the reparations problem, an early peace and a new emphasis on holding Japan up instead of holding her down.

Helpless Frustration

The prevailing mood in Japan is one of frustration, accompanied by a helpless and do-nothing attitude toward Japan's own troubles. It is becoming increasingly popular to shift the blame to the occupation. Public morals are declining. One has only to see the trash and eroticism on sale in Japanese bookstores to realize that the end of the war has brought no upsurge of creative thinking. Japanese newspapermen complain that censorship is worse in some ways than during the war. Yet it is hard to see what can be done about it as long as Japan remains an occupied country.

The Japanese are a resilient people and will recover quickly once they know where they stand on reparations and are readmitted to international trade.

A show of force will be advisable in Japan for many years, but not in anything like its present strength. From here on out the job is mainly economic, social and political.

Army C-54 Planes Grounded 1 Hour For Inspection

New York, June 6 (AP).—All C-54 planes of the Army Air Transport Command were grounded throughout the world for one hour today while ground crews inspected vertical stabilizer bolts and attached fittings.

The inspections, requiring little time, would not affect flight schedules, the Atlantic division of the Army Transport Command reported.

In Honolulu, where temporary suspension of the big four-engined transport planes was announced earlier, it was said field reports had found stabilizer bolts and attached fittings "loose and sheared.

ATC said this condition never had been encountered in inspections of the C-54 feet which has flown more than 745 million miles in the past 18 months without a passenger fatality.

The Gallup Poll

Campaign for Chest X-Rays Moving Ahead, Survey Finds

By George Gallup

Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., June 6.—The campaign of health leaders to combat tuberculosis by chest X-rays is making headway.

A coast-to-coast survey by the Institute finds that 4 in every 10 adults have had a chest X-ray, about half of that number having had the X-ray within the past two years.

The usefulness of the X-ray method in tracking down cases of tuberculosis for treatment is, of course, obvious and the problem facing the National Tuberculosis Association is how to induce large numbers of people, especially young people, to cooperate.

Besides investigating the number of people who have been X-rayed, the Institute conducted its Nation-wide survey to determine how much the American people know about tuberculosis, and how intelligent they are in their attitudes toward the "white plague" which kills some 60,000 people a year.

The survey highlights these facts.

1. Although there has been much publicity about contagion, one adult in every four does not know that tuberculosis is a contagious or "catching" disease which may be passed on from one person to another through a bacillus.

2. The public is acutely aware of the so-called "allies" of the tuberculosis bacillus, which help foster the disease — undernourishment, poor living or working conditions, rundown or neglected general health, etc. Many of these are named almost as often as "germs" (tubercle bacilli) by the public when asked what the cause of tuberculosis is.

3. The great majority of people think tuberculosis is curable and they name a type of treatment which most doctors would consider correct—plenty of rest and nourishing food.

4. Most doctors now believe that tuberculosis is not directly inheritable. But the public still has confused ideas on the subject—about half think it may be inherited.

* * * *

The public campaign to stamp out tuberculosis was recently given new impetus in New York State.

The State government is taking steps to give every man, woman and child in the State a tuberculosis test.

It is pointed out that this is merely a step toward treating humans the same way that cows have been treated for years. Many States require every dairy cow within their borders to be tested for tuberculosis once a year.

* * * *

The findings of the Institute's survey on tuberculosis are as follows:

"What do you think is the cause of tuberculosis?"

Germs, 22 per cent; undernourishment, malnutrition, 19 per cent; neglect of health, 16 per cent; rundown condition, low vitality, 16 per cent; unhealthy living or working conditions, 12 per cent; heredity, 7 per cent; other, 13 per cent; don't know, 16 per cent. (Totals more than 100 per cent because some people named more than one cause.)

"Do you think tuberculosis is catching?

Yes	70%
No	24
No opinion	6

Those who said "yes, it is catching" were asked: "How do you think a person catches tuberculosis?" Principal replies were: Contact with people infected and through germs.

"Do you think a baby can be born with tuberculosis?"

Yes	47%
No	35
No opinion	18

"Do you think a person who has tuberculosis can get well?"

Yes	83%
No	13
No opinion	4

"What do you think a person who has tuberculosis should do to get well?"

Principal answers: Rest in bed, good food, proper medical care, go to sanitarium, fresh air, dry climate.

"Have you ever had an X-ray taken of your chest?"

Yes	42%
No	58

When asked how long ago the X-ray had been taken about half indicated that it had been within the last two years.

Banker Holds Recession Talk Is Overdone

By S. Oliver Goodman
Post Reporter

Bedford, Pa., June 6.—Facts and figures belie the calamity howlers who insist that this Nation is on the verge of a drastic recession.

The dark-spectacled soothsayers just haven't the proper perspective of the developing business situation. According to C. A. Sienkiewicz, vice president of the Federal Reserve Bank, of Philadelphia. He was the principal speaker today, the second meeting of the Washington Bankers' four-day convention at Bedford Springs Hotel. On July 1, it was announced, Sienkiewicz will resign from his Federal Reserve Bank post to become president of the Central Penn National Bank of Philadelphia.

"In the general business field," he said, "there are many soothsayers who insist that we are on the verge of a drastic recession, which means a sharp drop in production, employment and income. With the authority of statistics or a twist of a divining rod they see in the present situation a pattern that is comparable to that of 1920-21, leading a similar bust and heavy losses.

Orderly Readjustment Seen

"I seriously question the accuracy of their evaluation or divination of the developing situation. The probability is a relatively orderly readjustment in restoring some normal balance in the economy. Such a readjustment has been under way for some time in many individual industries, particularly in the so-called soft goods lines."

Businessmen, he emphasized, must be on guard "against talking ourselves into a severe depression."

If the gloomy soothsayers would put aside their black-hued glasses, he added, this clear picture would emerge:

Out of the total civilian labor force of almost 58 million, more than 55 million men and women in this country are working and receiving relatively high incomes.

Gross national product increased from 89 billion dollars in 1939 to 194 billion in 1946. Currently it is estimated at a rate in excess of 200 billion.

Combined cash, deposits and Government securities of individuals have risen almost 250 per cent from 1939 through 1946.

Better Off Than Ever Before

Income payments to individuals have risen from 71 billion in 1939 to 165 billion in 1946.

"While we may not be so well off as the dollar records indicate," he asserted, "we are much better off as a Nation than ever before in our history."

Cautioning his listeners that the riskless type of banking "such as we had in buying Government securities" is now past history, he urged the Washington financiers to go back to "real banking-assuming risks and helping communities to grow."

He predicted that banks' average investment returns are likely to decline this year and that there is little prospect for any material change in market interest rates in the near future.

Earlier today the Washington delegation heard Curtis R. Holton, industrial relations consultant, advise a program of personnel or employe relations. Some of the objectives would be to:

Provide for each employe a feeling of security of job and income:

Keep each worker as fully informed as possible about the business and what the company is doing:

Provide each employe with an opportunity to express his opinion freely regarding policies, working conditions and the manner in which he is treated:

Instill in each employe pride in his job, in the business in which he is engaged, and the policies of the organization.

Elections Scheduled Today

Tomorrow, the bankers face a crowded calendar. First business will be election and installation of officers. Richard A. Norris was expected to be named president. Also scheduled are talks by Emil Schram of the New York Stock Exchange and John J. McCloy of the World Bank. Social events include a reception to retiring President S. William Miller and the "family dinner" at which athletic trophies will be announced.

In another talk Kenneth G. Hulse, president of Washington Chapter of American Institute of Banking, reported that for the first time in several years the institute's male enrollment exceeded the feminen students. Of the 371 students 209 were men and 162 were women.

Other reports were presented by Vercon R. Dorman, chairman of the auditors section, and Edwin B. Shaw of the fiduciaries section.

Budd Pleads for Rates To Aid Railroad Credit

Chicago, June 6 (AP).—Ralph Budd of Chicago, president of the Burlington Railroad, today said the American railroads "are in need of earnings that will sustain their credit and keep them in a healthy position."

Addressing the American Association of Railroad Superintendents, Budd said the "only thing we need immediately is that the fact be recognized that if we are to have private operation of the railroads, better, cheaper and safer service, we must be sustained by rates adequate to maintain credit."

Junior Police Seek $25,000 For Expansion

The Junior Police and Citizens' Corps is asking for $25,000 to help Washington boys and girls become better citizens.

The corps, more than 12,000 strong, could accept new members provided money was available for clubhouses where they could meet.

In addition to expanding the program to include new members, Policeman Oliver A. Cowan, founder-director of the corps, said the money would go toward:

1. Improving the headquarters building at 720 Barry pl. nw., which has become a clearing house for youth problems as well as youth activities.

Sports Equipment Needed

2. Operating expenses.

3. Paying off the mortgage on the headquarters building.

4. Buying equipment — movie projectors, ping-pong tables, boxing gloves, baseball uniforms, football equipment, track uniforms, etc.

To date, the corps has received nearly $5000 in its drive which will last until July 1. A minimum of $1 honorary membership is offered to any adult.

Money received in last year's campaign helped to remodel from top to bottom the Barry pl. headquarters. A once dilapidated building now houses a kitchen, library, health clinic, conference room, sewing room and bathrooms.

The corps, organized in 1942 to build good citizenship and a closer relationship between the "cop on the beat" and youngsters, consists of more than 50 "gangs" throughout the city. They bear such names as "The Oil Burners," "Fat Charlie's Gang," "Fifth Street Tigers," and "Bone Crushers."

Each boy and girl who joins the corps pledges: "To keep myself out of trouble, at all times; I promise to keep my friends out of trouble at all times; so help me, God."

World Bank Issues Booklet About Directors

Brief biographies of the men who direct and manage the operations of the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development are presented in the bank's latest publication now being distributed. The booklet, "Who's Who in the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development," outlines the experience of the bank executive directors and their alternates, and of its officers and department heads. The functions of the Board of Governors, Executive Directors and operating heads and the relationship between them are also indicated.

The international aspects of the bank's organization are emphasized by John J. McCloy, president of the bank, in the booklet's foreword. "There is no better evidence of the importance that the member nations attach to the International Bank . . . than their willingness to send outstanding and experienced men to take part in its management and operations," McCloy states. "Only through an internationally cooperative effort such as this could the combined judgment of so many distinguished specialists be brought to bear."

Phone Workers To Get Back Pay

Baltimore, June 6 (AP).—A three-man arbitration board announced today the awarding of pay increases averaging $2 to $4 weekly to more than 2100 telephone plant and maintenance employes in Maryland.

Howard Jackson, former Baltimore mayor and board chairman, said the boost would be retroactive to April 25, the date the Maryland Federation of Telephone Workers ended a strike.

The federation agreed to return to work under an arbitration agreement with the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co.

No Servants Ashore, Navy May Be Told

By James M. Minifie

Congress will legislate some 20,000 messboys into the situation of the legendary Flying Dutchman, unable ever to get ashore, if the Navy appropriations bill is passed in its present form, it was learned yesterday.

This peculiar situation arose out of a provision written by the House Appropriations Committee into the $1,153,000,000 item for Navy pay and allowances.

The provision is that none of the appropriation should be available for the "pay, allowances or other expenses of any enlisted man or civil employe performing service in the residence or quarters of an officer or officers on shore as a cook, waiter, or other work of a character performed by a household servant."

In adopting the amendment the committee apparently had in mind a minor economy at the expense of a few top-ranking officers who are allotted servants in a handful of posts where entertaining is an onerous and expensive part of their job.

Thinking to twitch the carpet out from these, the committee, unless its provision is stricken out, will insure these results:

1. The Filipino houseboys who enlisted for specific land berths will have to go to sea, which they won't like, and where there are no berths for them.

2. The mess boys, mostly Negroes, who fill the 3000 billets ashore, will have to go to sea, where there are no berths for them, and stay there.

3. The 5000 supernumerary mess boys for whom the Navy manages to find work ashore will have to go to sea, where there are no berths for them, and stay there.

4. The mess boys filling the 12,000 berths at sea will have to stay there.

5. The few admirals in key posts who have to entertain visiting firemen, Congressmen, foreign admirals and diplomats, would have to spend all their entertainment allowance and then some just on the pay of privately hired servants—or else take the visitors out to the kitchen afterward to help with the washing up.

Hearings on Army Training Program Start Wednesday

By The Associated Press

The House Armed Services Committee announced yesterday hearings on universal military training legislation will start next Wednesday.

The first witness will be Dr. Karl T. Compton, chairman of the President's Advisory Commission which earlier this week recommended a universal training program. Dr. Compton is president of Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Only one day of hearings will be held next week. On the following Wednesday, June 18, the committee will hear Dr. Daniel A. Poling, editor of the Christian Herald, and Dr. Edmund A. Walsh of Georgetown University, both members of the special commission.

Forum Talks Mark Young GOP Sessions

Milwaukee, June 5 (AP).—Forum sessions on "Problems of Youth" occupied Young Republican National Federation members today as they awaited arrival of Carroll Reece, GOP National Committee chairman, who will address the convention tomorrow noon.

Ralph E. Becker of Port Chester, N. Y., national chairman, said some 700 delegates were on hand for the two-day meeting which will reach a climax tomorrow night with an address by Eric Johnston, president of the Motion Picture Association of America.

Forum meetings following an opening general session at the Milwaukee Auditorium were concerned with education, politics, college and university club organization, veterans' affairs and racism and religion in a republic.

Mrs. Mabel Fraser of Indianapolis, vice chairman of the Indiana Republican State Central Committee, told the politics group "good Republican politics will never surrender to expediency when fundamental principles of human well-being are at stake."

"Politics, as you will soon perceive, is compromise," she declared.

Whole-hearted support of democracy by the Negro race was promised by Scovel Richardson, dean of Lincoln University, a St. Louis Negro law school.

"Don't let anyone tell you the Negro will not stand with you in resisting the alien attempt from within to undermine our Government," he said on the racism and religion forum.

"Don't think for one minute he has been sold a bill of goods by the merchants of hate to seek to divide us. Negroes are a people unshaken in their devotion to their country."

Keynoter Representative Byrnes (R., Wis.) told the opening general session the Nation needed a clear-cut foreign policy which "will kill forever our political isolation from the rest of the world," while Governor Frank Carlson of Kansas lashed New Deal spending, asserting "we must root out the entrenched bureaucracy at Washington by the election of a Republican President."

Senator Martin (R., Pa.) asked the group to assume the job of "acquainting the American people with the severe handicaps" under which the Republican Congress has been working.

Iceless Car Wins U. S. Food Favor

The Agriculture Department reported yesterday that tests indicate an iceless refrigerator railway car can be used successfully in transporting perishable foods during the summer.

Tests with a car equipped with mechanical units similar to those in home refrigerators were made during February in the car-testing laboratory of the Fruit Growers Express Co., in Alexandria, the department said. During a 10-day period, an iceless car loaded with frozen tangerine segments was kept in a building heated to 92 degrees, and the fruit was maintained at a temperature of about zero.

2 of 15 Airmen Lost in Jungle Await Rescue

West Palm Beach, Fla., June 6 (AP).—The green hell of a Nicaraguan jungle was being forced today to give up the last of 15 airmen it snatched from a burning bomber more than two weeks ago.

It required only minutes for the men to plunge into the dense fastness on May 21, as they flew from the Canal Zone toward Kelly Field, Texas. Intensive rescue efforts got under way quickly, but 17 days later two men were still the prisoners of the tangle of trees, vines and creepers.

The Army at Morrison Field here said one of the men yet to be rescued is Master Sergt. Richard A. MacCready of Franklin, Ky., who definitely is alive. The name of the other was withheld because "we don't know if he is dead or alive," the Sixty-second Air Rescue Squadron reported. Ground troops are battling toward them.

Of the 13 men previously rescued, one died as he was placed aboard a helicopter after 14 days in the jungle. He was listed as Sergt. David J. Wylie of Chicago.

"This has been one of the Army's most difficult rescue efforts since the war," said Morrison field officers.

Conquering the jungle required thousands of miles of flying, aerial photographing of a large area in search of clews, the parachuting of a doctor, supplies, instructions and work crews into the jungle, hacking out a clearing for helicopter to land, and tedious chopping of paths through heavy growth toward survivors. Troops were highly praised for their part in the rescue.

Flamethrowers Used On Salvador Locusts

San Salvador, El Salvador, June 6 (U.P.).—Flamethrowers and dusting planes, rushed especially from the United States, were being used today in an attempt to destroy huge swarms of locusts threatening to ruin most of Salvador's rich coffee crop.

Spreading over two thirds of the country, the pest is now in the spawning season and the ministry of agriculture hoped that its special locust-fighting brigades would succeed in destroying the eggs with fire and insecticides before they hatched.

Ecuador to Restrict Import of Luxuries

Quito, Ecuador, June 6 (U.P.).—President Jose M. Velasco Ibarra acted today to restrict luxury and nonessential imports by establishing temporary controls over foreign exchange.

He issued an emergency decree which had been approved by the international monetary fund. Government officials said the emergency measure left the dollar exchange market virtually free except for nonessential imports.

Retention of Some War Powers Of President Asked by Aides

By The Associated Press

The Undersecretaries of State, Commerce and Agriculture Departments told Congress yesterday that some presidential wartime powers must be continued to avoid a "scramble" for scarce materials.

They testified before a House Judiciary Committee in support of a bill to retain some controls until June 30, 1948. Most of these controls will expire with the end of this month unless Congress renews them.

Foster Sums Up Case

Foster summed up the case:

"The continued exercise of certain limited emergency powers, for a limited period, is required to complete the orderly reconversion of the domestic economy from a wartime to a peacetime basis in the interest of the American people and to support the foreign policy of the United States.

Specifically, they recommended retaining for a time:

1. Power to require the export of equipment and supplies needed to help put other nations back on their feet.

2. Controls over export of tin products and nitrogen fertilizers so other nations will get a fair share and be able to grow and can more of their own food.

3. Control of imports of fats, oils and rice.

4. Authority to earmark for export materials necessary to expand the production of goods or services critically needed in the United States.

5. Domestic controls over the distribution and use of hard fibers and cordage, tin, antimony, cinchona bark, quinine and quinidine.

Tyler Wood at Senate

On the opposite side of the Capitol, C. Tyler Wood, deputy to the Assistant Secretary of State for Economic Affairs, made a similar plea for extension of export controls. He told a Senate Judiciary Subcommittee:

"The fact that we are so large a factor in the world supply picture places a heavy responsibility upon us, and we cannot meet that responsibility merely by letting our surpluses flow to the readiest markets.

"Without control of exports some countries would get more than their share of our supplies while others might get nothing."

Acheson cited two examples where he said it might be necessary to exercise priority powers to obtain goods for export.

In the Greek aid program, he said, three big bridges and a tunnel are needed to restore the Athens-Salonika Railway. Lack of "perhaps a single item" which would delay restoration to any one of these bridges or the tunnel "would be a major setback to the entire rehabilitation task" in Greece, he asserted.

Acheson said, too, that 65 locomotives have been obtained for Greece from Army surplus supplies in Germany but that they are useless unless cranes are available to unload them at Greek ports.

"If motors to activate those crane were unobtainable in time we might have to resort to priorities to assist in their procurement," the Undersecretary said.

Connally Asks Oil Men to Regulate Industry With Own Codes

By The Associated Press

Senator Connally (D., Tex.) said yesterday that "big oil companies" in Great Britain and America should be able to agree on oil problems without the proposed Anglo-American oil treaty.

Connally's comment was made at a meeting of a Senate Foreign Relation Subcommittee reviewing the treaty negotiated with Great Britain in 1944 and 1945 for mutual respect of oil concessions and equal opportunities for British and American oil interests.

Eugene Holman, president of Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey, testified that the treaty would be "a contribution to the domestic oil companies" and would give the oil industry "the encouragement of the diplomatic support of democratic governments."

Atomic Energy Figures

Chairman Vandenberg (R., Mich.) asked Holman "will the peacetime development of atomic energy not have a profound effect on this whole question?"

Holman said the company's technical advisors "tell me that it is not inconceivable that large power plants and big ships will be powered by atomic energy in 15 years.

"It is another form of energy. Energy can be created from many different sources. Petroleum is the best and cheapest."

Vandenberg assured Senator Robertson (R., Wyo.) that the committee would reopen hearings two weeks after the conclusion of the present series.

Robertson said "it seems to me that the difference in concept" in the interpretation of the treaty by Ralph K. Davies, special consultant to the Interior Department, and George A. Hill, Houston, Tex., oil producer who was one of six industry advisers in treaty negotiations, "has brought out a deep misunderstanding as to what exactly this treaty means."

Davies and Hill both testified previously and differed on whether the treaty would result in free trade.

Hill said Thursday "this treaty does not in any way deal with the subject of free trade."

Warwick M. Downing, of Denver, Colo., an independent producer who opposed the treaty, today said the statements by Davies "that this treaty is the basis for free trade would make it a blow to the American oil industry.

Robertson said "until opponents to the treaty know what amendments will be added, it makes it difficult to know whether to support or oppose it."

Connally asked Holman if the treaty isn't an arrangement in which oil companies in Great Britain and America "will get together and work out something like the NRA-fair trades practices? It looks to me like a British and American oil company arrangement?"

Holman said "No, Sir," and Connally said, "Well, they ought to have. It seems to me they could do it without a treaty."

Downing declared the treaty would have "a destructive effect on oil reserves" and that any such arrangement "should be an integral part of the international oil policy of the United States."

"We need protection against a cheap flush of foreign oil" that may "submerge and destroy our oil industry," he said. "Ratifying this treaty will have a deadly on wildcatting in this country."

World Trade Group Under Senate Fire

By The Associated Press

A bipartisan majority of the Senate Finance Committee is studying the possibility of issuing a critical blast at the proposed International Trade Organization.

Such move might shake the Geneva conference to its foundations.

Chairman Millikin (R., Colo.) told a reporter yesterday the committee is considering a formal statement outlining objections to the proposed charter, now being whipped into final form at the Geneva meeting of 15 nations.

Millikin declined to go into detail. But Senator Brewster (R., Me.) said in an interview that he, for one, is urging the committee to go on record publicly against any binding commitments at Geneva which he said might among other things give away this country's right to control its own crop production.

Assails Administration

"I think what is being done at Geneva is a part of the Administration's program to tie us up in knots internationally," the Maine Senator said. "If we agree in a treaty on international control of wheat, for instance, we won't have any further recourse if we are ordered to cut or increase our wheat production."

A Democratic member of the committee, who declined use of his name, said that while he would join in a statement criticizing the proposed charter's terms, he had cautioned members that any such statement at this time might sink the Geneva meeting.

Will Clayton, Undersecretary of State for Economic Affairs, already is fighting one battle in Congress to prevent action he has said would destroy the confidence of other nations in this country's readiness to lower world trade barriers.

Wants Amendment Killed

He has urged members of a Senate-House conference committee to strike from a wool price support bill the House-approved amendment which is said United Kingdom countries have interpreted as a dictate to the President to increase American tariffs on wool any time imports threaten to undermine the price-supported domestic market.

Conferees generally have argued that this is only a permissive direction, since it is left up to the President to decide when such a condition exists.

This controversy affects, primarily, efforts at the Geneva Conference to reach general trade-agreements with other countries under authority of the Reciprocal Trade Agreement Act.

Questions Department's Right

The Senate committee majority, however, is understaood to be questioning the State Department's right to carry through to a final conclusion any negotiations under the ITO banner without further consultation with Congress.

The group also has raised the point with the department whether the ITO charter is to be submitted to Congress as a treaty, requiring two thirds Senate approval, or merely as a resolution requiring simple majority votes in both Houses to become effective.

As an indication of the Administration attitude, Democratic Leader Barkley (Ky.) is reported to have remonstrated strongly against any committee action which would bring the controversy to a boil while the international meeting still is going on.

China Criticized For Failure to Use 80 Fishing Ships

Auckland, New Zealand, June 6 (U.P.).—A writer in the Auckland Star, Arpad Szigetvary, today accused China of failure to use 80 fishing vessels contributed by the United States, Australia and New Zealand to modernize the Chinese fishing industry.

Szigetvary said the vessels have been lying idle for months at the UNRRA wharf in Shanghai and that more than 100 foreign fishing instructors, hired at high salaries, are largely idle and living in luxury at UNRRA expense.

He said Chinese fishermen take an attitude of good-humored contempt on instruction voyages, regarding their teachers as a threat to their own methods of fishing.

Borah's Statue Unveiled at Capitol

Borah Statue Is Presented To Congress

The late William E. Borah, who feared trends which would involve us "in other people's destinies and other people's wars," went back to the halls of Congress yesterday.

A 10-foot, bronze statue of the Idaho isolationist was presented to Congress yesterday with a eulogy that termed Senator Borah "greater" than any of the seven men who were President during his 33 years in the Senate.

The speaker was Senate President Arthur Vandenberg (R., Mich.), who now uses the same desk, chair and office once occupied by Borah. The Idaho senator died in 1940—"an implacable defender of the Constitution" and "the people's advocate in the finest sense of the word."

No Right to Speculate

Vandenberg, also a pre-war isolationist, declared "we have no right to speculate on how he would met the epochal events" since Pearl Harbor.

"But of this we may be sure," Vandenberg said. "He would have met them with forthright courage and strength and fidelity and with the infinite patriotism which was the habit of his life."

Borah was in the Senate during the Administrations of Theodore Roosevelt, Taft, Wilson, Harding, Coolidge, Hoover and Franklin D. Roosevelt.

"I again thank Idaho for bringing William Edgar Borah back to us," Vandenberg concluded, "and I thank God for having given his living genius to our blessed land."

Mrs. Borah Present

Garbed in black, Mrs. Borah acknowledged an introduction by Ray McKaig of Boise, who presented her with flowers. Also participating in the ceremony was Miss Cora Rubin, who served Senator Borah as a member of his staff for 33 years.

The bronze statue was executed by Bryant Baker, New York sculptor, on order of the Borah Statue Commission. It was accepted by Idaho's Gov. C. A. Robins and Senator Henry C. Dworshak (R., Idaho), and was unveiled by Mrs. C. Wayland Brooks, daughter of the late Senator John Thomas, one of Senator Borah's advisers.

THE 'SPENCE IS TERRIFIC in the American League race these days, and that's no pun, son. Stan Spence, I mean, with his recent batting surge that has lifted him among the top three hitters of the league with a batting average of .349 and a production of four home runs in the last week. Spence hasn't taken up all the slack in the Washington batting order, but he's making a decent try.

POVICH

The suspicion has been all along that Spence is one of the good hitters of the league, a theory that Clark Griffith always shared with the clubs who tried to wangle him away from the Nats in various deals proposed during the past four years. "All they want to talk about is Spence," Griffith used to moan each December at the trading sessions of the club owners, "so we can't do any business."

Among the league's pitchers, Spence is never underrated, even when he isn't hitting .300. They were more prudent with him last year as a .292 hitter than they were with Mickey Vernon who was batting .353 and leading the league. Spence, with a notorious fondness for swinging when he likes a pitch, drew 13 more walks last season than did Vernon, a patient base-on-balls man.

SPENCE'S PRESENCE with the Nats is a heritage of Bucky Harris' regime, following an inspired trade Harris engineered with the Red Sox in the winter of 1941-42. The Red Sox were coveting Ken Chase, who in 1940 had won 15 games for the Nats, and they offered another pitcher, Jack Wilson, in exchange. The deal was made when the Red Sox also included Outfielder Spence, with no great sense of loss.

With the Red Sox in 1941, Spence had been used as a part-time performer and had batted only .232 in 86 games, and he appeared a very unexciting acquisition by Washington, but Harris acted like a guy who had pulled a master stroke. Spence, not Wilson, was the fellow he had been aiming for, he declared, and went into oratory about the possibilities of the moderately sized South Carolina fellow whom the Red Sox had tabbed as a flop.

Acknowledging Spence's .232 average with the Red Sox as not much to look at, Harris declared: "I don't care what his average is, he always looked like a .300 hitter to me. I hit .300 once in this league myself, and I never had the stroke Spence has got." It didn't take Spence long to justify Harris. In his first year with the Nats he batted .323.

UP THERE AT THE PLATE, Spence is some kind of a throw-back to the better hitters of a generation ago, with his actions smacking of Cobb and Hooper, particularly on the inside pitches that threaten to shear the hitter's head off. He has that same contempt for the head-high hard one, merely flicking back his chin to get it out of the ball's path and crowding the plate again as if nothing had happened.

It's in contrast to the scrambling of the general run of hitters who go into a half-swoon flop in a panic at the hint of deliberate or accidental dust-off pitch, and I always thought the Spence technique was the mark not only of a good hitter but of uncommon guts in a guy. Certainly, he has no complexes, either. When I asked him one day if left handed pitching bothered him more than right handed, he said, "why should it?"

Spence's batting stroke is almost a sculpture piece. He has the level swing of the fine hitter, without any kind of a hitch, and his weight is on his left leg in the approved copy-book style. Like most high-average hitters he gets hits to the opposite field, which is the big test of batting skill, but when he pulls the ball there's power in his swing.

THE RED SOX TRADED Spence when young Dom DiMaggio came along as a sensational outfielder, but on the day he joined the Nats in spring training in 1942, Spence said, casually, "I think I'm a better ball player than DiMaggio." He outhit young DiMag by 37 points that season, and there never has been any complaint with Spence's outfielding.

To the Washington fan, great outfielding feats by Spence are commonplace. There are no qualms when balls are hit to center field, and the Nats fans are no longer amazed by any catch that Spence makes. If his throwing-arm isn't as good as Dom DiMaggio's, it's debatable that any any other center fielder's is better.

He can play first base, too. Better than most of the guys who are holding down regular jobs at first base in the American League. It's actually incorrect to say that the Nats don't have a .300 hitting first baseman at this time. They do, but he can't be spared from center field.

Chisox Nose Nats, 5-4, in Ninth Inning

By Al Costello
Post Reporter

Chicago, June 6.—Sid Hudson and the Nats managed to blow a four-run lead to the White Sox here tonight as the Chicagoans continued their mastery over the Washingtonians with a 5-4, ninth-inning victory.

In the end it was big Tom Ferrick who pitched three-hit ball for 4 2-3 innings in relief of Hudson, who was tagged with the loss—the sixth this year without victory against the Pale Hose.

Tied 4-4 as the Chisox came to bat in the ninth, Ferrick had given but one hit in his four-inning term when the Sox pushed over the one run that sent the crowd of 14,418 happily home.

Baker Opens Rally

The winning rally started auspiciously enough when Floyd Baker, Sox third-sacker, singled to left. Here, the Sox got a break when Dave Philley, attempting to sacrifice, pushed a bunt over the in-rushing Eddie Yost's head for a single.

Luke Appling sacrificed nicely and Murrel Jones was purposely passed to load the bases.

Ferrick worked the count on Bob Kennedy to two strikes and one ball when the Chisox right-fielder hit a long fly that permitted Baker to slide across with the winning run despite a good throw by Tom McBride, who was patroling left field for the Nats.

Previously, the Nats had jumped on Ed Lopat, who weathered two bad storms in the first two innings when the Nats got all their tallies.

Lewis Swats Homer

Lopat surrendered a lone run in the first inning and then gave up three more in the second when Buddy Lewis lashed his third homer of the season with Al Evans and Hudson on the sacks.

That made it 4-0 but the Sox were only beginning on Hudson, who was having trouble with his control and constantly getting behind the hitter. The home folks picked up a single run in the second, another in the third when Appling socked his third homer of the year and two more in the fifth when Hudson fell apart completely and had to give up the ghost.

Nats Score Early

The Nats wasted little time jumping on Lopat, scoring one in the opening frame when Lewis singled to center, moved up a notch as McBride drilled another to left, and romped over the plate when Spence lined another one-baser to center. An intentional walk to Priddy loaded the bases but Yost fanned.

Three more Nat runs came clattering home in the second when Lewis blasted his homer into the lower right field seats, a 380-foot poke, following successive singles by Evans and Hudson.

The Chisox retaliated with one in their half of the second on three singles by Jones, Kolloway and Tresh.

Luke Socks Homer

The Sox—or rather Appling—made it 4-2 in the bottom half of the third. Lucius socked his third homer of the year into the lower left field seats. Hudson again appeared to be in trouble when he walked Jones and had three and one on Kolloway before getting him to hit a hopper to Yost.

Hudson finally was chased in the fifth when the Sox tied the score and Ferrick was called to the rescue. Baker walked on four pitches and Philley laced a single to center. Appling rammed a single to right that scored Baker and sent Philley to third. It was enough for Hudson and Ferrick finally put out the fire.

Al Evans doubled with two out in the third, and that was the last hit the Nats could get off Lopat until Christman opened the ninth with a single. Mark's late effort was wasted as Lewis fouled out and McBride hit into a double play.

The only Nat base runners during the interim were Lewis, who walked in the fourth; Priddy and Evans, who also were given free passage in the fifth, and Mickey Vernon, who was safe on an error in the seventh.

Phil Homers Win, 4-3

Philadelphia, June 6 (AP).—Howie Schultz's home run into the left-field stands with one out in the ninth broke a 3-3 tie and gave the Philadelphia Phillies a 4-3 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates here tonight before 12,421. Johnny Wyrostek gave the Phillies a 3-1 lead in the first inning with a home run with two on, but the Pirates tied it in the ninth.

Marshall's 3-Run Homer Beats Cards

New York, June 6 (U.P.).—William Marshall's three-run homer in the eleventh inning gave the New York Giants a 7 to 4 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals today after Johnny Mize scored the New Yorkers' first four runs with a bases-loaded homer in the sixth.

Southpaw Howie Pollet held the Giants hitless for the first five frames and the Cards gave him a one-run lead with a tally in the fifth. But Mize connected for his fifteenth roundtripper, tops in both leagues, and Pollet was taken out for a pinch-hitter in the seventh. Del Rice tripled home Whitey Kurowski for the Cards' second run in the seventh.

Jim Hearn, who replaced Pollet, was on the mound for St. Louis when Marshall broke up the game and was the losing pitcher. Gene Thompson, who pitched the eleventh inning for New York, was credited with his third victory.

Chicago Loses Lead to Bums

Brooklyn, June 6 (AP).—Brooklyn took a half game lead in the tight National League race tonight by whipping the Chicago Cubs, 6-2, behind the pitching of Left-hander Joe Hatten. A big four-run second inning sewed it up for the Brooks.

Jackie Robinson singled off Starter Hank Wyse with the bases loaded scoring two runs in the second and when Wyse, who took the throw at the plate, threw wildly trying to nip a runner at second base, the other two runs scored. A single by Johnny Jorgensen, an error by Peanuts Lowrey, Hatten's sacrifice and an intentional pass to Eddie Stanky set the stage for Robinson's blow.

Rain Postpones Midget Races

Heavy rain caused postponement of last night's midget auto races at the West Lanham Speedway. A crowd of 6000 persons waited 45 minutes through the downpour until the management decided to call off the night's races because of the sloppy track. Rain checks will be honored when the same program of races is presented Friday.

Jake LaMotta Whips Janiro

New York, June 6 (AP).—Jake Lamotta, the boxing bull from the Bronx, went on a slugging spree after a slow start tonight to whip Tony Janiro in 10 rounds and explode the rumors of a fixed fight at one and the same time at Madison Square Garden. Lamotta scaled 154¼; Janiro 149¼.

Rugged La Motta had the kid from Youngstown, Ohio, on the floor for the second time just as the bell rang ending the bout. The count had reached four, and the bell apparently saved Janiro from the first knockout of his career.

Janiro never had a chance after the first two rounds and was on the verge of a knockout from the sixth round on. But in one of the gamer exhibitions this big battle pit has seen in years, the youngster from Youngstown held on until four seconds from the finish, then collapsed, and was flat on his back at the finish—saved by the bell.

LaMotta was an easy and one-sided winner of the unanimous decision. None of the three officials gave Janiro more than three rounds. The Associated Press score card gave LaMotta eight rounds, one to Janiro and called one even.

Rumors that the District Attorney was "interested" in the bout were heard around the Garden tonight.

Just why the District Attorney might be interested, the rumors didn't say, although it was learned that Janiro's manager, Frankie Jacobs, who is known throughout boxing as one of the most honest men in the sport, was called down to the prosecutor's office yesterday for questioning.

These questions apparently centered chiefly around whether Jacobs would demand the $15,000 forfeit from LaMotta, if LaMotta failed to get down to 155 pounds for the bout. LaMotta made the 155 by three quarters of a pound—154¼—so the question of the forfeit did not come up.

LaMotta denied that he had been called to the District Attorney's office.

Ed Furgol Shatters Course Mark With 63

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

Par suffered another bludgeoning in the second round of the National Capital Open at Prince Georges yesterday.

The course record of 66, six under par, was shattered not once but twice as 33 of the shotmakers came home under par 72. And when the final score was posted, the 36-hole leadership belonged to Samuel Jackson Snead, the sweet-swinging, long-hitting Virginian.

Hot as the blazing sun which beat down on him, Snead whipped around the easy-scoring course in 65 strokes to move into the driver's seat at the halfway mark with a sizzling 131, 13 under par.

Sam's eye-opening 65, erasing the course record of 66 which he, Jimmy Thomson and Dutch Harrison equaled in Thursday's opening round, was still the talk of the gallery of 4000 when 28-year-old Eddie Furgol of Pontiac, Mich., birdied the eighteenth to rub out Sam's mark and hang up something even better for the boys to shoot at—an astonishing 63!

Back in Blistering 30

Furgol's blistering 63, composed of an outgoing 33 and an incoming 30, could easily have been a 60 or even better. He missed two short putts for eagles and even bogied a hole—the short par four fifth where he three-putted.

Furgol's amazing 63, however, left him way back of the pack with 138 as he had a wretched 75 Thursday.

Three strokes behind the sharp-shooting Snead were George Payton, the 24-year-old Virginia Open champion who added another 67 yesterday, and Tommy Wright, the lanky Knoxville, Tenn., star, who tacked a fine 68 onto his first round 66 for 134.

Bobby Locke, the guy the field set out to chase, was pretty well corraled yesterday. The best he could do was a "trifling" 68 to give him 135 for his two-day trek around the 6778-yard course. He was keeping company with former tennis star Ellsworth Vines who scored 67 in the second round.

Thomson Has 69 for 135

Jimmy Thomson, the slugging former Los Angeles Open king, who with Snead and Dutch Harrison led the pack at the end of the first 18 with 66s, slipped to 69 to share in the tie at 135.

Also at 135 was the tournament's leading amateur, George Washington University's Billy Griffin with 67—68.

Three area favorites—Washington's Lew Worsham, Baltimore's Otto Greiner and Roger Peacock—joined Ed (Porky) Oliver in the 136 class.

Lloyd Mangrum, tuning up his game to defend his National Open title in St. Louis next week, was at 137, while Harrison slumped with a par 72 to be bracketed at 138 with Furgol, Harold Oatman and Skip Alexander in a tie for twelfth.

Slammin' Sammy had the touch yesterday, even on the greens. He rapped in seven birdies and matched the card the rest of the way. He rammed in a 20-footer on nine for a birdie, continued his fine stickwork on the carpets and capped his round by sending a 9-footer home for his seventh birdie on the home hole. Sam made the turn in 33 and coasted home with a 32.

The field of 104 was reduced to 70, 60 pros and 10 amateurs, for today's semifinal round.

Joe Louis, Father Of Boy, Joe, Jr.

San Diego, Calif., June 6 (AP).—Joe Louis announced today that he is the father of a son he hopes some day wil succeed him on the heavyweight boxing throne.

The heavyweight champ, playing golf here today, confirmed reports from Mexico City that Mrs. Marva Trotter Louis, had given birth to a son last May 28 to whom she had given the name Joe Louis, jr.

"Yes, it's so," Louis said as he teed off the sixth hole.

He also disclosed that he and Marva had remarried a year ago. They were divorced in 1945 and have another child, Jacqueline, aged four.

The "Brown Bomber" of fistic fame took time to make the golf drive after being shown a message from Mexico City saying "Joe Louis, jr." had been born there.

"Oh, yes, we been married since a year ago, when the contract was signed," he added.

Asked if he expected his son to become a champion, he replied:

"I hope so. If he's as lucky as I am, he will be."

Scotsun, 1946 Failure, Takes Charles Town's Griffith Purse

Horseman

By Don Henderson

DEVON Horse Show 1947—A great show. A place to get unvarnished opinions from the best horseshow exhibitors. You get an earful when they let "down their hair" a bit in the "after show" classes.

Criticism of horseshows generally—The exhibitors are the show. Let the shows give them more consideration. This looker-on knows they are right. Someone is going to start an exhibitor's association, organized in a workmanlike manner.

Mission—To insure better conditions for exhibitors, grooms and horses, in and out of the ring. To insure adequate and acceptable exhibitor representation on all horseshow committees. To insure nice comportment by exhibitors at shows—in a word, sportsmanship at its best. There's a lot of merit to it.

It will grow and become a great factor in this tremendously active world of light horses. Warning—The proper people must handle it for the common good, no selfish benefits.

The N. H. S. A. rules committee was hauled over the coals a bit. Among other things, the 14.2. to 15.2. little horse. A boon for young riders, a colorful performer and both should be encouraged.

Dads Have Their Day Early, Beat Daughters, 12-5

The girls at Mount Vernon Seminary took a 12-5 lacing from their fathers in the annual Father-Daughter baseball game yesterday, as the mothers made up the cheering section.

Led by Maj. Lewis Hitchcock, the Dads, showing surprising pep and vigor, seemed to take great delight in reversing the old saying, "It's pappa who pays."

Hitchcock cracked out four hits, while Capt. R. B. Lank garnered three base knocks. Lank failed to touch first on one of his drives and had to retrace his steps from third back to the initial bag, arriving just ahead of the ball.

His daughter, Jane Lank, led the Daughters with three hits, while Southpaw Shortstop Barbara Davis collected a pair. The only homer of the contest went to Dad E. T. Brooks.

McKenney Horse Wins By 3 Lengths

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Charles Town, W. Va., June 6.—Scotsun, unable to win last year in 12 tries, found conditions that suited today and galloped off with the Paul H. Griffith Purse, named for the national commander of the American Legion who witnessed the program.

Racing in the colors of Miss Virginia McKenney of Washington, Scotsun came into the wire three lengths in front of the closest opposition.

J. J. Ring's Your Majesty was second in the test of about seven furlongs and two and a half lengths in advance of H. W. Shaffer's St. Lo. A field of eight competed.

3 Seconds Over Record

Scotsun, beaten a neck in his previous outing here, was clocked in 1:26 1/5, three seconds over the track record. The favorite in the betting at one stage, Scotsun paid a healthy $9.60 and was capably handled by Jockey Webb Snyder, who is making a comeback after breaking a leg in a spill.

It was a case of trying to catch Scotsun all the way. After the opening jumps no horse was able to get within less than three lengths of the winner. Laill Rose had early speed and weakened. Your Majesty, with Palumbo up, rallied but could not seriously threaten Scotsun.

Bates-Shirey Team Clicks

Owen R. Bates and Apprentice R. Shirey had a big day. They accounted for two winners in a row. They teamed to get Prognostic home at a $21 mutuel in the fourth event and then came back to score with Idaho Maid, a $6.20 shot, in the fifth event known as the Edmund Lee Jones Purse in honor of the State commander of the American Legion.

The daily double paid $52.80. Mrs. J. Sturgeon 3d saw her colors win aboard Dusted Goods ridden by Ray Arduini of Washington in the first race. This 2-year-old paid $13.40. In the second race, Mrs. Ann Carpoletti's Night Colleen led all the way to return a mutuel of $6.60.

Top seeded Gardner Larned was forced to three sets to take John Curtiss, 6—1, 3—6, 6—4; but Berbard Bartzen, seeded second, had no trouble defeating Phil Neff, 6—4, 6—4.

Jim Thackara, a tournament dark horse, drubbed fourth seeded Donald Leavens in straight sets, 8—6, 6—3. Thackara will meet Larned and Lynch faces Bartzen in today's semifinals at 2 p. m.

PRE-GAME CONFERENCE—Talking things over for today's Republican-Democrat baseball game between House members are Representative C. W. School Kids Get Diplomas

Approximately 5000 graduates of the Walter Johnson Memorial Baseball School will receive their diplomas today at the same 22 Recreation Department locations, where classes were held between April 19 and May 10.

Presentation will take place at 10 a. m. All the youngsters who attended most of the sessions will also receive a booklet entitled "How to Play Better Baseball," inside tips as told by members of the Washington Nationals to Shirley Povich, Post columnist.

The Nationals were the instructors at three of the five weekly sessions. They cooperated with The Washington Post, the District of Columbia Recreation Department and the Junior Board of Commerce in making the school a success.

Since the completion of classes, the students have been playing in the Walter Johnson School leagues. The leagues are being conducted for youngsters 12 years old and under, and 13 to 14 years old.

Play will continue through most of the summer and wind up late in August with championship games at Griffith Stadium.

Attention Kids! !

All Walter Johnson School students, who attended classes at Central High, will receive their diplomas at the Powell-Columbia Recreation Center at 3200 16th st. nw.

Skins Sign Three College Players

The Washington Redskins yesterday signed three rookie linemen from last year's college crop, Ernie Alther of Syracuse, Hugh Taylor of Oklahoma City University and Cliff White of Murray (Ky.) State Teachers.

Signing of the trio gave the Redskins 50 players under contract for 1947. Alther, a guard, comes from Matinsburg, W. Va.; Tlaoyr, an end, hails from Wynne, Ark., while White, who plays tackle, lives in Shaker Heights, Ohio.

Congressmen Play Baseball Game Today

MEMBERS of Congress will play a game of baseball today, develop sore muscles, aching backs, nice red cases of sunburn and probably go straight home to bed.

Republicans will oppose Democrats at 2:30 o'clock at Griffith Stadium with proceeds going to the Metropolitan Police Boys Club.

Youngsters on the House side of Capitol Hill will fill most of the positions on the two teams, but the Democrats will trot out a senatorial battery, Senator John J. Sparkman, Alabama, pitching, and Senator Warren G. Magnuson, Washington State, catching.

Homer E. Capehart, Indiana, is the only Republican Senator who has promised to play, but his teammates aren't quite sure what Capehart's natural position is.

Congressmen who go in for less strenuous forms of exercise will lend a hand by selling pop, hot dogs, peanuts and otherwise handling the concessions.

* * * *

THE star of the game is expected to be Representative C. W. (Runt) Bishop (R., Ill.), an infielder. He played in the Three-Eye League once upon a time and was ticketed for the Newark Club of the International League when he decided to go to bat in politics.

House leaders of both parties will act as coaches and managers. Directing the Republicans will be Speaker Joe Martin, Massachusetts, and Majority Leader Charles Halleck, Indiana, while Sam Rayburn, Texas, and John McCormack, will boss the Democrats.

The lineups:

Bob Giddens' Hurling Wins County Title

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

Bobby Giddens, 17-year-old Bladensburg High School pitching sensation, hurled his school to the Prince Georges County (Md.) championship yesterday as he shut out Surrattsville, 10-0, at College Park.

The right-handed senior wound up his high school career with a brilliant two-hitter, his fourth two-hitter of the season.

In gaining his twelfth victory in 13 decisions this season, he added to a record that rivals any ever compiled by a scholastic twirler around this part of the country.

It was the seventh full game he has pitched this season without yielding an earned run. When he retired the last batter, he ran his string of consecutive innings, without giving up an earned run, to 56. He sliced his earned-run average for the year down to an incredible 0.16 per seven-inning game.

His mound opponent yesterday was Deveroe Lyle, who created quite a stir six weeks ago when he fanned 30 Mount Rainier batters in a nine-inning game.

Lyle gave up 10 hits, but with a more experienced team behind him, he would have come out with no worse than 2-0 loss. His mates committed six official errors, and seemingly easy outs went for base hits.

With a little more luck, Giddens could have had his third no-hitter of the season, both Surrattsville hits being soft infield grounders that were beaten out. Only one ball was hit out of the infield.

Giddens' biggest hitting assistance came from Johnny Mallonnee, who clouted a double and a homer, scored three runs and batted in two. The win was the fourteenth in 18 games for Bladensburg, which had previously won the Class A county championship. Surrattsville took the B title with 7 wins in 10 games.

G. W., Granby In Title Game

Alexandria will be host to the first Virginia State high school baseball championship game in 10 years today at 2:30 p. m. when George Washington's Presidents of Alexandria take on Granby High of Norfolk.

More than 2000 fans are expected to file into the G. W. High stadium to see the Presidents try for their first State diamond title. The Presidents were finalists in the last championship game in 1938, but lost out to Petersburg.

Right-hander Bobby Hooker, winner of 9 out of 11 games, has drawn the pitching assignment for the Presidents. His mound opponent will be Lefty "Chuck" Stobbs, one of the greatest athletes to be developed in the Virginia high schools during recent years.

The 17-year-old Stobbs, all-State in football, basketball and baseball for the past three years, is the son of the Granby baseball coach, Bill Stobbs, former Wittenburg College coach. Chuck has won 9 and lost 2 this season, and averaged better than 15 strikeouts per game.

G. W.'s conference record is 4-1, compared to 6-1 for Granby.

Leading the G. W. batting brigade are First Baseman Corky Fones, a left-hander, the only long-ball hitter on the club. Other .300 stickers are Second Baseman Jake Dohner, Third Baseman Billy Rorer and Outfielder Buzzy Brown.

Outfielder Barney Gill and Catcher Buddy Foiles are the batters who led Granby to the Southern Virginia title.

Sherwood Defeats Poolesville, 10-5

Sherwood routed Poolesville, 10-5, yesterday at Poolesville as the winners slammed out 15 hits. Pitcher Bob Campbell limited Poolesville to four safeties. Al Brook led the Sherwood attack with three hits.

DEAR FOLKS:

This track has developed many good riders. The newest jockey on the grounds is Leon Harold Lewis, jr., who won yesterday with his first mount on any recognized track. The little fellow, who hails from Marshallton, Del., and who learned to ride on the Glen Riddle Farm, is 18 and looks like he will remain small. He is under contract to Roland Livingston. He won with Petes Gold and put up a whipping, driving finish. Leon rode on the small fair tracks before coming here. Balloon, No Quota, Rebline and Titian have been double winners at the meeting. Phil Sanford arrived with Butterscotch and Pharadine, owned by J. W. Fraser of Washington. Wayne Kendrick has purchased Free Lass from J. E. Hughes. Bob Kidwell of Washington vanned in Hair Cut and Tiag. J. Gallota of Washington has sold Chaltic to C. D. Corum. Racing Secretary Fred Burton has arranged a good Saturday program. Apprentice R. Shirey, who rode Prognostic to victory today, piloted his first winner at Sunshine Park last winter. Jockey Willie Dufford has been reinstated and will resume his saddle career. See you on the rail.—BILL.

Stribling May Fight Bee Bee

The handlers of Ken Stribling, lanky Washington middle-weight who fights Joltin' Joe Gannon in a ten-round feature match Monday night at Griffith Stadium, yesterday demanded a showdown on Stribling's future as far as local headline matches are concerned.

Little Billy Banks, who pilots Stribling, conferred with Matchmaker Gabe Menedez, and finally drew a committment that he would also consider Kenny as an opponent for Bee Bee Washington on July 7 at the ball park, should he whip Gannon.

Previously Menendez had said that only Gannon would get the shot.

Jackie Cranford, rangy District heavyweight, boxes Jimmy Lake, former Royal Canadian Air Force war hero, in an added ten-round feature Monday. Cranford yesterday was informed he would headline the Police benefit boxing show in Richmond, Va., June 24.

WASHINGTON: SATURDAY, JUNE 7, 1947

Report Asks 'Break' for Witnesses

Public Questions Court's Efficiency In Finding Truth, Publisher Says

The lowly and harassed witness, footsore from waiting around for a trial to start and cushion for the barbs of cross-examining lawyers, finally had his own day in court yesterday.

Everyone—judges, lawyers and laymen—agreed he was being kicked around.

They included judges of the United States Court of Appeals and the District Court, three bar associations in Washington and laymen meeting at the Judicial Circuit Conference in the Appeals Court Building. And they listened intently to the report of a laymen's subcommittee for improving methods of handling witnesses.

"The individuals in the public who may be called as witnesses need to be assured of fair treatment—that they will not be tricked and duped and harassed in examination or cross-examination," said Philip L. Graham, chairman of the subcommittee and publisher of The Post.

Trial Dramatics Criticized

They need also to be assured "that they will only be called on to give as painlessly and as easily as possible their contribution to getting out truth in the case at bar," he said.

The public as a whole, he added, "needs to be convinced that the judiciary and the bar are constantly striving, not to play an adversary game, but to establish truth and thereby direct justice as near as may be possible."

Graham declared the public "has serious doubts about the necessity of a great deal of the dramatics of trials—and there is very serious, really shocking evidence that the public doubts how efficient you really are in getting after the truth."

He suggested briefing witnesses as to their rights and duties.

'Arena Atmosphere' Hit

Attorney John J. Wilson declared he regarded "witnesses as a class, generally speaking, as receiving the least consideration of all the participants in the judicial process."

They frequently are called too soon and must wait and the witness has no place to wait, he said, because of crowded conditions in the court house. He suggested elimination of the "arena" atmosphere "that is so typical of the court room."

Associate Justice Harold M. Stephens of the Appeals Court agreed that "public relations between the courts and public is badly lagging."

One of the reasons, he said, is because the press reports only the spectacular cases and miscarriages of justice although the vast majority of cases are tried soundly.

"It should be the responsibility of the judges that witnesses are made to feel they are important that the administration of justice depends on them," said Judge Stephens. He called on the Bar Associations to better public understanding of the court's functions in a democracy.

"Let's impress deputy marshals that witnesses are important people and should be treated with courtesy and consideration," said Attorney Robert L. Heald. "The judge should take it on himself to protect the witness during cross-examination so that he won't have to depend upon lawyers."

The conference also voted approval of the methods used by the Domestic Relations Commissioner after a defense by Attorney John Alexander. Several sided with Attorney Jean Boardman who declared it ineffective.

Would Speed Wills

Unanimous approval was given to the recommendation by Attorney Charles H. Houston that administration of estates valued $500 or less be eliminated and that the time for administering all estates be six months.

On Attorney Arthur Scharfeld's recommendation, a majority voted against allowing Government agencies to bar lawyers from practicing before them without court action.

On the question of keeping the present method of assigning criminal cases for trial, which has substantially reduced the backlog of cases, 14 voted in favor, 5 voted against the method and 16 reserved opinions.

There was unanimous agreement that damages allowed in deaths should not be limited to $10,000, but should be left to the jury. The judge would reduce the amount if he considered it excessive. A bill with these provisions is now before the Senate.

Bar Group Will Hear New Zealand Minister

Sir Carl A. Berendsen, New Zealand Minister to the United States, will address the midyear luncheon-meeting of the Section of International and Comparative Law, American Bar Association, at 12:30 p. m. today at the Mayflower Hotel.

Sir Carl, who is also New Zealand delegate to the U. N. General Assembly, will discuss "international Law and the United Nations."

Committee reports will be made at a business session after the luncheon.

On Tuesday, the District Bar Association will elect officers from 9 a. m. to 6 p. m. in the South Room of the Bar Association Library. Elections will be for a president, first vice president, second vice president, secretary, treasurer, and three directors.

City News in Brief

Courtroom Bout Costs Woman $50

Mrs. Rosa Reagan, 46, who engaged in a fistic session with another woman in Municipal Court earlier in the week, yesterday was fined $50 or five days for criminal contempt of court.

Mrs. Gladys Moore, 3121 Knox st. se., a neighbor of the Reagans, had testified against Reagan in an eviction suit. Mrs. Moore testified yesterday that Mrs. Reagan attacked her in the women's room in the Civil Division building, injuring her head.

In pronouncing sentence, Judge Thomas D .Quinn said: "It would be a humiliating exhibition of the helplessness of a judge if he had to stand by and see witnesses beaten and intimidated after they had testified."

The Reagans, accused of being public nuisances, were ordered to vacate their home at 3123 Knox st. se., as a result of the suit. Mrs. Reagan admitted, under cross-examination yesterday, that she had been convicted of assault in 1939.

$100 or 60 Days

Albert L. Coles, 44, of 1666 32d st. nw., who backed his truck into a policeman last May 22, yesterday was sentenced to a total of $100 or 60 days.

Coles was sentenced to $50 or 30 days on a charge of failing to give full attention to driving and drew an identical sentence for having no permit.

The policeman, Thomas Fletcher of the Traffic Division, was struck at 14th and F sts., nw., as he walked behind Coles' truck to clear a path for pedestrians. His spine was fractured.

Fire Is Well Put Out

When someone pulled a fire-box nine pieces of Fire Department apparatus, including Rescue Squad No. 1 and an ambulance, rushed to F and 18th sts. nw., where a Capital Transit Co. streetcar motor had caught fire at 5:30 p. m. yesterday. C. B. Carter, the streetcar operator, said he had discharged all passengers when the fire started.

U. N. Display Asked

Emblems of the United Nations should be displayed along with the American Flag, wherever possible, when the city observes Flag Day June 14, the commissioners urged yesterday. In their annual proclamation calling for local observance of the anniversary of the flag's adoption, the commissioners said joint displays of American and United Nations emblems would recognize "our joint dedication to the freedom of mankind."

Navy Offers Training

Specialized training is available for two groups of Naval Reserve officers, the Potomac River Naval Command announced yesterday. Approximately 100 billets are open for Naval Air Transport Service ground officers on inactive duty, officials said, and an unlimited number of Naval Transportation Service officers.

Uptown Lions Club Elects Elman as New President

Berneard Elman, former president of the Cleveland Park Businessmen's Association, yesterday was elected president of the Uptown Washington Lions Club.

Sari, secretary; C. B. Pinckney, jr., treasurer; Ralph Hemingway, assistant treasurer; Dr. Samuel Diener, tail twister; Frank C. Ford, lion tamer, and Police Inspector Lloyd E. Kelly and Edward C. Chest Group Here Names Keyes Head

Richmond Area Man Is New Director; Has Been 15 Years In Social Work

Edward J. Keyes, director of the Richmond Area Community Chest, has been appointed director and campaign manager of the Community Chest Federation of Washington, it was announced last night.

Keyes is scheduled to take office July 1. He will fill the post vacated by the resignation of Herbert L. Willett, jr., who has been carrying on as director until a new director could be named.

In making the announcemeent of the appointment, Daniel W. Bell, federation president, said, "The Washington Chest Federation is most fortunate in securing a man of Mr. Keyes' background and experience in the field of fund-raising and social welfare activities."

Once With USO

The new director comes to Washington after 15 years of Community Chest work, interrupted only by one year with the USO as director of field service for all territory west of the Mississippi River.

Born in 1893, he received a master of arts degree in social administration from Ohio State University in 1931. He is married and has two children.

As director of the Richmond Area Community Chest, Keyes carried forward four successful campaigns for that city. He took office there in 1943.

From Richmond, H. G. Chesley, jr., president, Richmond Area Community Chest, expressed deep regret at Keyes' resignation.

Bright Future Seen

"We predict a bright future for the Washington Chest Federation with Ed Keyes at the helm," Chesley said.

"In the four years that Mr. Keyes has been in Richmond he has become, to a remarkable extent, a real citizen of this community and a real asset to all of the charitable and benevolent organizations of this great area."

Keyes also has directed campaigns in Springfield, Ill., and Oklahoma City, Okla.

Cops 'n' Robbers

Boys' Game Gives Police Brisk Time

What was reported to be a brutal street shooting last night gave Washington police a brisk but unnecessary workout.

It all began about 11 p. m. An elderly female reported excitedly to the 13th precinct station that:

She heard a loud argument down the street from her house, near 19th st. and Belmont rd. nw.

Looking out she saw a young man chasing another. When they got under a street light in front of her home, the one in the rear fired a gun.

The fleeing youngster twisted and fell to the pavement with an agonizing scream. She called police.

With sirens wide open, rushing to the scene came two homicide cruisers, two robbery cruisers, a precinct cruiser and a scout car.

Police combed the area. No victim. No assailant. No weapons. No blood. Not even an empty cartridge case.

After investigation, police learned that two youths found a pistol and some blank cartridges a few days ago and have been playing "cops and robbers" since.

Spur Line Bill Offered

A bill to let the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad build a spur line in northeast Washington running under the Franklin st. viaduct was introduced in the House yesterday by Representative John J. Allen, jr., (R., Calif.)

Stefan Flays Bypassing Of Congress

Nebraskan Speaks At Ceremony of National University

Representative Karl Stefan (R., Nebr.) last night lashed out at Government by "executive order" rather than by congressional legislative action.

He said also that America must be constantly on guard against those who would "seek to have us abandon the Constitution as a step toward destruction of our Government."

Representative Stefan was principal speaker at the seventy-eighth annual convocation of National University, held in the United States Chamber of Commerce auditorium.

Nineteen men and women received bachelor of laws degrees; three were given master of laws degrees, and a doctor of laws degree was conferred on Lewis Deschler, House of Representatives' parliamentarian.

Strikes at Communists

Stefan, in his half-hour address, struck at "Communists, the radical elements of the New Deal and similar anticonstitutionalists."

"Since the early '30s there has been one paramount issue before us: The Constitution of the United States," Stefan declared.

"The question has not been merely 'Shall we change the Constitution by amendment?' but 'Shall we overthrow and abandon —or keep the Constitution?' 'Shall we desert a government of laws for a government by men?'"

The Bohemian-born legislator, who came to this country in 1885, said that anticonstitutionalists exploit economic depressions and sectional differences to undermine this Government.

Denounces Commitments

Although he admittedly purposely avoided mention of President Roosevelt, he denounced the making of "major international commitments without congressional approval at Quebec, Cairo, Teheran, Yalta and Potsdam."

"The Eigthieth Congress," Stefan said, "has temporarily checked the bypassing of Congress. However, we have not halted the movement against our Constitution."

He counseled the graduating lawyers that their opportunity to defend the Constitution was as great as their courage.

Referring to the present world conditions, he said that "a shattered world must be rebuilt. Your generation must provide the architects."

Municipal Court Chief Judge George P. Barse, who is chancellor of the university, presided. The Rev. William F. Graham, S. J., gave the invocation and benediction.

Miss Alice Emily Miller was class valedictorian.

Baby Girl Born After Crash Is 'Just Fine'

Two broken collar bones, a concussion and a possible skull fracture—but a healthy baby, too—were Mrs. Juanita I. Cumberland's reminders yesterday of an automobile skirmish with the stork.

The 19-year-old mother looked "pretty good" to George Washington Hospital attaches and ate heartily, but Dr. Robert H. Harmon, her personal physician, regarded her condition as still "serious."

The baby, however, born just 34 minutes after an auto-bus crash in which Mrs. Cumberland and four other persons were injured, was described as "just fine." The infant was named May Julia, after Mrs. Cumberland's sister-in-law, who suffered a broken collar bone in the smashup at 10th st. and New York ave. nw.

Meanwhile, Edward R. Harbaugh, 23, of 710 K st. ne., who was rushing Mrs. Cumberland to the hospital when the collision occurred, appeared in Municipal Court on charges of speeding and passing a red light. His bond was set at $400 and the hearing was continued until July 23.

68 Area Girl Scouts Honored For Work as Hospital Aides

For their humanitarian work in making themselves generally useful, Hospital Aide awards for meritorious service were presented to 68 Girl Scouts in ceremonies last night.

Heading the list of special awards was a certificate in recognition of 400 hours of service presented to Miss Kay Padgett, 17, of 4306 South Dakota ave. ne. Miss Connie Di Trapani, 16, 1931 N. Capitol, was honored with a certificate in recognition of 200 hours service.

A similar certificate is being presented to Miss Jean Osborne, 16, of 1614 Evarts st. nw., prevented by illness from being present.

Mrs. Adolphus Staton, commissioner of Washington Girl Scouts, presented badges to 53 girls who have served a total of 9227 hours since inauguration of the program in 1943 at George Washington University Hospital.

The girls now serve also in three other hospitals—Gallinger, Garfield Memorial and Freedmen's. Representatives of all four hospitals were present to award caps to 15 girls who have completed their training course and have served 50 hours.

Work of the girls was praised by Mrs. F. C. Fishback, chairman of Hospital Service for Washington, and Mrs. J. L. Parsons, coordinator of volunteer services at Gallinger Hospital, who read letters of appreciation from Dr. Alvin R. Sweeney, superintendent, and Miss Beatrice Ritter, director of nursing at Gallinger. Miss Betty McAdoo of the Children's Hospital nursing staff spoke on nursing as a career.

Gold pins for 150 hours service were awarded to Shirley Bowers, Jeanne Jarvis, Barbara Strope, Jeanne Henderer and Bonnie June May.

The ceremonies were held in the U. S. Chamber of Commerce Building.

Mount Rainier Express Bus May Get Trial

Express bus service for Prince Georges County commuters from Mount Rainier terminal to downtown Washington may begin July 1, possibly on a 90-day trial basis, it was learned yesterday.

Establishment of the service is contingent on compromise of counterproposals of Capital Transit Co. and the county joint transportation committee, plus the approval of Maryland's Public Utilities Commission.

The transportation company has agreed to set up the express service on a permanent basis, with a charge of 20 cents for one-way fare between Mount Rainier and 9th st. and Constitution ave. nw.

The county committee would agree to a 90-day trial of express service but is asking that the fare permit riders free transfer to such points as 42d st. and Colesville rd., Hyattsville, Md., and Defense Highway and Edmundston rd, Bladensburg, Md., said Arthur W. Brumel, committee secretary.

Present service for commuters from the Hyattsville and Bladensburg area is via bus to the Mount Rainier terminal and transfer there over streetcar routes to points within Washington.

Law Only Way To End Chaos, Hand Asserts

Learned Hand, judge of the United States Court of Appeals, New York, proposed law last night as a means of ending international chaos.

The veteran jurist spoke at the Mayflower Hotel at a dinner of the American Law Institute.

"We have no hope except through law," he told the nearly 400 institute members and guests, including British Minister John Balfour.

"Law—what was law in 1941 or 1945?" he asked. "There was no law—it was brushed aside as brush in a flood."

Referring to world trends in the seven years since Dunkirk, he asked: "How are we—let us face the facts—so much better off than we were then?"

Lawyers, he asserted, "need not feel so ashamed" of their work in the last seven years because, he said, they have kept alive the means which can save man "from the depths of savagery."

George Wharton Pepper of Philadelphia, retiring institute president, was toastmaster. Pepper, succeeded by Harrison Tweed of New York, is new chairman of the institute's council.

400 Boy Scouts Expected Today For Camporee

Four hundred Boy Scouts are expected to be on hand today for the opening of their weekend annual Northern District camporee at Fort Totten Park, ne.

Approximately 300 early comers last night received a demonstration of the "perils" of tenting when Washington's sudden storm battered at the tent city. Damage was negligible, but excitement ran high, Scout officials said.

A demonstration of United States Signal Corps equipment and Army signal communications will feature today's activities.

Personnel from the office of the Chief Signal Officer in the War Department, the Military District of Washington, Fort Meade, Md., Fort Belvoir and Fort Myer, Va., and the Army War College will participate in the demonstration.

Milk Drivers Vote Against Going on Strike Today

Employes Reject Wage Offer, But Extend Deadline Another 15 Days

A Washington area milk strike, set to begin last midnight, was averted, at least temporarily, last night by membership vote of the Milk Drivers and Dairy Employes Union, Local 246 (AFL).

The employes, some 1700 dairy workers and milk deliverymen of all the major milk distributors in this area, voted by an overwhelming majority to reject their employers' offer of wage increases.

They voted also, however, to grant a 15-day truce period before striking, to permit continuation of negotiations toward a new, one-year contract.

Authority to Strike

Negotiators for the union were given authority to call the members out on strike at any time within the 15-day period if they felt the negotiations were not "progressing satisfactorily."

In offering undisclosed wage increases, representatives of the distributing companies flatly rejected a union demand for a five-day, 40-hour week. The wage increase offers were made contingent upon continuation of the present, six-day, 48-hour week.

Vote of union membership, in secret meeting last night at Turner's Arena, over rejection of the employers' offers was reliably reported at "about 1000 to 85."

Contract Expires

News of the union action brought some relief to one Labor Department conciliator who has been steering the negotiators through day and night sessions since Wednesday. The conciliator, James J. O'Byrne, met with union and employer representatives at Hotel Shoreham in both separate and joint sessions almost continuously during the 48-hour period.

The old contract, expiring last mignight, averted a similarly threatened strike last year when it was agreed upon almost on the zero hour and later ratified during a short period of truce.

The dairies involved include Chestnut Farms, Thompson's, Embassy, Alexandria, Wakefield, Lucerne Milk Co., Richfield, Arlington County and Harvey's dairies.

D. C. Episcopal Election Bill Filed in Senate

A bill to let the Washington Episcopal diocese end a centuries-old system for electing vestrymen was introduced in the Senate yesterday.

Senator J. Howard McGrath (D., R. I.) introduced the bill at the request of the Right Rev. Angus Dun, Bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of Washington.

Bishop Dun pointed out the Diocesan convention last month had approved the plan. He said a similar request was being made to Maryland, since the Washington diocese extends into four Maryland Counties.

Bishop Dun explained the old Maryland vestry law still controlled vestry elections here. In each parish's annual meeting, four members of the vestry must first be voted off the vestry list, then four members must be elected.

He said it creates a "psychological handicap" because there is strong pressure to reelect the vestrymen who have been voted out. He said it tends to "freeze the vestry membership," and to "discourage reasonable rotation and a reasonable opportunity for younger men."

The new bill would let the Episcopal parishes and separate congregations adopt their own by-laws fixing the number of vestrymen, length of terms, and the manner of electing them.

The by-laws could be adopted at an annual meeting, by a two-thirds vote of members present. Members would have to be given 30 days' notice of the meeting and the proposed by-laws. Changes in the by-laws could be made the same way.

Separate Loyalty Check Board Asked

Arnold Co. Silent

Arbitration Seen in Bus, Driver Tieup

By Donald Olesen
Post Reporter

Arbitration to end 25 days of fruitless negotiations has been agreed to by the Arnold Bus Co. and the drivers' union, Union Agent Jack G. Hodges revealed yesterday.

The Arnold Co. (Washington, Virginia and Maryland Coach Co.) did not say that the mutual arbitration request had been made, but declined to comment.

Both parties tentatively agreed to submit wage and other union demands to arbitration in a meeting May 29, Hodges said.

Demands of Union

The union, Local 1097, Amalgamated Association of Street Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employes (AFL), seeks a flat 38-cent wage hike for all drivers, severance pay, longer paid vacations, and overtime pay for work in excess of eight hours.

Negotiations between the two parties began May 12. Since that time, Hodges said, "the company has refused to accept a single union demand involving money."

He pointed out that the arbitration offer is not official until one side makes the offer to the other in writing. "We expect to hear from the company by Monday," he added.

Under Virginia law, each party has six days to pick an arbitrator after written intention to arbitrate has been given. A party failing to name its arbitrator within that period loses its case, Hodges said.

Pay Hike for Drivers

The union's wage demand would hike pay of drivers with less than a year's experience from 97 cents to $1.35 hourly. Wages of other drivers would jump from $1.07 to $1.45 an hour.

Local President O. B. Hiner said the union seeks overtime pay for all "platform time" in excess of eight hours.

"Platform time," he said, refers to the hours a driver actually is behind the wheel. Under present usage, he explained, a driver who is unavoidably delayed on his run does not get overtime.

Also demanded are three weeks paid vacation time for all employes who have served more than five years, compared to the two weeks granted under the present contract.

AFL Government Workers Advocate Independent Body

The proposed "Loyalty Review Board" which would pass on Civil Service employes' loyalty should be an independent board, with members appointed by the President and confirmed by the Senate, the House Civil Service Committee was told yesterday.

In making this recommendation, James B. Burns, president of the American Federation of Government Employes (AFL), said that the board, like a Federal Court, should have "members of the highest standing" who are "above politics."

Burns testified on President Truman's loyalty order and on the loyalty bill sponsored by Representative Edward H. Rees (R., Kans.), chairman of the committee. Both measures would have the Civil Service Commission appoint the members of the board, which would be under the commission.

Canal Order Hit

The federation president told the committee he was "greatly disturbed" that a May 1 Civil Service order allowed citizens of Panama to obtain Civil Service jobs at the Panama Canal, when, he said, "it has been stated to me that, for a consideration, it is very easy to become a citizen of Panama."

Notice of examinations for the jobs went out after May 1, closing date for applications was June 4, and the exam is to be held today, he said, pointing out that this allowed little time to scrutinize the 1200 or more applicants. It would be "pretty easy," he thought, for citizens of an unfriendly or enemy country to get Canal jobs by becoming Panamanian citizens.

The United Public Workers of America (CIO) sent the committee a statement opposing the loyalty investigation. Donald Murray, legislative agent, wrote that the proposal could lead to a "gigantic witch hunt," and opposed both the President's order and the bill.

Edward J. Ennis, board member of the American Civil Liberties Union, urged that the bill provide hearings for individuals whose loyalty had been questioned, and that they be allowed to confront and cross-examine persons providing derogatory information about them.

He objected to a provision in the bill that the proposed loyalty review board should conceal as far as possible the sources of derogatory information. The sources, he believed, should be concealed "only if necessary."

The hearing will be resumed at 10 a. m. today, with representatives of the National Lawyers' Guild and the American Jewish Congress scheduled to testify.

Anderson Tells Shriners of 1947 Record Crop

Secretary of Agriculture Anderson yesterday told the Shriners of Almas Temple that America this year will harvest approximately 1,250,000,000 bushels of wheat in a vast Government-saving buying program, at the weekly luncheon-meeting in the Sphinx Club.

Anderson said this was a record crop, the supply of which would slice wheat prices and thus bring about a tremendous saving to the Government.

As a result the saving will offset the Government's support of skimmed milk, eggs and potatoes, he said.

If the bumper 1937 wheat crop is realized the United States could thus export 450 million bushels to the famine-stricken European areas, Anderson said. The 1946 crop was 1,185,000,000 bushels.

C&O Canal Repair To Start Monday, Take 30 Days

Rebuilding of a break in the old Chesapeake & Ohio Canal near Weaver pl. nw. will begin Monday when the District starts extension of its Weaver pl. storm sewer beneath the canal.

An $18,000 sewer installation contract has been awarded to Able Contractors, Inc., of Arlington, Va., Sewer Superintendent Ellwood Johnson revealed yesterday. The project will take "not more than 30 days," he said.

When the sewer is completed, National Capital Parks will replace the canal's tow-path and reinforce the retaining walls. Locks above the break will then be opened and water will again flow in the canal.

The break in the canal dike occurred May 28, when a culvert built under the canal in the early 1800s collapsed.

Garden Clubs Protest Bulb Import Curb

By The Associated Press

The National Council of State Garden Clubs protested yesterday against a Senate-approved amendment to the 1912 Plant Quarantine Act that would permit limitations on the imports of flowering bulbs.

Mrs. Robert Ash of Bethesda, Md., speaking for the amateur gardeners, told the House Agriculture Committee "we think the American bulb growers are trying to hide behind this disease myth to place an embargo" on the entry of bulbs.

She testified after William H. Tolbert, representing the Oregon State Farmers Association, said the bulb growers ask only that the law require that bulbs brought in from abroad be "as free of disease and pests and of a quality as bulbs grown in the United States."

"If the imported bulbs are disease and pest free and of standard set for quality," he said, "the American growers will meet the competition."

Mrs. Ash said Holland bulbs "are superior in every way," adding:

"This legislation has aroused the ire of amateur gardeners. American growers either are unwilling or unable to produce bulbs of the same high quality as the Dutch. We can see no reason why the American gardener should be restricted as to where bulbs are bought.

"Congress will hear from every hamlet and village on this. We want to get our bulbs from the place where we can get the best.

"Why should we destroy this market for the Dutch, when it helps rehabilitate that country?"

The proposed legislation would permit the Secretary of Agriculture to put limitations on imports of nursery stock and bulbs in the pest-control program.

Representative Ellsworth (R., Oreg.) told the committee the bill is designed merely to give the Agriculture Secretary the full legal authority to restore plant quarantine measures that were in effect prior to the war and "the purpose is to protect American agriculture, horticulture and forest industries from insect pests and plant diseases."

Record Howard Class Hears Speaker Call for Leadership

Representative William L. Dawson (D., Ill.) last night told the graduating class at Howard University that "there are ever increasing numbers of men and women in the North and in the South who are determined to see that the Negro is protected in his rights as a citizen."

The Congressman spoke to 482 graduates, largest class in the 80-year history of the school. The exercises were held out-of-doors on the university campus. Graduates and spectators scattered at the end of the program in the face of the gathering storm.

Four honorary degrees were conferred by Dr. Mordecai Johnson, president of the university.

Recipients were Agnes E. Meyer of The Washington Post, Attorney Norman Manley of Jamaica, British West Indies; Dr. Carter Godwin Woodson, founder and head of the Association for the Study of Negro History, and Dr. Ulysses Grant Dailey, Chief of the Surgical Staff at Chicago's Provident Hospital.

"Time spent in praising and building up friends will pay larger dividends than time spent in excoriating our enemies," Dawson said in addressing the graduates.

Negroes, he said, must quit crying so much about what other people are doing to us and do something for ourselves.

"It is imperative that we develop leadership, and it is also imperative that leadership gain and retain the confidence of the masses."

Mrs. Meyer was cited by Dr. Johnson for special articles she has written for The Post. She received the degree of doctor of humane letters.

In conferring the degree of doctor of laws on Manley, Dr. Johnson praised his leadership in agrarian and social reform in the British West Indies.

A doctor of laws degree was awarded Woodson for his more than 30 years' "work of research and publication in the field of Negro history."

Dr. Bailey received the degree of doctor of science as "a constant and creative contributor to the current literature of surgery."

Children Tell How 'Daddy' Tops 'Em All

"No matter how hard the working day has been, daddy is always here to play rough-house, to tuck me in at night and tell my favorite story."

Eileen listed these qualifications for her dad in the The Washington Post contest to pick the city's "ideal father."

In another entry, Charlene writes:

"I think my daddy is the best daddy in the world. I'd like to tell just how swell my daddy is but you see I am only five months old so my mother is writing this letter as she also thinks there is no one on earth like our daddy."

Charlene's daddy "besides taking such good care of me" manages "to help with the dinner dishes and take the laundry down to the launderette on the streetcar. He feeds me when he gets up in the morning and straightens my bed."

Like Charlene, you probably think that your dad is best in the world. Write down his qualities that you most admire and send them to the Ideal Father Editor, The Washington Post, Washington 4, D. C.

If he is chosen as the city's best dad, along with his family he will be honored on Father's Day, June 15, with a dinner, a show, and an appearance over radio station WINX. In addition, dad will receive a plaque commemorating the event.

Deadline for contest entries is midnight June 10. The "ideal father" will be announced June 13.

New Polio Case Is District's 3d This Year

The third person stricken with polio in the District in 1947 is a 13-year-old boy whose home is in the 2100 block of Leroy pl. nw., the Health Department announced yesterday.

Two previous cases were reported in January and February, Dr. James G. Cumming, director of the Bureau of Preventable Diseases revealed.

Dr. Cumming said the boy had been under observation in a Gallinger Hospital isolation ward for three weeks, but diagnosis of his case as polio was not confirmed until Wednesday.

Polio occurs "most often in summer and early fall," Dr. Cumming warned. This first case of the season, he said, gives warning "that every precaution must be taken to prevent further spread of the disease."

Hough Claims Builder Group Spoiled Plans

Stanley P. Hough, Arlington builder now under indictment for false pretense in connection with veterans housing deals, yesterday charged the Hyattsville Building Association with responsibility for failure of the Oxon Hill, Md., veterans' development.

The charge was contained in a suit filed against the building association in District Court. The suit asks $150,000 damages.

According to the suit, Hough purchased 9 acres of land in Oxon Hill as a site for homes for 28 veterans.

The suit alleges the Hyattsville Building Association agreed Hough was to secure $1500 down payment on each home to cover the costs of the land, with the remainder necessary for completion to be furnished by the building association.

Hough alleges that after he collected the down payments and bought the land, the association refused to live up to the financing agreement.

Thomas Hammond Welsh, president of the Hyattsville Building Association, in commenting on the suit yesterday declared that no mortgages for home loans had been signed. He said that Hough had been warned repeatedly not to start construction until deeds and mortgages had been recorded. Under Maryland law construction begun before deeds are recorded leaves the way clear for "all sorts of liens" on the property, Welsh said.

"When Hough jumped the gun on construction he disqualified the loan," Welsh added.

Welsh said that after the loan had been agreed upon, Hough found himself in a number of legal snarls, including title difficulties that would have held up the development indefinitely.

Your Questions on Homemaking

While wearing a lovely grey hand knit cardigan, I opened a can of tomato herring. It splattered the sweater and left a stain which neither commercial cleaning or washing removed. The sweater is stiff where the stains are. Is there anything that could take these out? If they are not removed, could you please tell me the proper procedure to follow for a home dyeing job? H. S.

It seems that the spots are in there to stay, so dyeing is the thing to do to restore your sweater to usefulness. Buy a dye suitable for the material in the sweater and follow the manufacturers directions. To soften the spots before dyeing, dampen them with lukewarm water and sprinkle with pepsin powder. Let stand one half hour keeping spot damp. Wash and rinse the garment thoroughly.

For dyeing suggestions: Use plenty of water for the dye bath. When it is in the dye keep the sweater in constant motion by stirring and keep it immersed at all times.

I have a pair of Mexican huraches from last summer and they are now too large. Is there anyway I can shrink the leather tops to make them fit? What can I do to take yellow stains off a baby's crib sheet? P. P.

Try dampening the tops of the shoes and let them dry slowly. This should shrink them.

For your sheets, make a solution of 2 tablespoons of hydrogen peroxide to each gallon of water. Soak the stains in this for one half hour or longer if necessary. Rinse twice.

The bottom of my electric iron has a black spot caused by attemping to press mending tape on the wrong side. There is also a good deal of rust on the iron which sometimes comes off on damp garments. I would appreciate your letting me know how I can remove these stains. J. F.

Sponge the bottom of the cold iron with carbon tetrachloride to remove the stain, or use a mild fine scouring powder to do the job. Wipe with a clean damp cloth and dry.

There is a special cleaner on the market for rust removal from porcelains and metals. Use it, following the manufacturer's directions. The treatment has to be repeated periodically because the appearance of rust means some of the original finish is gone and there is nothing which can be done to prevent the rust from reforming.

Will you kindly tell me how to clean a fine strand of simulated pearls. I should also like to know how to restore the original snowy whiteness to a Mexican silver filigree pin. F. F.

To clean the pearls, rub olive oil on them with a piece of flannel or chamois. Go easy on the amount of oil and the pressure of rubbing.

Place your silver pin in an aluminum pan, add enough water to cover and 1 teaspoon of salt and 1 teaspoon of baking soda to 1 quart of water. Put pan on stove and bring to boiling point. Take out, wash and polish dry.

My baby drooled on a maroon colored slip cover. Without thinking I wiped it with a damp cloth. Now, I find it has faded on the gray upholstery of the chair. Can you tell me how to remove the stain? I. K.

Dye stains on fabrics which must be dry cleaned are not easily removed by home methods. I suggest you discuss this problem with a reliable upholstery cleaner.

I always keep a pastry mix on hand and find it a wonderful time saver. Here is the recipe if any readers might like to make it at home. One pound shortening, 2 pounds of flour, 1 tablespoon of salt. Cut shortening into salt and flour as you would ordinarily and store in a tight fitting can. I would be very grateful for a biscuit mix recipe. C. D. S.

Town Talk—

Mrs. Lewis' Party 'Packs 'Em In'; 'Unmentionable' Item at War Department

By Eva Hinton

YOU CAN bet there is a figurative SRO sign out every time Mrs. James Hamilton Lewis gives one of her parties. Her famous hospitality, alone, would be enough to "pack them in," but many times her friends gather to marvel at her uncanny palm reading ability.

The other afternoon it was her hospitality which crowded the Sulgrave Club. Mrs. Lewis, gracious as always, sat at the ballroom's entrance to greet and chat with each guest who came by.

And Mrs. Lewis' friends aren't all of one age group either. There were such young men about town as Jimmie Parks and Deane Rucker and such older ones as the former Yogoslav Ambassador, Constantin Fotitch, and Hampson Gary.

Mr. Fotitch was looking suntanned after a visit in New England with his former Conselor of Embassy, Ivan Franges, and Washington-born Mrs. Franges. Mr. Fotitch reported the Franges to be living on a farm, very isolated and beautiful. When I inquired if they had become real farmers Mr. Fotitch replied that they were making money out of it but not farming their land. He added, "In that part of New England the natives say you make money by not farming because at least you have the money which others waste in trying to make the land produce."

Mrs. English Gordon looking cool and soignee, chatted with witty Mrs. George Barnett. Mrs. Douglas Parmentier, in town for a few days, was receiving a warm welcome. One of the most effective-looking ladies at the party was Mrs. Higginson Rogers whose deep suntan was set off by a white linen suit and a white hat flaring back from the face.

Handsome Mrs. Lawrence Houghteling, wearing a cherry-colored print, was going on to dinner, Mrs. Warren Delano Robbins topped her afternoon-length print with a becoming, brimmed hat of black straw.

A conversation piece in itself was the frock of pretty Dolly Corbin which she wore with a black picture hat. Printed on a white ground were graceful, crimson fingernailed feminine hands, emerging from dainty frilled cuffs.

Another attractive costume was the black and white print accented with matching sequins that was worn by bride-to-be, blond and pretty Nancy Mayo.

A small group in a corner had discovered the whereabouts of a certain recently married and much publicized couple who think they have managed to disappear. They are having a wonderful time at Atlantic City, but are keeping it dark because as a resort it's not up to their usual chic.

Leaving the party were Mrs. Jean van Kaathoven, Mrs. Duncan Cameron, and the latter's daughter, Miss Elsie Quinby. In another departing threesome were Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Bell Sweeney and Mr. Sweenty's son, Tom, jr.

INVITATIONS have been received in Washington from Mr. and Mrs. Thomas K. Finletter, who were so popular here when he was a special Assistant Secretary of State during the war, for the marriage of their younger daughter, Lili, to Cass Canfield, jr. The wedding will take place in New York, June 26, in St. James' Church, Madison ave., at 4:30. A reception will follow the ceremony at 168 East 71st st.

The lovely bride-to-be was just a very amusing junior miss when she was in Washington. She is the sister of glamorous Margot Finletter, who alerts the sleepiest stag line.

THE State Department has moved into the new War Department Building and thereby has moved in on the secrets of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, who occupied the building before them. Well, at least they've moved in on ONE of their secrets!

An inquisitive reporter covering the State Department in its new quarters, inspected the drawers of a long conference table in the new Press Room and came up with one lady's nightie, pink with pale blue flowers.

The discoverer and his delighted colleagues have hung it on a coat-hanger near the entrance of their office.

The embarrassed State Department says it must belong to the Joint Chiefs of Staff, the correspondents say it must belong to a glamorous spy who had to change in a hurry at the office, and nobody as yet knows what explanation the Joint Chiefs have to offer!

Use of Spiritual Values Advocated By Danish Envoy

Henrik de Kauffmann, minister from Denmark, pleaded for application of spiritual values in solving postwar problems.

Addressing a luncheon of the Washington Lutheran Laymen's Fellowship Thursday at the Willard Hotel, the diplomat declared.

"I am convinced that many of the problems the world today is beset with could be solved far more easily and far more speedily if we all paid more attention to spiritual values; if we had a clear understanding of the profound wisdom of religion, and if the people of the world, not only taken as individuals but also as nations, followed the leadings of Jesus Christ."

English Church Votes Modern Bible Version

By Robert Tate Allan
Post Reporter

A new English translation of the Bible soon will be started, following a resolution approved in the Upper House Convocation of the Church of England. The convocation comprises 21 bishops under the Archibishop of Canterbury.

This will be the first translation to be officially prepared by the Church of England since the King James version (1611). The "Revised" version of 1884 produced by the Convocation of Canterbury was a revision of the authorized version, not an entirely fresh translation from source to vernacular.

Stimulation of Bible reading in Britain is the object of the new project. A new translation into living idiomatic English, it is felt, would do much to achieve this.

Six translators—three for the Old Testament, two for the New, and one for those books regarded by the Church of England as apocryphal—will work on the new version, assisted by a master of English prose.

Predecessors of the Authorized version were John Wycliffe's Bible of 1380, translated from the Latin. It was the first complete Bible in the English tongue, there being nothing before it but the metrical translations of parts of the book by King Alfred, in Anglo-Saxon. Tyndale's New Testament was published in 1526. The first complete Bible to be printed in English was that of Miles Coverdale in 1535.

Roman Catholics of Great Britain have been using for 18 months a new translation of the New Testament from the Vulgate, by Msgr. R. A. Knox.

Albright Brotherhood's Project Will Be Dedicated

Schnabel

Binks

The Men's Brotherhood of Albright Memorial Evangelical Church helped develop Camp Schaarfwood, a church project that will be dedicated tomorrow at 6:30 p. m.

The 38-acre camp site, a gift of the Schaarf family of Rockville, is between Rockville and Potomac, Md., near Great Falls and Glen Roads.

Principal speaker will be Dr. Reuben Mueller of Dayton, Ohio, executive secretary of the board of Christian education, Evangelical Church.

Dr. Mueller also will speak tomorrow at 11 a. m. at Albright Church, 4th and Rittenhouse sts. nw., at services marking the twenty-first anniversary of the congregation's founding.

Work on Project

Members of Albright Church have driven out to Schaarfwood to give hundreds of spare hours in building the cabins, clearing the land and doing other jobs.

Wade Grananinger, a member of the church's board of trustees, is responsible for the construction work on the camp, now about one-half completed.

The camp is used by the brotherhood for "fish fries;" by the Boy and Girl Scouts for meetings, and for the congregation's Sunday vespers. Groups from other churches also use the site. A picnic supper will precede tomorrow's dedication.

Camp Schaarfwood is only one of the ways in which the men's brotherhood serves Manor Park community.

Equipping a Canteen

They are equipping a teen-age canteen that started two weeks ago, conduct a brotherhood Bible class Sunday mornings, hold monthly dinners and have an eight-team bowling league. There are members of 21 religious backgrounds in the brotherhood, which the Rev. George E. Schnabel, pastor, feels is "the backbone of the congregation."

Frank J. Binks is president of the brotherhood; Ray Stevens, first vice president; Carlos Dixon, second vice president; Dr. Samuel Stewart, third vice president; William Thomen, secretary, and Cliff Williams, treasurer.

Alternate teachers of the Brotherhood Bible Class are Dr. Stewart, William McKinney, Ray Stevens and Jack Osborne. Stevens is the man behind the monthly dinners, which are a tradition around Albright Church. One month it's a Mexican dinner, another time it's an Italian spaghetti dinner, and again it may be a Dutch supper. Between 75 and 100 men turn out for the dinners.

Representative Walter H. Judd (R., Minn.) and former medical missionary to China, will address the twenty-first anniversary banquet Wednesday at 6:30 p. m. at Albright Church. The congregation began with services in a gospel tent on the present June 8, 1926. Mr. Schnabel has been its only pastor.

Brookland Will Burn Mortgage

A 20-year struggle for debt-clearance will culminate tomorrow at 8 p. m., when Brookland Baptist Church, 16th and Monroe sts. ne., burns the $115,000 mortgage on its Sunday School building.

Dr. O. O. Deitz, pastor when the present church was built in 1928, will be among the participants in the mortgage-burning rites.

Others include Dr. M. Chandler Stith, executive secretary of the D. C. Baptist Convention, and Dr. Gaye L. McGlothlen, former pastors; Dr. Charles Greene, a physician who plans to become a medical missionary and who was interim pastor until the Rev. Ward B. Hurlburt recently assumed his new duties. Other participants will be E. L. Carleton, chairman of the board of trustees, and J. L. Sherwood, 85, oldest member of the church.

Canon Draper Named to Md. Post

The Rev. W. Curtis Draper, canon precentor of Washington Cathedral, has been named rector of Trinity Church, Upper Marlboro, Md., and missioner for the Washington Diocese.

That was disclosed yesterday by the Right Rev. Angus Dun, Bishop of the Washington Diocese. Canon Draper will assume his new duties in July. His formal resignation will be presented to the Cathedral Chapter June 20.

The Rev. G. William Sprenkel, Lutheran student pastor for Baltimore and Washington, will address a "Students' Recognition Service" tomorrow at 11 a. m. at Chevy Chase Methodist Church, Connecticut ave. and Shepherd st. nw. "Necktie or Artery?" will be his theme.

CHURCH NEWS AND VIEWS

Methodists' Bishop Flint Scotches Rumors He'll Retire Next Year; Health Improving

By Robert Tate Allan
Post Reporter

Bishop Charles Wesley Flint, resident bishop of the Washington Methodist area, yesterday "scotched" rumors that he will retire next year.

"I did have a disability last year, but now am improving rapidly, and have given no thought to the matter of retiring," the bishop told this reporter.

A Methodist bishop may retire voluntarily after 67, or by necessity at the jurisdictional conference following his seventieth birthday.

Thus, Bishop Flint's required retirement would not come until June, 1952, when he will be in his seventy-fourth year. He will be 69 this November.

Meanwhile, there is talk in church circles that two well-known Capital area clergymen may be candidates for election to a bishopric when the northeastern jurisdictional conference meets next June at a place to be announced later.

They are Dr. Frederick Brown Harris, pastor of Foundry Methodist Church and former Senate chaplain, and Dr. Fred G. Holloway, president of Western Maryland College, Westminster, and dean-elect of Drew Theological Seminary, Madison, N. J. The jurisdictional parley will follow the quadrennial Methodist General Conference opening next April 28 at Boston.

Methodists do not elect bishops for specific areas. Rather, clergymen are elected to the Episcopate and then assigned to certain areas.

'Petticoat Fever' at Crossroads

Our Star-Gazer Notes A Straw-Hat Opening, A Musical on Platters

By Richard L. Coe

POOR RICHARD'S ALMANAC: Venus and Mars are the morning stars (no kidding!) . . . The Cross Roads Theater will open its eleventh consecutive season Tuesday, June 24, with Mark Reed's comedy, "Petticoat Fever," which answers a lot of questions as to what's become of 'em . . . Charles Hohein, Irma Gordon and George Hohein are the Cross Roads' bigwigs . . . Performances will be nightly except Sundays and Mondays, with all shows on for two-week runs . . . Other plays on the list are: John Patrick's "The Hasty Heart," Philip Barry's "Foolish Notion," Kenyon Nicholson's and Charley Robinson's "Apple of His Eye" and, Barry again, "The Philadelphia Story."

Forrest Tucker

"DREAM GIRL" winds up Sunday night out at Olney . . . Sunday performances, by the way, are a novelty in that pleasant little theater, so if you're out driving Sunday afternoon, you might stop to sup at the rambling restaurant adjoining the theater before you catch Haila Stoddard's finale . . . And a mighty nice performance it is, too . . . Tuesday will bring a new Olney offering, "The Male Animal," that sensibly humorous comedy by the New Yorker's James Thurber and Actor-Director Elliott Nugent . . . Richard Briggs, Nancy Holland and Joseph Hardy will have the leads.

THE RECORD SHOPS should soon have a run on the "Brigadoon" volume . . . Victor has nabbed Decca's sure-fire habit of waxing the original cast and its "Brigadoon" volume is a honey . . . "Almost Like Being in Love," now in second place on Variety's radio survey, is as crisply charming as it is in the Cheryl Crawford New York original, with Marion Bell and David Brooks . . . Lee Sullivan's "I'll Go Home With Bonnie Jean" is another for the book and so's "The Heather on the Hill" . . . "Finian's Rainbow" also is out, with Columbia employing the original cast with Ella Logan (who's since departed) . . . This is the "Glocca Morra" show . . . While we did see "Brigadoon" in New York, we've missed "Finian," which perhaps is why we think the Victor album is a far better buy.

ANOTHER NEW ALBUM to come our way is "Fun With Mister Shakespeare," wherein Charles Coburn introduces scenes and what passes for the plot-line of "The Comedy of Errors" . . . Since Shakespeare's comics rarely strike us as being the slightest bit funny, this Victor offering leaves us cold . . . Even Bette Davis and Elisabeth Bergner playing identical twins on the screen struck us as unconvincing magic . . . With hearty Coburn ha-ha-haing about TWO sets of twins, we simply squirm . . . Romney Brent and Gina Malo are among his cohorts . . . Since the records are unbreakable, the album may have been planned for children . . . The idea apparently being that those who enjoy smashing records will be doubly thwarted.

KEITH'S FACE IS REDDER . . . A big ad this week proclaimed "our face is red, but 'The Egg and I' will hold for a fourth and POSITIVELY last week" . . . So, "The Egg and I" will be holding for a FIFTH week beginning Wednesday . . . We won't go along with 'em and say it's the last . . . Or even that Shirley Temple will get Guy Madison in "Honeymoon" on Wednesday the 18th.

ROOMING TROUBLE still exists . . . So if you're expecting visitors and haven't room for 'em at home better take squatters' rights at a hotel to guarantee a bed . . . Even if the guest is a Warner feature player . . . Former Washingtonian Forrest Tucker arrived the other day with a reservation at the Washington, but it was news to the hotel . . . Its lobby was home to Forrest for a while, but he's settled in a room now . . . He's here to look in on his mother, Mrs. Doris Patton, 1918 Pennsylvania ave. nw. . . . Tucker's an amateur golfer with the film colony's lowest handicap . . . You'll find him on the links of the Prince Georges Golf and Country Club . . . He's just come up from another tourney in Texas . . . Properly enough, for his latest film is with Jack Carson and Dennis Morgan in "Two Guys from Texas." . . . Tucker plans to have his mother and half-brother, 12-year-old Bob, join his wife and baby in Hollywood for the summer.

RAMBLINGS: That big sign over the Trans-Lux ought to make it perfectly clear that the March of Time's "The Russians Nobody Knows" is the news spot's top short of the week . . . The Jarvis Theater (telephone Oliver 3351), which opened "Candida" last night, will have special 60-cent Saturday matinees throughout the summer . . .

Community education will show Rene Claire's "A Nous la Liberte" tonight and tomorrow night at 8:15 . . . Midnight shows added for tonight by "Alexander's Ragtime Band," at the Columbia, and "The Well-Digger's Daughter," at the Little . . . Children's Film Library shows this morning at 10: "Alice in Wonderland" at the Silver, "The Adventures of Huckleberry Finn" at the Uptown, "Little Miss Marker" at the Tivoli and "Anne of Green Gables" at the Penn.

Earhart's Haste Caused Crack Up, NBC Thinks

New York.—This month marks the tenth anniversary of the disappearance of Amelia Earhart, whose plane crashed near the Howland Islands in the Pacific. There are recurring rumors of the causes of her disappearance—rumors that she still is alive, rumors that the Japanese imprisoned her lest she reveal military information, etc . . .

Henry Wallace

The executive at NBC have little faith in these rumors. Their feeling is that the aviatrix didn't stay long enough in New Zealand for a check-up on her plane before she started the flight home—and that she rushed from New Zealand in the hope of reaching New York in time for a broadcast, at a $5000 fee. If she arrived later than the stipulated date, she'd receive only $1000.

When Henry Wallace made his speech at the Sorbonne in Paris, Michael Straight—the New Republic's publisher who accompanied him on the trip—sat next to Jacques Duclos, the French Communist leader . . . In his speech Wallace attacked De Gaulle, and denounced the forces which he said are leading the world into another war. This was a speech which made Wallace the target of editorial attacks throughout America . . . Straight turned to Duclos and asked: "Well, what do you think of the speech? . . . Duclos replied: "Extremely mild."

Mr. Straight visited Brig. Gen. Evans Carlson in Oregon recently. The Marine hero asked: "What do you think will happen at the coming convention of the American Veterans' Committee?" . . . "I expect there'll be trouble," said Straight . . . "Which side are you on?" General Carlson asked him . . . "I'm against sides," said Straight . . . "I'm afraid I won't be able to get to the convention," said Carlson. "If I give you my proxy, will you vote it for me?" . . . Straight agreed . . . Two days later Evans Carlson died.

This fall NBC's television station will pick up football games in Boston, Philadelphia and Washington . . . Mr. and Mrs. Katzenstein, the inveterate first-nighters, broke their record several days ago when they failed to attend the premiere of the new Mary Boland play, "Open House." The Katzensteins explained: "We just couldn't go. We were afraid we might be stuck with another 'Louisiana Lady'."

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

White House Boycotts Roosevelts Briefly

By Drew Pearson

VARIOUS Democrats have accused Harry Truman of deserting Franklin Roosevelt, but the nearest real break came two days ago when the entire Truman Administration walked out on the Grand Old Lady of the Democratic Party, Mrs. Franklin Roosevelt.

Mrs. Roosevelt

Despite the fact that Mrs. Roosevelt was the honored speaker at the Jefferson Day dinner in Los Angeles, and despite the fact that the dinner was being arranged by James Roosevelt, eldest son of the late President, the White House for a time ordered a complete boycott.

Secretary of the Treasury Snyder, scheduled to speak alongside Mrs. Roosevelt, canceled. And Democratic Executive Director Gael Sullivan was ordered to cancel. In the end, Sullivan persuaded President Truman to reverse the boycott at least to the extent of letting him speak alongside Mrs. Roosevelt.

Basic reason for the hushed-up dinner-party fracas was Henry Wallace and the Truman Doctrine.

When Wallace spoke in Los Angeles recently, the local Democratic committee, under pressure from former Attorney General Bob Kenny, County Chairman Rollin McNitt and Jimmy Roosevelt, finally voted to welcome Wallace.

Wallace, attracting the largest Democratic political crowd since the days of FDR, assailed the Truman Doctrine, was roundly cheered by local Democrats. When word of the Wallace triumph filtered back to Washington, Secretary Snyder rushed over to the White House, told Truman he was going to pull out of the Los Angeles Jefferson Day dinner. Snyder, long one of the closest men to Truman, also sold him on the idea of "disciplining" Los Angeles Democrats.

Accordingly, Truman went to the extreme length of ordering Executive Director Gael Sullivan to withdraw from the party campaign dinner, leaving Mrs. Roosevelt sitting high-and-dry on the Los Angeles platform all by herself.

Informed of this simultaneously, Sullivan, an adroit hand at healing party breaches, warned the White House that in a democracy, there must be room for people with all sorts of opinions. A purge, he warned, was bad business. Truman was readily convinced, but not Mr. Snyder. He wouldn't budge.

In the end, Sullivan flew by special plane to Los Angeles, went immediately to the home of Ed Pauley, former treasurer of the Democratic National Committee and opponent of the Roosevelt liberal wing of the party. Pauley then proceeded to put the heat on Sullivan, showed him a statement made by Jimmy Roosevelt and former Congressman George Outland critical of the Truman policy, urging that Greece and Turkey be taken up through the United Nations. Finally, Sullivan also decided to boycott the Roosevelt dinner. He took the next plane back to Washington.

Note—In order to hush up the hot intra-party feud, the White House whipped up the lame excuse that an urgent Cabinet meeting would keep Secretary Snyder in Washington.

Merry-Go-Round

MEN'S clothing is slated for another 5 per cent price jump in the fall because of higher textile prices . . . Jouett Shouse, former Democratic National Committee chairman, sometimes described as having "the finest 1923 mind in Washington," has now become one of President Truman's unofficial advisers. Shouse never could get near the White House in Roosevelt's day . . . Harold Stassen has turned down more than 4000 speaking invitations in the last two months. But he's filling a thousand—about twice as many as any other politico could handle.

Horses Get Aid

Besides the usual quota of first-aid men on the job during the shooting of battle scenes for "The Man from Colorado," which stars Glenn Ford, William Holden and Ellen Drew, five veterinarians are in constant attendance to care for the hundreds of horses employed.

Cadets of Dunbar High School marched off the field at Griffith Stadium yesterday with all honors in the fifty-fifth annual competitive drill for school divisions 10 to 13.

Not since 1921 had any school taken first, second and third in the drill. Then, too, Dunbar made a clean sweep.

A Company, commanded by Capt. Ernest Greene, toook first honors yesterday. Dr. Hobart M. Corning, superintendent of schools, pinned the teacher's diamond medal on the winning captain's tunic. Mrs. Henry Grattan Doyle, president of the Board of education, presented him with a gold medal.

Receive Medals

Lieutenants of the winning company, Thomas Hawkins and Alfred Collins, received medals from George E. C. Hayes and Mrs. Velma Williams, members of the Board of Education.

The Stephen A. Kramer Cup for second place in the drill was awarded to Company D of Dunbar, commanded by Capt. Wilbert Petty. Third place honors went to Company B, commanded by Capt. Harold Mavritte.

The regiment was reviewed, following two days of competition, by Maj. Gen. Edward S. Bres, War Department director of Reserve and R. O. T. C. affairs. U. S. Offering Institutions Gift Potatoes

Public and charitable institutions eligible for free gifts of Government-owned early potatoes were urged yesterday by the Department of Agriculture to get in their orders.

Besides school lunch programs, the following are eligible for potatoes bought under the mandatory price-support program:

1. Charitable institutions operated without profit and supported by tax grants or donations at no cost to recipients.

2. Relief agencies that distribute potatoes free to relief clients.

The Government supplies the potatoes in car lots with transportation paid, or in truck lots at Government points of purchase.

Surplus potatoes are mainly No. 2 and B type, seldom used in commercial marketing, but "satisfactory for human consumption if they can be moved before spoilage sets in," the department said.

Williams said that of this number 118,747 were being used in agriculture and the remainder in industry. The United States has released virtually all prisoners.

Negro's Suit Aimed at Law, Attorney Says

Columbia, S. C., June 6 (AP).—Defense attorney in a Charleston Negro's Federal court suit against University of South Carolina claimed today that the action was designed "to break down the policy and law of this State whereby (race) segregation is maintained."

Assistant State Attorney General T. C. Callison made that statement after Robert A. Carter, New York Negro, declared that there could be "no equality of educational facilities or opportunities where there is separation."

Carter and Thurgood Marshall, another National Association for the Advancement of Colored People attorney, represented 25-year-old John H. Wrighten, who claimed his constitutional and civil rights were violated by rejection of his application to enter South Carolina's Law School.

District Judge J. Waties Waring took the case under advisement after conclusion of legal argument. He gave attorneys until June 16 to submit additional briefs to him at Charleston.

Wrighten's suit asked that university authorities be enjoined from refusing to admit "qualified" Negroes to the law school. He also sought a $15,000 judgment.

Wrighten "must be admitted to the University of South Carolina law school if he is to get ample protection of his constitutional rights," Carter said.

Asking for a decision that "will protect the interests of both white and black races," Callison declared that "the policy, not custom, of the State is one of segregation of the races for educational purposes."

He insisted that "segregation in this State is too well established to be disturbed."

James H. Price of Greenville, another defense attorney, said university officers acted in accordance with the State constitution and laws in turning down Wrighten.

Gotham Police On Extra Duty In Crime Wave

New York, June 6 (AP).—A confidential message to all of New York City's more than 17,000 policemen has asked them to volunteer for four extra hours of duty every six days in order to cope with "a serious upsurge of crime," it was learned today.

Response to the request, for which the men receive no extra pay, was understood to be almost unanimous. Uniformed patrolmen wear plain clothes during the extra-duty tour and wear lapel emblems to identify them to one another.

Police with private cars were asked to prowl the streets and were given police department license plates, five gallons of gasoline for each four-hour period and a quart of oil for every 28 hours of special duty.

Bond-a-Month Plan Launched By Snyder

Los Angeles, June 6 (AP).—Treasury Secretary Snyder today launched the new "Savings-Bond-a-Month" program with an address by transcription from the deck of the heavy cruiser Los Angeles, saying the big vessel was a "demonstration of the productive skill and achievement with which the whole American people met the problems of war."

The cruiser Los Angeles was commissioned in July, 1945, a few weeks before the Japanese surrendered, and since her maiden voyage has been engaged in supporting American occupation forces.

Secretary Snyder said that although the United States was experiencing remarkable prosperity it has a tremendous indebtedness, and that in asking Americans to buy a bond each month the Treasury was trying to secure a wider and better balanced ownership of the debt.

"Economists, financiers, business executives and experts on debt management concur that a widely-spread national debt is interwoven with the maintenance of a sound economy," said the Secretary. "Moreover, when a portion of the national debt is shifted from the banking system to individuals, it means that, without increasing the debt, the billions of dollars of interest paid will go directly to these millions of citizens."

The new bond-a-month plan, Snyder explained, has been made available with the help of the banking system of America. Bankers will assist citizens' authorization to withdraw sufficient money from checking accounts to buy Government bonds at regular intervals. Written authorizations may be enlarged or terminated at any time. Banks are offering the regular bond-purchasing service, charging to the individual's personal account and forwarding the bond to him.

Snyder was prevented by business from being here personally to deliver his speech.

Others on the program included Vice Admiral Walter S. Delany, commanding battleships and cruisers of the Pacific fleet, and war bond and banking leaders. Skipper of the Los Angeles, Capt. Clarence E. Vogeli, was host to more than 100 guests.

Progress Made In U. S.-Soviet Talks on Korea

Seoul, Korea, June 6 (U.P.).—Maj. Gen. Albert E. Brown, chief of the United States delegation, announced today that the Soviet-American joint commission had again reached tentative agreement on broad consultation of Korean political parties about the formation of a Korean government.

Subcommission No. 1, which is charged with working out a consultation plan, was ordered to get to work and redraft its last plan for submission to the whole commission tomorrow.

"It looks very hopeful that by tomorrow a decision will be reached which will be acceptable to both delegations," Brown said.

If agreement is reached tomorrow, he said, it was hoped that questionnaires could be distributed next week to Korean parties. Brown said the commission had not taken up specific parties that will be called in for oral consultation.

The Russians at today's meeting of the commission turned down another American attempt to get meetings opened to correspondents.

Army Starts Project Of Mapping Orient

Batavia, Java, June 6 (AP).—Brig. Gen. Herbert B. Loper and 13 officers of an American military commission will arrive Sunday to discuss their project of mapping the entire Orient.

The project is to produce topographical, hydrographical and aerial maps for military and economic purposes. The map makers will utilize millions of maps and terrain studies produced by U. S. armed services during the war.

Strikes, Army Blamed for Lack of Steel

By The Associated Press

Willard F. Rockwell, Pittsburgh industrialist and former production director of the United States Maritime Commission, predicted yesterday that "barring strikes, there will be no shortage of steel inside of 12 months."

Rockwell is chairman of the board of the Rockwell Manufacturing Co., Pittsburgh, and an officer of firms in Cleveland, Detroit and elsewhere.

He told a Senate Small Business Subcommittee there are these three reasons for the steel shortage, the chief one being strikes:

1. Strikes, including those in steel, coal, the electrical industry which prevented delivery of electrical equipment required in installation and operation of cold rolling mill equipment, and "innumerable" others;

2. "A terrific waste brought about by the ill-considered and unjustified demands of the military procurement forces during war;"

3. "The peace-time exporting of steel which, in some cases, may be necessary to aid the recovery of our allies and former enemies, but in other cases is not only detrimental to American interests but is detrimental to world interests."

Rockwell said the present steel shortages are proving disastrous to all business and will cause the bankruptcy of hundreds of small companies. He attributed them to reduction in output rather than shortage of steel mill facilities.

He said there "would be no steel shortage" now if there had been produced the 21 million tons the experts have estimated "were lost through strikes in the first year after VJ-Day, equal to a three-months' supply."

Raps Army Wastage

Referring to the waste he charged to the military procurement forces, Rockwell said:

"As a member of the Army and Navy Munitions Board executive committee of the material requirements committee of the War Production Board, I have been present at meetings where cross-examination of representatives has made it apparent that steel requirements demanded were most unreasonable, but in which the argument was ended when the Army representative claimed that any further discussion would involve disclosure of military secrets."

Rockwell urged return of steel scrap from Japan, Europe and elsewhere. In response to a question by Senator Ellender (D., La.) whether the cost of returning scrap would not be more than its worth, the witness replied:

"Send a couple of good scrap dealers over there and they'll get it back," adding that this scrap would boost production.

As a result of the exporting of steel, Rockwell said his company is forced to purchase tin plate from England at "from 17 to 20 cents a pound" while tin plate is being shipped "on Government orders to Canada, New Zealand and Australia at a price of 7 cents per pound."

He said the U. S. Steel Corp. is providing his company with "only a fraction of the tonnage which we require."

Hits "Vertical Trusts"

Rockwell said one of the companies with which he is associated—the Bossert Co., Utica, N. Y., a subsidiary of Timken-Detroit Axle Co., of which he is chairman of the board—has been notified by the Jones & Laughlin Steel Corp. of Pittsburgh that it would not furnish Bossert any more steel after the filling of present orders.

He said Jones & Laughlin stated that it requires "considerably more of its own steel for its own barrel factory and other products."

Rockwell commented:

"It is obvious that if the steel companies continue to enter into competition with their customers in the fabricating and in the steel consuming manufacturing industries, we shall soon be competing with vertical trusts of the type which existed in Germany."

He said his company has spent $250,000 in premium prices for steel this year.

"The gray market is no myth to us," he said.

The "gray market" involves alleged sales of steel at excessive prices over its normal mill value.

H. E. Robinson, a sales manager for Jones & Laughlin, testified, however, that it has had to curtail deliveries to Bossert and others because of a fall-off in production. He said this has been due to strikes and to the closing of the Lakewood (Cleveland) plant of the Otis Steel Co., a Jones & Laughlin subsidiary. He said the Lakewood plant was closed because it was obsolete.

Robinson denied the company's barrel plant operations were the cause of the reduction of steel shipments to Bossert.

$70,000 Gem Robbery Reported by Salesman

Peoria, Ill., June 6 (AP).—Seymour Berland, Lawrence, Long Island, N. Y., a jewelry salesman, reported that he was robbed of $70,000 in diamonds and other precious stones today.

Sheriff Earl W. Stainhower said Berland told the following story:

En route to Galesburg, Ill., 50 miles northwest of Peoria, his car was overtaken by another containing three men who sounded a siren and forced him to stop. Two of the men, one displaying a police star and brandishing a revolver, forced him to drive to a lonely side road. They left him tied hand and foot after taking the gems.

Wisconsin Centenary Half Dollar Authorized

By The Associated Press

The House Banking Committee yesterday approved legislation authorizing coinage of up to 500,000 silver half dollars in commemoration of the 100th anniversary of Wisconsin's admission to the union.

The committee decided it will approve no more special coinage measures except to mark the centennials of States.

15 States Ask New Hearing On Rail Rates

By The Associated Press

Officials of 15 States asked the Supreme Court yesterday to reconsider its recent 7 to 2 decision which upheld an ICC order raising class railroad freight rates 10 per cent in the North and East.

The ICC order also calls for reduction of such rates by 10 per cent in the South and as far west as the Rockies.

Attorneys general for New York, Delaware, Indiana, Maryland, Michigan, New Jersey, Ohio, Wisconsin and Pennsylvania, and Governors of the six New England States filed separate petitions urging the high tribunal to grant a rehearing of the case.

The petition by the attorneys general stated that the Supreme Court "in failing to hold that the commission's order was invalid for lack of essential preliminary findings, and in attempting to supply that lack by findings based upon its own examination of the evidence, erred and acted in conflict with long-established principles laid down by its earlier decisions."

The petition filed by the New England Governors said the high court made a mistake by substituting findings of its own for those made by the ICC.

The commission, the Governors said, made no finding that economic differences between the South and other sections of the country are caused by rate structure differences. The Supreme Court, they said, "erroneously concluded that the absence of a nondiscriminatory class rate structure" injured the South, "such injury being inferable from differences in economic conditions" of the sections.

Southern Senators Plot Fight on Bulwinkle Bill

By The Associated Press

Half a dozen Southern Senators joined by at least one from New England laid plans yesterday for extensive debate against the revived Bulwinkle railroad bill.

The legislation, due to be called up in the Senate after final action on the labor bill, would exempt railroads and other common carriers from prosecution under the antitrust laws for entering into rate agreements approved by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Time is on the side of the opponents, for only two of the big departmental appropriation bills have passed the Senate and all are supposed to be enacted by June 30.

Senator Reed (R., Kans.), sponsor of this year's bill, is expected to make a brief opening argument. Then the opponents will get in their licks. The opposition includes Senators Tobey (R., N. H.), Olin Johnston (D., S. C.), Russell (D., Ga.) and Hill (D., Ala.). Other Southern Senators were reported ready to join forces

Rivers Burst Banks in Iowa And Missouri

By the United Press

Hundreds of persons were forced out of their homes in southern Iowa and northern Missouri communities Friday as rain-swollen rivers spilled over their banks and flooded homes, farmlands and villages.

The entire population of Eddyville, Iowa—1000 persons—fled that town when a levee gave way under the weight of flood waters of the Des Moines River. All available citizens were called to help pile sandbags around the light plant in Canton, Mo., against the steadily rising Mississippi River, which forecasters feared would reach a stage equaling that of the 1944 flood.

In northwest Missouri, high water virtually had isolated Trenton and Princeton, in the watershed of the flooding Grand River.

At least 12 communities in the Des Moines River valley in central and southeastern Iowa were threatened.

The Red Cross estimated that 4300 persons had been evacuated from flood-stricken Iowa communities. At least 100 families were moved out of low-lying sections of Canton, Mo.

The United States Weather Bureau at Omaha issued a warning that heavy rains were expected which would cause "serious floods" in southeast Nebraska, southwest Iowa, northwest Missouri and northeast Kansas.

Heavy rains fell in central Indiana and threatened to push swollen rivers to new levels. The rains delayed planting of crops.

CULTURAL NOTE

I visited the National Gallery yesterday, while wearing leather-heeled shoes.

Never again! They polish their floors too well up there. Next time I'll wear rubber sneakers.

MARY GOT HELP

The other day we ran an item about Mary, who got a pretty hard bump when she discovered that her husband was a bigamist.

We asked for help in finding housing for Mary, so that she wouldn't have to abandon her baby.

The response has renewed my faith in the fellowship of man.

The social worker who first brought Mary's plight to my attention is sure she'll find a place for her out of the many offers that have come in. Meantime, Mary extends her thanks to:

Mrs. Viola B. Anderson, 3412 39th pl., Colmar Manor, Md.; Mrs. Robert Mitchell, Colvin Run, Vienna, Va.; Mrs. Walter A. Thornton, 313 East Bellefonte ave., Alexandria, Va.; Mrs. Joseph W. Hathcock, 4536 Lowell st. nw.; Mrs. Francis G. Gordon, jr., 1808 37th st. nw.; Mrs. Sara Coburn, 3310 M. st. nw.; Mrs. John A. Pennell, 5401 Chesapeake rd., Hyattsville, Md.; Mrs. Paul B. Kelly, 2319 Chester st. se.; Mrs. E. S. Newman, 4604 Addison rd., Beaver Heights, Md.; Mrs. J. F. Carter, 709 Wythe st., Alexandria, Va.; Mrs. Paul W. Van Ormer, Lanham, Md.; Dorothy Nordbye, 4338 Livingston rd. se.; William J. Stephenson, Laurel, Md.; Mrs. Charles Smeltzer, 4801 20th st. North, Arlington, Va.; and Mrs. J. L. Luber, 2939 Mills ave. ne.

COMMUNICATION

This letter has arrived from James Schwartz, 1107 Staples st. ne.:

"This is no publicity stunt, but I will make a generous contribution to your pet charity, Children's Hospital, if your District Liners will help me locate a record called 'The Laughing Record,' which is about 12 years old.

"I shall be most grateful for permission to have it copied, because I think it will have a big morale value to a recently discharged serviceman, who heard it as an adolescent."

Start making out your check, Mr. Schwartz. The record was located in the WINX music library, and it is now en route to you.

SITUATION NORMAL

I was out at National Airport the other day, trying to run down a story—but so far everybody is passing the buck to somebody else, so that item will have to wait a few more days.

Meantime, I had a chance to shoot the breeze with the porters, ticket sellers, and others employed out there, and they all tell the same story.

The recent air crashes haven't affected business in the slightest. The public seems to realize that airlines are reasonably safe, in spite of the spectacular accidents, and flights are booked as solidly as ever.

RECRUIT

From the Maryland end of Riggs rd. comes this postcard from Mrs. J. B. Macdonald:

"I've just returned from a week's vacation in New York where I saw 'smart' women wearing dowdy-looking clothes and skirt lengths which showed stumps and sticks, but no variation of size or curve. After a week of seeing those horrible creations I want to sign up right away with the Lizzy Stone League for the Abolition of Long Skirts.

Welcome to the fold, Mrs. Mac. Who's next?

GIFT SUGGESTION

To those who are shopping for Father's Day gifts, this column offers some advice born of years of experience:

The most welcome gift is the one that won't make the old man wince when he sees the bill for it.

The Bridge Deck

By Florence Osborn

Murry Becker, 13-year-old son of Simon Becker, describes a clever defense made by his father in today's hand, played at Cavendish Club. The bidding, with my father's careful signals, showed the way to defeat the contract. South has only three losers, two clubs and the ace of trumps. It ought to be easy to make the hand, but when Mrs Golder opened the king of clubs and the strong dummy went down the chance of building up a trump trick in her partner's hand seemed to her the only defense.

"My father played the nine of clubs on the king. He also had seen the way to take four tricks, and he started the echo in order to get Mrs. Golder to continue the suit. She followed with the club ace, father playing the seven. The queen of clubs lead was now trumped by the heart king in dummy. Declarer entered his hand with the diamond king and played a low heart. Mrs. Golder won with her singleton ace and now made the setting play, the 10 of clubs.

"She had reasoned that, since South had been forced to reply to North's take-out double, South's hearts might be very weak and my father might easily have the heart 10. This was confirmed by his play to the first two club tricks, so the 10 of clubs lead was now easy to make.

"Declarer could go up with the heart queen or discard; it would make no differtnce. Dad was bound to make his heart 10, and this trick with the two clubs and heart ace put the hand down one trick."

HERE is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

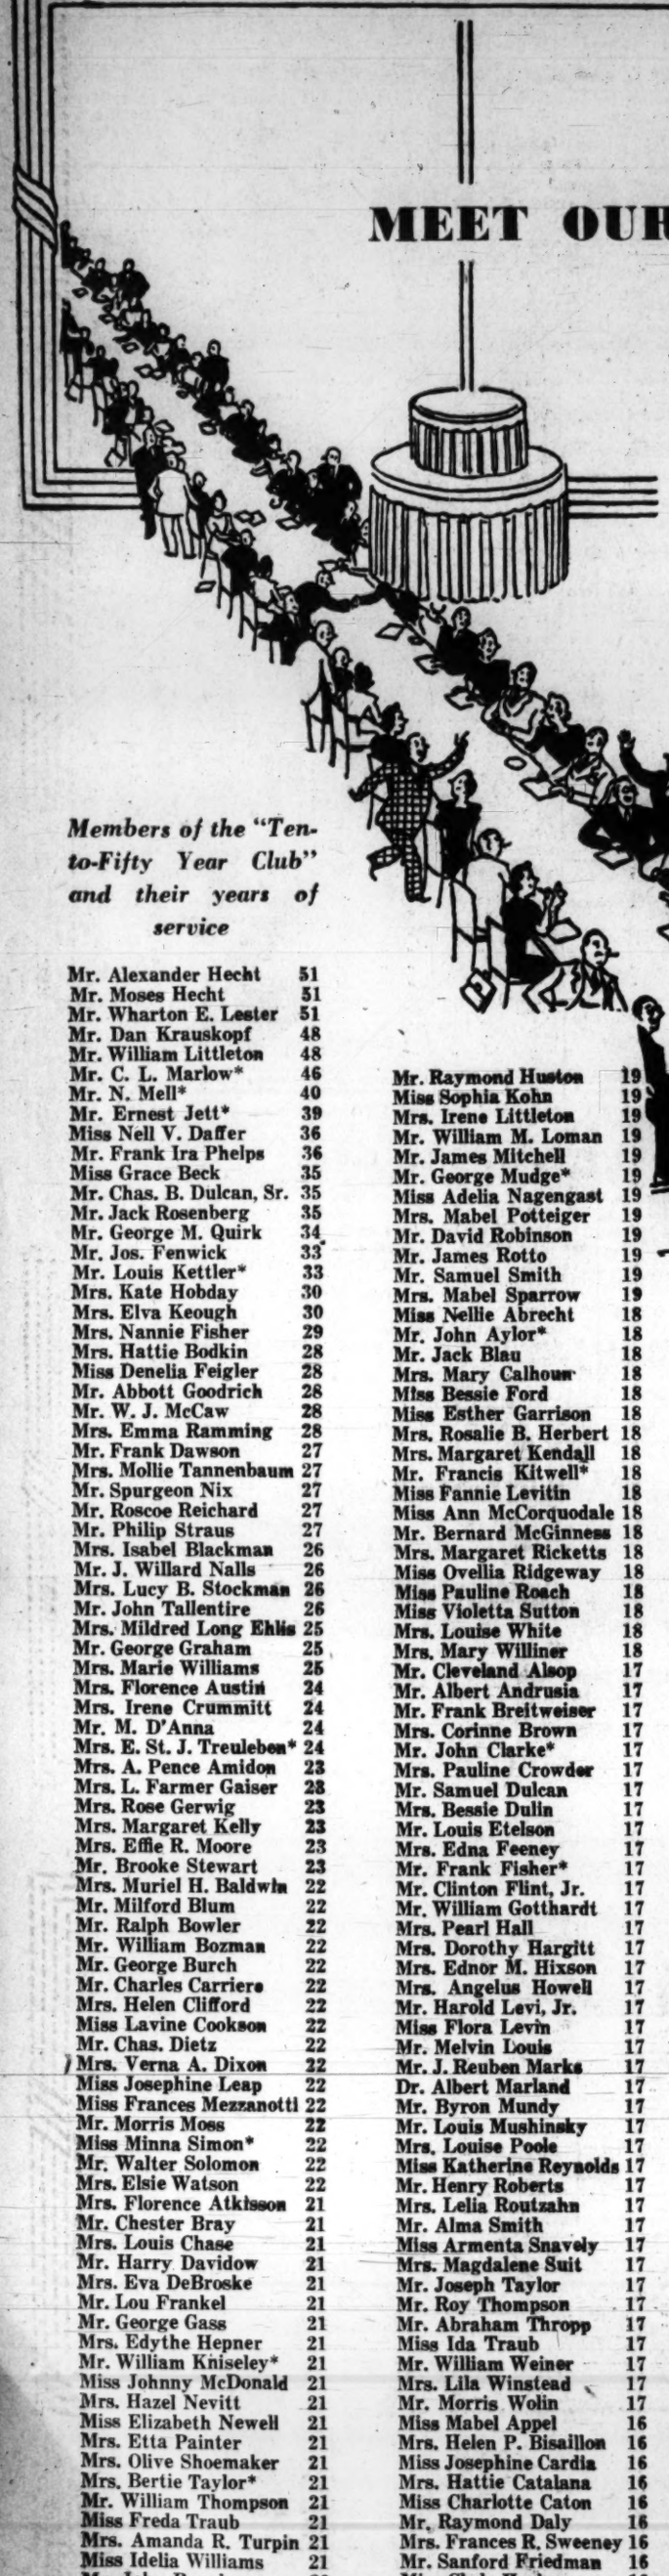
School is out

Vacation days are here again . . . For all the girls and boys . . . And it is evident at home . . . From all the extra noise . . . Our Jimmie and our Donnie are . . . As happy as can be . . . And wish the summer months would last . . . For all eternity . . . The time is theirs to while away . . . And everything is bright . . . With no examinations and . . . No studying at night . . . Our washday work is easier . . . Because they merely play . . . But now we have to fill them up . . . With three big meals a day . . . And now we have to keep an eye . . . On everything they do . . . And wonder if our frazzled nerves . . . Will see the summer through.



MEET OUR HONORARY BOARD OF DIRECTORS

They Are The Valued and Loyal Associates Who Form

The Hecht Co. "TEN-to-FIFTY YEAR CLUB"

THEY'RE meeting tonight. All three-hundred and seventy-seven (377) of them. To welcome into membership twenty-three more Hecht Co. Associates who have completed a decade of service with us. They're meeting tonight, formally. But all through the 51 years of The Hecht Co.'s career, this loyal and valued group have been meeting and serving you. You, our customers, know many of them personally. They tell all Hecht Co. Associates what you like, what you want so that all of us can serve you better. Naturally, we turn to our "Honorary Board of Directors" whose service through the years uniquely qualifies them to guide the rest of us toward their high standards of leadership and service.

WE'VE over twenty-eight hundred persons in our store family. Enough to form a little community. We like to think of the members of our Ten-to-Fifty Year Club as our leading citizens. They first settled, they laid the foundations, they planned the growth, and through the years their wise heads and practiced hands have given us the prestige and affection all communities strive to achieve.

FOR the spirit and devotion of this group typify the feelings of our entire store community. We like you to visit us and to enjoy every minute of your stay. For your loyal patronage and recognition of all of us, are the highest rewards in retailing—the realization that we are pleasing you.

P. S. This page first appeared on May 20th, 1940, in The Washington Post. We reprint this annual meeting of our Honorary Board of Directors with proper revisions in names and figures to bring it up to date.
